House Sends 3½ Billion Tax Measure To Senate

Upper Body Slated To Approve Bill Today and Send It to President

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The House without a record vote yesterday passed and sent to the Senate the conference draft of the largest revenue bill in tax history.

The Senate today will stamp final approval on the $3,553,400,000 measure and dispatch it to the President to be signed into law.

On October 1, its nearly three million dollars a day in steepened excises will become operative. Next March 15 about 13 million individuals, including 2,275,000 new taxpayers, will pay retroactive surtaxes on income for this year.

The House sped the bill on its last trip through Congress after Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee and Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, ranking minority member, were cross-examined for an hour on conference changes.

No Demand for Roll Call

With barely more than a quorum present, no demand was made for a roll call. A roar of "Ayes" and a few scattered "Noes" signaled passage.

A Treasury breakdown showed the bill would tap individual and corporate incomes for an additional $2,528,700,000 and raise $1,026,000,000 more from excise and miscellaneous taxes.

Surtaxes starting at 6 per cent on the first taxable dollar and ranging to 77 per cent on the highest tax bracket, with exemptions lowered to $750 for single persons and $1500 for married, would yield $1,-166,670,000 of the new defense revenue.

Corporation taxes will raise $1,-352,100,000. These include a 6 per cent tax on corporations earning $25,000 and less and 7 per cent surtaxes on income in excess of that. Excess profits tax rates are increased 10 percentage points in each bracket.

Excises Increased

The Treasury estimated $346,900,-000 from new and increased excises, including $4 a gallon on liquor, a 1 per cent excise on automobiles (in addition to a $5 use tax on autos and boats), a 5 per cent tax on light bulbs, and a wide range of other taxes on luxuries and household articles.

Stiffened estate tax rates would produce $141,600,000, the Treasury said, and higher gift taxes 16 million dollars.

Administration tax machinery will swing immediately into action again after passage of the bill to frame another aimed chiefly at administrative efficiency, elimination of inequities and loophole plugging.

LaGuardia Leads; Maybank Winner In South Carolina

Republican renomination of Mayor LaGuardia of New York was claimed by his headquarters at midnight on the basis of returns from more than half the districts in yesterday's mayoralty primary.

John R. Davies, his opponent, however, claimed victory by 20,000 votes when returns from 2275 of 4060 districts gave Davies 23,710 and LaGuardia 32,137.

In South Carolina, Gov. Burnett Maybank won Democratic nomination, tantamount to election, to succeed Supreme Court Justice James F. Byrnes in the United States Senate. Former Gov. Olin D. Johnston conceded defeat when Maybank's lead passed the 20,000 mark.

Gargantua a Bum, He Avers

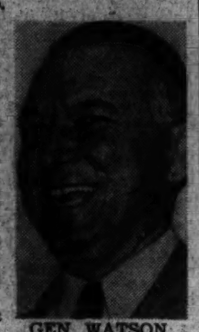
Free French Make D. C. Present Of Gorilla Fiercer Than Hitler

A huge and hairy envoy from Free French Africa—"the largest and most ferocious" gorilla ever to leave the Dark Continent—is on his way to the White House as a Simian ambassador to the United States from the forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

President Roosevelt, who has said he will be "delighted" to accept the animal as a gift, has been told that its ferocity symbolizes the Free French forces, who are "not the largest, but the most ferocious group of fighting men engaged in the struggle that is taking place today."

The Washington Post, by special arrangement, was able yesterday to interview the new ambassador, who is en route to New York by boat, via a ship-to-shore radio mix-up—er—hook-up.

GARGANTUA
Just a Sissy



GEN. WATSON
To Greet Gorilla

A transcript of the conversation, somewhat garbled due to atmospheric conditions, follows:

Reporter—What are your views on the international situation?

Gorilla—Wait till you see what a monkey I make of that bum, Gargantua.

Reporter—What do you think of Hitler?

Gorilla—He ought to be in this cage, not me.

Reporter—Are you looking forward to diplomatic receptions in Washington?

Gorilla—Do they serve free bananas?

Reporter—Can't you comment on the purpose of your trip?

Gorilla—Diplomats is the craziest pipple.

Reporter—What do you think of our American girls?

Gorilla—You can quote me as saying that Gargantua and M'Toto are going to phfft when I hit town.

The offer of the gorilla was made to the President by Jacques de Sieyes, a De Gaulle representative in this country, in the name of Gen. De Larminat, French general stationed with the De Gaulle forces in Africa. The unusual gift was announced by the White House.

The President delegated his brawny aide, Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, to meet the gorilla in New York and arrange for its transfer here.

Mr. Roosevelt instructed Watson to write back and say that he will be "delighted to accept the gorilla in the fine spirit in which it is offered."

It appeared likely yesterday that the powerful visitor will make his headquarters at the Washington Zoo under the care of Dr. William M. Mann, director, who would be very happy to add a gorilla, especially a diplomatic gorilla, to his collection.

Drivers Vote To End Truck Strike Here

Compromise Offered By Firms Accepted At Mass Meeting

Washington's eight-day-old truck strike ended yesterday when more than 800 drivers and helpers at a mass meeting voted to accept the operators' compromise proposals and return to work at midnight. Announcement of the settlement was made by Frank J. Sheehan of the Labor Department conciliation division.

Early last night, railroad representatives had not yet withdrawn the embargo on incoming less-than-carload freight, due to the fact that their Washington warehouses were still filled. Both the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore & Ohio railroads already had resorted to using freight cars for storage.

Members of the District of Columbia Trucking Association, party to the new agreement with the drivers, estimate that it will require ten days to two weeks, with men working overtime, before the accumulated freight in the warehouses is delivered, and trucking will resume to its normal volume.

A storehouse at Fourth and E Streets Southwest, used by the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Co., the Southern Railway System and the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, is filled to capacity, with almost 9000 pieces of freight. The Baltimore & Ohio's warehouse at Florida Avenue and Eckington Place Northeast was quickly reaching the same condition yesterday.

Railroad officials said last night that the embargo will be lifted just as soon as the jammed warehouses, freight yards and loading stations are cleared. The movement of full carload shipments has not been in-

A man was killed and a woman was critically injured last night in front of Mount Alto Hospital in the 2400 block of Wisconsin Avenue Northwest, when an auto plowed through a streetcar loading safety zone, and then crashed into a tree.

The dead man is Harry Zender, 69, of 804 Seventeenth Street Northwest, Marine Corps quartermaster sergeant. The injured woman is Mrs. Ida Shank, 47, of 2307 Fairlawn Avenue Southeast.

The crash victims were standing in the safety zone in the center of the street, waiting for a streetcar, when struck by the auto, which was southbound, police said.

The driver, Louis Bryant, 24, Negro, of 11 Virginia Avenue Southwest, said that his brakes failed and that he lost control of the car, according to police. Bryant was held for action of the coroner's jury.

The auto first hit Zender, and then Mrs. Shank, carrying the two victims along as it careened into the tree.

Zender and Mrs. Shank were rushed into the Mount Alto Hospital, and Zender died 20 minutes later. Mrs. Shank was said to be in critical condition. The driver of the car was not injured.

Mrs. Shank had been visiting her husband, Stuart, a World War veteran, at the hospital, and Zender had been there to see a friend, Miss Marion V. Cavanaugh. They left the hospital at about the same time.

Meanwhile, a coroner's jury exonerated John D. Jacobs, 28, of 2039

Schools to Join Campaign For 1c Milk; Drive Widens

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Community sentiment for a penny milk program reached a higher pitch yesterday as more juvenile welfare agencies made applications, announced their intentions to do so or began studying the question.

Today the Board of Education is expected to appoint a special committee to draft final plans for participation of schools in low income areas, subject to approval by the Surplus Marketing Administration.

Expressing hope that SMA will introduce penny half-pints in Washington for undernourished children, the Rev. Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, said he will apply at once for a project which would benefit needy youngsters living in the church's neighborhood.

"It would be a great thing," he said, "for the boys and girls who come to our Saturday morning classes and the Monday evening mother's club programs.

The church also is planning to start a nursery school for underprivileged children of working mothers, which would be another worthy outlet for the low-cost milk, which is subsidized by the SMA, an Agriculture Department

Lewis Rejects Plea to End Mine Strike

Mediation Board Hearing Set Today; Steel Industry Output Threatened

John L. Lewis yesterday rejected a Mediation Board request that he end immediately a strike of some 43,000 United Mine Workers in 30 "captive" mines operated by the Nation's largest steel companies.

He thus paved the way for a grim test of strength with the steel company heads before the Mediation Board today.

Lewis, as president of the U. M. W., told William H. Davis, board chairman, that the union "will defer consideration of this subject until it can be discussed at the hearing." The board had requested that the men return to work pending board efforts to bring about a settlement. Lewis previously has assailed what he called the practice of the board in inducing workers to end their strikes and thereby depriving them of an important weapon in the negotiations.

Stiff Fight Forecast

Today the mine union chieftain will have an opportunity to come to grips with such steel industry leaders as Tom M. Girdler, board chairman of Republic Steel Corporation; Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Co.; Benjamin Fairless, president of United States Steel Corporation, and Ernest Weir, board chairman of Weirton Steel Co., all of whom have been summoned to the hearing.

There was a manifest feeling in board circles yesterday that the case might well develop into one of the biggest the agency has yet handled.

Serious interference with steel production if the strike is protracted was being forecast in the industry, as output of the mines is needed for the roaring blast furnaces of steel plants. Few plants were said to have coal supplies sufficient to run more than two or three weeks.

Seek Union Shop Clause

The miners are striking for a union shop clause similar to that in contracts signed with the rest of the soft coal industry. Lewis pointed out at a press conference Monday that the contract recently signed for the Appalachian area gave the union the right to strike the entire Eastern bituminous field to protect competitive conditions of the agreement. The union shop clause would require every worker to join the union after a probationary period and remain in good standing.

Board Chairman Davis said he did not regard Lewis' rejection of the immediate-return proposal as a refusal but rather a subject to be discussed at today's hearing.

Indicative of the firmness with which both sides may be expected to maintain their positions, it was being recalled yesterday that United States Steel Corporation recently

Red Tape Slashed

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt hinted yesterday that the Navy has developed methods more effective than convoys for protecting lend-lease shipments to Britain, as the Atlantic fleet completed the first day of its new assignment to shoot on sight if necessary in escorting ships of any flag as far as Iceland.

The Chief Executive, at a press conference, refused to disclose details of how the Navy will enforce freedom of the seas, but he cautioned amateur strategists against thinking that there is only one method—convoys—of safeguarding ships at sea.

Details Kept Secret

He also told reporters that the naval situation will determine whether the public will be informed of further incidents at sea, if any occur.

While keeping secret these details of the new "shooting policy," the President revealed that he has taken steps to speed up the lend-lease program by cutting red tape. Already, he asserted, time consumed in clearing applications for lend-lease help has been cut in half.

Must Report Weekly

To effect the speed-up, the President delegated to Edward R. Stettinius, jr., former director of priorities for the Office of Production Management and now lend-lease administrator, authority for supervising the day-to-day operations of the lend-lease program.

Officials characterized the President's action as a broad delegation of authority, the most sweeping that he has made in connection with the lend-lease program.

Stettinius, it was learned, will have authority to sign allocations of lend-lease funds up to a total of 300 million dollars. When he reaches that limit, he must report back to the President for a renewal

Reprisals for Reprisals

Kidnapers Hold Son of Petain's Friend; Nazis Shoot 10 in Paris

By the Associated Press

Vichy, Sept. 16.—Shadowy gunmen made two new pistol assaults last night and today on German soldiers in Paris, in defiance of wholesale German reprisals in which ten more French hostages died at dawn before a Nazi firing squad.

One German noncommissioned officer was shot in the back and wounded gravely last night on the Boulevard Strasbourg, near the Gare de l'Est, in the heart of the occupied capital's commercial district.

Today another assailant fired several shots at a German soldier in a subway station. All of them missed.

Apparently both attackers escaped.

The tension in Paris was heightened still further tonight by disclosure of the kidnaping on September 8 of the 22-year-old son of Col. Alfred Heurteaux, a vice president of the French Legion of Honor and a close friend of Chief of State Petain. The youth's seizure came only a week after the old marshal converted the legion into France's sole political party. He still is missing.

The second attack occurred only a few hours after the execution of ten hostages, the youngest 19 and the oldest 72, in reprisal for previous attacks on Nazi soldiers.

They paid the supreme penalty for the attacks committed on three separate days by other persons still at large. None of the Germans was killed but now 13 French hostages are dead, a ratio of more than three Frenchmen executed for each German soldier attacked.

Today's announcement by Gen. Heinrich von Stuelpnagel, commander of the German forces in occupied France, gave, for the first time, the names and ages of those shot, but not their occupations or the reasons for their arrest.

There were Rene Lucien Manteron, 21; Rene Joli, 41; Lucien Leon Clement, 29; Albert Valentin Goke-

Pope's Refusal To Denounce Nazis Hinted

Won't Declare That War on Reich Is Just, Sources Report

By Herbert L. Matthews
By Telephone—Copyright, 1941, by New York Times

Rome, Sept. 16.—The Pope today gave Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal envoy to the Vatican, his reply to the President's message, and it appears on good Vatican authority to have been a polite "no."

The refusal is understood to have covered a request to the Holy See to declare that the war against nazism is a just war. However, the Pope's reply was evidently so worded as in no sense to indicate favor toward the Nazis or opposition to the American attitude. The problem appears to have been primarily an inability on the Pope's part to take sides and an unwillingness on doctrinal grounds to consider this or any war as just.

It should be emphasized that this information naturally does not and cannot have come from Taylor or from the secretariat of state, Luigi Cardinal Maglione. But it so happens that the Pope's reply has been some five days in formulating and during that time there has been much talk about it in high Vatican circles.

There it was understood that the crux of the President's letter was, as stated above, that the war against Germany be defined as "a just war." This point was said to have been preceded by a promise that the American Government would do all in its power to bring about religious liberty in Russia after the war, although no promise could be made of success. These two points are understood to have been part of a long letter containing many cordial and courteous references to the Pope's work for peace, the high regard in which Americans hold it, et cetera.

The reply is even longer and it, too, contains many words of kindness and cordiality toward the

Nazi Spy Net World-Wide, N.Y. Trial Told

Operations Extended From China to Dakar, Radio Messages Show

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 16.—The web of German military intelligence, spun in New York, extended from Alaska and Iceland to Brazil, China and Africa, and covered cities and whistle stops in the United States, according to evidence presented today at the trial of 16 men charged with espionage conspiracy.

U. S. Attorney Harold M. Kennedy read into the record a series of messages received at a secret "spy" radio station on Long Island—built and operated by American counterespionage agents.

Germany wanted to know, according to the messages from the Gestapo station in Hamburg, what planes were being built in Fairbanks, Alaska, and whether a friend of Frederick Duquesne, 63, a defendant characterized by the Government as a "spy for the last 40 years," could spy in Dakar, Africa.

The message mentioned microphotographs—on which thousands of words were reduced to a picture the size of a postage stamp—being transported by spies on the high seas; and they directed the transmission of secret documents, diagrams and war mechanisms through agents in Rio de Janeiro and Shanghai. Payment came from Mexico City.

Hamburg demanded, "What preparations has United States made in Greenland and Iceland for convoys?" five months before American occupation of Iceland was announced.

William G. Sebold, who turned over his assignment in German espionage to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, testified that Duquesne dispatched to Germany pictures, diagrams, and detailed information on the Garand rifle, naval movements in the Caribbean, Chrysler tanks, gas masks, anti-gas devices, aerial bombs and grenades, life-belt textiles and a secret type

Vermont Declares It's at War Since 'Shooting Order'

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 16 (AP).—Vermont, always the rugged individualist, regards itself as officially at war.

Both branches of the State Legislature adopted a resolution today declaring the United States has been in "armed conflict" since President Roosevelt's speech of last Thursday, in which he ordered the Navy to strike first at Axis warships entering American defensive waters.

Approval of the resolution now makes operative a law providing for payment of a $10 monthly bonus to each Vermonter in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps in the event of armed conflict. A sum of $500,000 was appropriated to meet the bonuses.

The resolution said that the term "armed conflict" as used in the existing law "shall be construed liberally and shall include a state of national emergency wherein the President of the United States shall, as commander in chief of the Army and Navy, order such branches of Government to exercise force to protect lives and property which are or may be endangered by the hostile acts of any foreign powers.

U. S. Embassy Protests Nazi Jailing of Citizen

Vichy, France, Sept. 16 (U.P.).—The United States Embassy at Berlin was disclosed today to have made a new protest in an effort to obtain liberation of Arthur Moulton, 60-year-old American millionaire, who is held by German occupation authorities in France.

The American consular officials learned of his arrest at his chateau near Paris before the officials were obliged to leave the occupied French capital.

Despite diplomatic intervention, it was reported Moulton still is held in solitary confinement in the old Fresnes prison, where he sleeps on a straw mattress. No charges have been filed against him.

German authorities at Berlin told the embassy that an inquiry is in progress but there has been no result after two months. Moulton lived for many years in France and refused many embassy suggestions that he go home because of the war. He did war work and turned his chateau into a French army hospital.

Party for Windsors to Be Informal

An informal luncheon at the White House for the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, with President Roosevelt acting as host, will feature the famous couple's 24-hour stay in Washington September 25.

The White House said yesterday that the President, because he considers the duke an old friend from the days when they met at the Paris Peace Conference, has asked Windsor and his Baltimore-born consort, the former Wallis Warfield, to be his luncheon guests.

Protocol formalities will be entirely absent from the occasion. It was learned yesterday that the State Department's only function in connection with the royal visit will be to greet the couple at Union Station when they arrive and see them off when they depart.

No 'Pressure' on Movies

Roosevelt Jeers at Film Quiz, Cites Bible's 'War Propaganda'

President Roosevelt, asserting he has noticed no war propaganda in the movies, yesterday ridiculed the Senate subcommittee investigating the film industry.

When asked if the Government had brought pressure to bear on the movie makers to include war propaganda in their output, the President replied that Government was a broad word and said that neither he, nor to his knowledge, any of his subordinates had done so.

In connection with charges that Jewish movie executives have given the films a warlike tone, the President read aloud to a press conference a telegram, a copy of which had been sent to a member of the subcommittee by an unnamed person in Connecticut. It said:

"Have just been reading book called Holy Bible. Has large circulation in this country. Written entirely by foreign born, mostly Jews. First part full of dangerous warmongering propaganda. Second condemns isolationists with fake story about Samaritan. Dangerous. Should be added to your list and suppressed."

The President also called attention to a cartoon in yesterday's Washington Evening Star with commendation. It showed Charlie Chaplin holding a subcommittee subpena in his hand and asking: "What could I teach those past masters about

Germans Pushing East From Dnieper Report Successes Along Whole Front

(Detailed Accounts, Pages 2, 3.)

The Russian air force has launched a mass offensive against panzer divisions, infantry, artillery and airdromes behind the lines along the whole Russo-German front, the Soviet information bureau said early today.

At the same time a broad German push eastward from the lower Dnieper River was reported by Adolf Hitler's headquarters to top off claims of Nazi successes ranging the full length of the 2000-mile Russian front.

A special German communique told of a crushing victory over three Russian armies roughly 150 miles south of Leningrad. It said nine divisions were "completely annihilated and nine others crushed," 53,000 men captured and 320 tanks, 695 cannon either captured or smashed. (On a division strength of 15,000, this would imply a Russian loss of 270,000 men.)

Dover Coast Shelled

Meanwhile, German agency dispatches told of steady inroads into the ring of redoubts around Leningrad itself.

This morning's Russian's communique announced that a second Nazi attempt to land troops by air and sea on the Soviet island base of Oesel, near the mouth of the Gulf of Finland, had been smashed, with most of the invading troops annihilated and the remainder driven into the sea.

Fighter planes of the R. A. F. swept over the Channel coast of France yesterday in an offensive which cost the Germans six planes to two British ships lost. The Nazis retaliated last night by shelling the Dover coast with their Big Berthas.

The British air ministry disclosed that the R. A. F. had sunk a German patrol vessel off the Dutch coast at the cost of two planes.

Axis warplanes, in defiance of a British threat of retaliation against Rome, bombed Cairo for the first time, killing 39 persons and wounding 93.

Damage Called Slight

The raiding planes dropped both high-explosive and incendiary bombs. Despite the number of casualties, property damage was described by the Egyptian ministry of the interior as slight.

In London, W. Averell Harriman, head of the American delegation to the Moscow war needs conference, said considerable quantities of American war materials already have gone to Russia and the amount is increasing.

Now that the Germans have crossed the Dnieper in the Ukraine, he said, the American government feels there is added urgency for the Anglo-American delegations to get to Moscow and begin their conference with Stalin and other officials.

New signs appeared on the horizon last night indicating extension of the war to the southeast.

Bulgaria and Turkey seemed to have arrived at the vortex. A dispatch to the London Daily Express reported that Turkey now lies "in immenent danger of invasion" from Bulgaria by large German and Bulgarian forces assembled in the Slavic kingdom bordering on the western Black Sea.

Reds Smash 2d Sea Drive on Leningrad

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Wednesday), Sept. 17.—The Red air force has launched a mass offensive against German panzer divisions, infantry, artillery and airdromes behind the lines along the whole front, it was reported today as the Soviet Information Bureau announced the smashing of a second Nazi attempt to land troops by air and sea on the Russian held island of Oesel.

"As a result of two days fierce fighting" the Soviet communique said, "the bulk of the enemy marine and air landing parties was annihilated and the remnants thrown into the sea."

Many transports, small craft and air ferry planes were used in the second German attempt to storm the island after the Russians reported destroying four German transports and one destroyer in the first attempt last Saturday.

Part of Leningrad's Defense

Defense of Oesel Island is part of the defense of Leningrad to the east at the end of the Baltic.

Before that beleaguered city, the Russians said today that big Red tanks had smashed into German positions, destroying 48 Nazi tanks and armored cars, 27 guns and 13 mine throwers.

Altogether, Red fleet units and shore batteries sank a total of 30-odd Nazi naval craft in the Baltic and Arctic Seas, and the transports sunk off Oesel contained tanks as well as troops, the Russians said.

Heavy fighting along the entire front continued with Red airmen attacking en masse against Nazi panzer divisions, artillery nests and German airdromes, the communique added.

Baltic, Rumanian Black Sea port near the Bulgarian border, was bombed.

Rain-Soddened Front

On a rain-soddened front around Leningrad, regular Red troops were supported by a huge citizen army.

In one sector of that front some girl volunteers aided in desperate charges and were said to have dislodged the Germans from a series of fortress islands in the River "N" (presumably the Neva).

Farther to the north—somewhere in the Arctic region—Soviet forces were declared to have routed a regiment of the thirtieth German infantry division and to have "inflicted a heavy defeat" on the nineteenth tank division.

German forces driven from a town in this theater, said military dispatches, left a battalion and a half of dead.

Nazi Sea Losses Given

Reported smashed by Soviet warships and bombers in continuing efforts to sweep the invader from Leningrad's water approaches were seven German transports, three escorting warships, seven cutters and two barges. Lost with these vessels, it was added, were great numbers of German troops.

While the fleet thus was active in all the northern waters, the great guns of the Kronstadt naval base near Leningrad joined in the defense.

The Soviet command's afternoon communique repeated the familiar report that heavy fighting went on everywhere.

Other Russian sources, however, pointing to the fact that nasty weather already had begun in the Leningrad area, spoke of the coming winter campaign which they said would be as disastrous for Adolf Hitler as it was for Napoleon.

"Our people," observed the Communist newspaper Pravda, "are entering the winter campaign confidently, stout-heartedly, wholly prepared. The thick fog, the whirling snowstorm which hold no terror for the physically hardened Russian soldier will do their part toward insuring the Hitlerite marauders the same fate as the Napoleonic army."

Guerrillas Praised

For the second successive day activities of guerrillas was stressed. Two instances of their stealthy work were thus detailed by the Soviet command:

Near Smolensk young guerrillas swam a river at night, crept up to a German command post and showered it with hand grenades, killing 30 German officers and men.

In another and unslated area sharp steel spikes were planted in the forest lanes to puncture tires of German motorcycles. The riders, dismounting, were killed from ambush and their orders turned over to Soviet officers.

Shah Abdicates As Invaders Near Teheran

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 16.—Reza Shah Pahlavi abdicated the throne of Iran today while British and Russian armies marched on his capital to enforce their demands for expulsion or delivery to the Allies of Axis nationals in that Middle East kingdom.

The 63-year-old Shah was succeeded by his 21-year-old son, the Shahpur (Crown Prince) Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, but an authoritative source here stated that the Allied forces nevertheless planned immediate occupation of Teheran. Reuters, British news agency, said these forces were only a few miles from Teheran tonight.

They are expected to enter the capital tomorrow.

Orders for the occupation, which the British and Russians previously have avoided, came after the Shah and his government were accused of dilatory tactics in complying with terms of the peace that ended the recent short military campaign.

No Opposition Expected

No opposition from the Iranians was expected. The source here confirmed the Shah's abdication, but said this had no effect on the orders for occupation of Teheran, which had been pending for several days. British and Russian forces already occupy large sections of Iran in the north and south, including the oil fields.

It was stressed here that Britain and Russia both were impatient with what was called the Shah's pro-Axis inclination and efforts to delay as long as possible the ouster of German-Italian, Hungarian and Rumanian nationals and surrender of German agents to the Allies.

Tass, official Russian news agency, mentioned Finland for the first time among the nations whose diplomats were to be expelled from Iran, and said the Shah himself had approved a pro-Axis newspaper article against which the Russian and British envoys in Teheran recently protested.

The British source agreed that it had become obvious that "hidden influences were hindering our work wherever possible and were helping the Germans."

Health Given as Reason

A Teheran dispatch filed before the abdication said Russian troops already had occupied the town of Karaj, 28 miles northwest of Teheran.

The Teheran radio announced the Shah's abdication before the Iranian Parliament, ill health being given as the official reason.

Thus, after 16 years, ended the imperial career of the peasant, one-time tailor's apprentice and former Cossack who became His Majesty Mirza Reza Shah Pahlavi, Shah of all the Persians, Shahanshah (King of Kings), creator of modern Iran and possessor of a great personal fortune.

Although almost illiterate, he was reported at one time to have 150 million dollars on deposit in American and European banks and to have an annual income of 10 million from his Iranian fields and factories.

Among other projects he built the 180-million-dollar railway from the Persian Gulf to the Caspian Sea which now provides a good land route for the movement of supplies to Russia. His gold-plated private car on that line was made in Germany.

Replacing him on the throne of Darius is the 21-year-old son whom Iranians complained was spoiled by being educated in Switzerland.

The young Shah is a tall, slender youth, strong-featured and beetle-browed. Schooled as a soldier, he has found pleasure in riding with his troops on horseback, but particularly in 80-mile-an-hour jaunts around the palace grounds in his powerful automobile.

He was married in 1939 to Fawzia, sister of King Farouk, of Egypt. They have an infant daughter, born last October. (With Farouk loyal to Britain, the new Shah might be inclined to similar friendship. However, Adolf Hitler sent special emissaries by plane to his wedding as a token of esteem.)

Germans Pushing East From Dnieper

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Sept. 16.—A broad German push eastward from the lower Dnieper River was reported by Adolf Hitler's headquarters today to top off claims of successes ranging the full length of the 2,000-mile Russian front.

A special communique reported a crushing victory over three Russian armies—the Eleventh, Twenty-seventh and Thirty-fourth—in the north-central sector, roughly 150 miles south of Leningrad. It said nine divisions were "completely annihilated" nine others crushed south of Lake Ilmem, 53,000 men captured and 320 tanks, 695 cannon either captured or smashed.

[On a division strength of 15,000, this would imply a Russian loss of 270,000 men.]

Move Against Crimea Hinted

[Military sources in Berlin claimed the fate of Leningrad has been sealed, the United Press reported.]

The high command said German land troops strongly supported by the air force established bridgeheads on the Dnieper, held and widened them in several days of fierce fighting against Soviet tanks and infantry, and now had thrust on to the east. Some reports said they already were penetrating the Nogaisk Steppe, indicating a possible move to isolate the heavily fortified Crimean Peninsula from the mainland.

Around Leningrad, D. N. B. said German infantry broke through stubbornly defended bunkers Sunday, putting 91 out of action and capturing 800 Russians, then seized an unidentified "larger community" behind the forts. Previously more than 200 of these bunkers had been reported taken.

The high command, however, reported no specific developments either around Leningrad or besieged Odessa on the Black Sea, but news agencies and front line correspondents emphasized the crossing of the great Dnieper River barrier.

Russians Shelled for Days

Karl Eckert, a German war correspondent, said the Fuehrer's forces had been streaming across the Dnieper for at least a week, while the Red air force strove repeatedly to destroy the temporary bridges spanning that vital water course.

An authorized military spokesman said the Dnieper bridgeheads were established by keeping the Russian positions under artillery and air bombardment for days on end.

A Wilhelmstrasse commentator said the Russians had considered themselves safe behind the lower river, 1000 yards wide and 18 feet deep. The admitted poor weather had held the Germans back for a while, but said the skies had cleared and German troops had "new tasks" to perform.

Railway Broken

There was speculation as to whether cutting off the Crimea might be one of these tasks, in fashion similar to the isolation of the Peloponnesus in the Greek campaign last April.

The railway traversing the narrow isthmus to the Crimean already has been "broken in many places" by German bombardment, and an important railway station has been hit, according to D. N. B. Soviet fortifications in the area have been bombed repeatedly, the news agency added.

Shipping in the Black Sea off the Crimea also has been pounded.

At the other extremity of the front, two Soviet transports were reported sunk and another damaged by dive bomber attacks on Murmansk and its vicinity.

Other German planes bombed Soviet positions around Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, claiming destruction of 21 Russian tanks and 14 planes there.

In all the Russian lost 96 planes Monday, the agency stated.

Observers in Berlin were surprised at the announcement of the great victory on the north-central front near Lake Ilmen, for it had been assumed that area had been cleared of the Russians long ago.

This impression, Dienst Aus Deutschland, the authoritative commentary, explained, was due to characteristic encirclement tactics designed to immobilize large concentrations of an enemy then gradually move in and destroy them. Dienst added that Berlin military circles were convinced the report of this action "gave only one phase of general developments in the east."

The high command commuique said the battle of destruction had occurred during past weeks, and it credited airmen under Col. Gen. Keller with a large share in the victory of Col. Gen. Busch's troops.

[A Stockholm dispatch by Reuters, British news agency, reported the Germans had captured the island of Vormsi, which lies between the Estonian mainland and the inalsd of Dagoe. The Russians still hold fortified Dagoe and Oesel.]

R. A. F. Downs 6 Nazi Planes Over France

By George Lait

International News Service Staff Writer

London, Sept. 16.—Fighter planes of the R. A. F. swept over the Channel coast of France today in a blitz offensive which cost the German Luftwaffe six planes to only two British ships lost, and Germany retaliated tonight with her cross-Channel Big Berthas.

The air ministry disclosed that during the day Blenheim bombers sank a German patrol vessel off the Dutch coast, losing one bomber, and then hurled its fighters across the Channel to mix with the Luftwaffe in mass dogfights.

At 9 o'clock the giant shells of the German long-range guns began falling in the Dover area. The visibility was unusually good and watchers on the British coast could see the flashes of the Nazi big guns based at Cap Gris Nez.

Resumption of trans-channel shelling by the Germans was apparent response to the afternoon R. A. F. fighter offensive and gigantic R. A. F. raids on northwest Germany and the French coast last night and early today in which more than 200 R. A. F. bombers participated.

It began shortly after Germany for the first time publicly acknowledged to the German people that American volunteers are fighting against them in British units.

The Daily Express reported hearing the official Berlin radio announce that R. A. F. Sergt. Robert Thomas Wood, of Dallas, Tex., had been made a prisoner of war. In all previous German official announcements no statement has been made which would confirm to the German people that Americans enlisted with the British are fighting against them.

The gigantic raids conducted by the 200 R. A. F. bombers and their escorts of hundreds of fighter planes began under cover of darkness last night and continued into today.

Hamburg was the particular target, but bombs also were dropped on Cuxhaven, Wilhelmshaven and Le Havre. Many fires in the shipyards and rail canters were started in Hamburg, which was subjected to a raid lasting several hours. The raid on Le Havre also was described as particularly heavy. Nine British planes were reported missing.

Sidelights of the War

American to Make Nazis Pay for Worthless Money

Winnipeg, Sept. 16 (AP).—William Kallahan, 24, of Kansas City, enlisted in the Royal Canadian Air Force today with a vow that he'll make some German pay for the worthless 10,000-mark note his father purchased for $10 while serving in France during the last war.

N. Y. Harbor Jammed

New York, Sept. 16 (AP).—New York Harbor was jammed with ships today.

A procession of 104 vessels—53 of them British, Dutch and Norwegian—arrived in the 36 hours from Sunday midnight to noon today, and harbor officials said that not in years had they seen so many in port at one time. The majority were tankers but a number were whaling ships.

1418 Lost on Hood

London, Sept. 16 (AP).—A total of 1418 men were lost in the sinking of the battle cruiser Hood by the German battleship Bismarck last May 25, the admiralty announced tonight.

Of these, 94 were officers. There were 3 survivors.

(About the same number of Germans is believed to have been lost in the subsequent destruction of the Bismarck by British planes and warships.)

King Peter of Age

London, Sept. 16 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill, the King and Queen and heads of Great Britain's allied governments attended a service today at St. Paul's Cathedral celebrating the coming of age of King Peter II of Yugoslavia. He was 18 on September 6.

It was the greatest gathering of rulers and officials in London since the outbreak of war.

Shanghai Bombing

Shanghai (Thursday), Sept. 17 (AP).—An explosion in the offices of the Japanese-organized and operated Central China Telecommunications Co. in the Cathay Hotel today interrupted the company's world-wide services. Company officials expressed belief it was a time bomb, but said no one was injured.

Korean Revolt Quelled

Tokyo, Sept. 16 (AP).—Arrest of 72 leaders in an attempt by a secret Korean Christian society to overthrow the Manchukuo regime was reported today by Domei in a dispatch from Hsinking, capital of Japanese-dominated Manchukuo.

Wheeler Attacks President's Order To Shoot First

Billings, Mont., Sept. 16 (AP).—Senator Burton K. Wheeler, (Democrat), of Montana, said tonight that if President Roosevelt intends to take this Nation into war "then let it be done the constitutional way and not in the manner of the Hitlers and the Stalins and the Mussolinis."

He spoke over a National Broadcasting Co. hookup.

Referring to the President's orders to the Navy to shoot in meeting any threats of Axis warships, in this country's defensive waters, Wheeler said:

"Mr. President, on the night of September 11, 1941, you told a tense nation that you had ordered the Navy to shoot. You, Mr. President, ordered shooting after you had said that shooting meant war. You ordered shooting, Mr. President, after you had made those solemn promises not to send American boys to fight in foreign wars."

Hamburg Admits Plant Damage

Berlin, Sept. 16 (AP).—A Hamburg propaganda office communique tonight said "small" damage was done to the city's industrial plants in last night's R. A. F. raid and "in no case has loss of production resulted."

"As a result of a short circuit," it was added, "siren apparatus in various sections of the city was put out of order."

Six bombers were said to have been shot down in the Hamburg area.

However, the newspaper Hamburger Fremdenblatt said destruction in one thickly settled residential street was "staggering."

"To the right and left houses caved in, and form a disorderly pile of ruins," said the newspaper.

Axis Bombs Cairo, Defying British Threat Against Rome

Cairo, Sept. 16 (AP).—Axis warplanes—(in defiance of a British threat of retaliation against Rome)—bombed Cairo for the first time early today in an attack which killed 39 persons and wounded 93.

(Britain, in a warning direct from the Prime Minister's residence in London, had on April 18 informed the prime minister's residence Athens or Cairo were bombed reprisals would be carried out against Rome.

[Further, it was stated that once the bombing of the Italian capital started it would "continue as convenient to the end of the war."

[The Axis never did bomb Athens proper in the course of the attack on Greece, and until today had respected the Egyptian capital, a city holy to the Moslem world much as Rome is to Catholics.]

The raiding planes dropped both high-explosive and incendiary bombs on Cairo. Despite the number of casualties, property damage was described by the Egyptian ministry of the interior as slight.

Antiaircraft guns blazed at the attackers, and raid alarms were sounded in several provinces.

The raid came at the beginning of what is expected to be a period of renewed vigorous warfare in the North African theater as the heat of the western desert nears its seasonal end. Only yesterday the British command here announced that two Axis armored columns had struck 35 miles into Egypt and then were forced back to the Libyan border in the first Axis offensive move in Libya for many weeks. (The Italians also announced the thrust but said nothing of the retreat reported by the British.)

[Neither the Rome nor Berlin communiques mentioned an attack on Cairo.]

The principal and the other American staff members were in a shelter. These Americans included Miss Sarah B. Meloy, Evanston, Ill.; Evelyn McFarland, New Wilmington, Pa.; Marylu Welch, East Liverpool, Ohio; Helen J. Martin, Pittsburgh, and Mary Stevenson, Sterling, Kan.

Italy 'Land of Fear,' Americans Report

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Sept. 16.—Some highly placed Americans who have just returned from Rome, where they had lived for several years, painted this picture of Italy today:

Premier Mussolini, a sick and disappointed man, living in semi-seclusion, watched by the Gestapo; former Air Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, dying of cancer of the throat; Marshal Pietro Badoglio, former commander in chief of the armed forces, under arrest in Rome; the duped Italian people openly declaring they would rather be a British than a German colony, and enough German troops in occupation of Italy to put down any revolution within 30 minutes.

The informants, who were in close daily contact with high Italian officials and in favorable position to gauge Italian opinion, were emphatic that no one in Italy wants an Axis victory. Ever since the day the Germans moved in—first disguised in Italian army uniforms, but later openly in full German war kit—the Italian nation has known that whoever wins this war, Italy has lost it.

Anything But Fight

The sole idea of the average Italian is said to be to get to Germany as a worker, or to be taken prisoner by the British—anything to keep out of the fighting, in which they have no interest.

Mussolini—who is said to have prepared a hideaway in Argentina ready to receive him when he has to fly from Italy—remains popular with the Italian people despite his fatal mistake in entering the war against the wishes of the vast majority of his own advisers. The Italian people are reported to take this viewpoint because they believe that Mussolini, like themselves, is not a partner, but a prisoner, of the Axis.

They know what happens to high-placed Italians who dare to oppose Germany's will. There was, for instance, the case of Alfredo Bocchini, minister of the interior and chief of the Rome police, who was accused by Berlin of being too lenient with British subjects in Italy, only one-third of whom have been interned. The Gestapo is said to have demanded that Bocchini turn over the concentration camps to German control. He replied: "While I am in charge of the Italian police I will run my own concentration camps." A week later Bocchini was dead, suddenly and mysteriously of food poisoning.

Called Land of Fear

Italy is pictured as a land of fear. The Italians are afraid of the Germans, of the British air raids, of American intervention and of the coming winter. To every suggestion that Italy should try, even at this hour, to save her soul by revolt against the occupying Germans, the inveriable reply, according to the informants, is, "We are afraid."

Amazing scenes of panic have been reported in Naples and other points during British air raids. Inhabitants of Rome say frankly that their greatest air-raid insurance is the Pope. Believing Rome will not be bombed, all who can have flocked into that city.

The informants were in Rome when the R. A. F. dropped leaflets over the city some time ago, and they described the scene in the streets when the sirens went off as beyond belief. There was instant hysteria on every side. Men fainted on the pavements, hid under tables in restaurants and pushed women aside to get into the few air-raid shelters.

Labor Crop for Hitler

With Italian morale thus reduced, and the nation's war potential smashed with a large part of the navy at the bottom of the sea, it is believed that, while the Italian army may put in further token appearances in Libya or elsewhere, the country is already virtually out of the war as a combatant, and will stay out.

The importance of Italy to Reichsfuehrer Hitler is now as a source of supply for labor for German farms and factories, and as a place to grow food. At least half a million Italians already have gone to work in Germany—and plenty more are ready to go when needed, for the Nazis have looted Italy's larders so thoroughly that the Italian laborers in German factories are said to be fed better on Italian food—than their compatriots in Italy.

Food moves to Germany in a continuous stream in return for coal. The coal feeds the furnaces of Italian war factories; none is available for private dwellings, and the price of wood for fuel has risen 400 per cent above the high pre-war prices. Winter in the northern half of the country can be extremely cold, and during the last cold spell the informants paid nearly $100 a week to keep a large house, where they were staying near Milan, heated after a fashion.

In once-smiling Italy the bread—made largely of corn and potatoes—is almost uneatable; spaghetti strictly rationed and almost black, all rice and olive oil are sent to Germany, bacon is unknown and native wines are 300 per cent dearer than a year ago, since virtually the entire supply is used to extract alcohol for fuel oil. There has been no meat to speak of for two months, and coffee is $12 a pound when you can find it.

Sofia Rejects Soviet Protest

By the United Press

Sofia, Sept. 16.—The government today rejected a Soviet note protesting that Bulgaria was permitting Germany and Italy to mass warships in her harbors for an attack on the Russian Black Sea coast.

[Fifty women and children, families of the Soviet legation at troubled Sofia, have arrived in Turkey en route home, and Soviet circles believe this may be preliminary to an imminent Russian declaration of war against Bulgaria, N. B. C.'s reporter in Ankara said in a broadcast last night.]

[In New York the United Press listening post heard the Rome radio broadcast a denial that Bulgaria had ordered partial mobilization.]

The Bulgarian note deplored "often repeated" air attacks on Bulgarian territory and said it had been definitely established that both explosives and parachutists released over Bulgarian territory were of Russian origin.

It added that Bulgarian defense measures were "clearly an internal affair aimed to protect the country from subversive elements."

The Bulgarian note, replying to a Russian note of protest dated September 11, denied Russia's charge that Admiral Erich Raeder, commander in chief of the German navy, who has been in Bulgaria several weeks, was building up a Black Sea fleet of German and Bulgarian submarines. The Bulgarian note expressed surprise at Soviet allegations that Bulgaria would be used as a base for an attack on Russia.

Turkey Seen Perilled

London, Sept. 17 (Wednesday) (INS).—The Daily Express reported today that Turkey lies "in imminent danger of invasion" by the Axis.

This peril is due to the "urgent German need to reach the oil fields" of the Soviet Caucasus, Iraq or Iran in the shortest possible time, the correspondent reported.

R.A.F. to Bomb Reich Taking Planes to Reds

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 16.—Mass delivery of big, long-range bombers direct from the United Kingdom to Russia, with tons of bombs being dumped on Berlin and other German cities en route, was forecast tonight by persons close to the Anglo-American missions to Moscow.

These "live ferry" formation flights, combining quick transfer of planes to Russia and bomb devastation deep in the Reich, would require less than 1500 miles of flying, only a few hundred miles farther than the present round-trip the R. A. F. makes between Britain and Berlin.

[They would successively adapt a plan first advanced during the Polish campaign, but never tried at the time because of Britain's lack of heavy planes.]

Hundreds of fighter planes already are being sent from Britain to the U. S. S. R., Prime Minister Churchill has disclosed, but their delivery is slow and dependent, at least in part, on roundabout ship routes.

As both United States and British missions prepared to proceed quickly to Moscow, British sources said that while the Germans are believed to have withdrawn 500,000 men from western occupied countries to fill depleted ranks in Russia those transferred apparently have been replaced by younger or older soldiers, leaving 800,000 Germans still garrisoned in western Europe.

This was taken as an answer to a new outbreak of newspaper pleas for a quick British incursion into the Continent to compel the Germans to return troops and planes to the west and relieve the pressure on the Red Army. (The Russians, not discouraging these pleas, have asserted that many garrisons in western Europe are held by old or wounded Germans.)

Some well-informed quarters now believe, however, that decisions by Britain and the United States to rush all possible aid to the Eastern Front have made immediate large-scale operations in the west a very remote possibility. This belief is supported by Home Secretary Herbert Morrison's statement that Britain is retaining only enough of her arms output to insure her own safety, and sending the remainder to Russia.

Already, diversion of British planes to Russia has been accompanied by a slackening of the R. A. F.'s continental fighter offensive which, in midsummer, sent hundreds of Spitfires daily over northern France.

As for the United States, W. Averell Harriman, head of the American mission to Moscow, said today that shipments of United States raw materials and finished products now reaching Russia in substantial amounts would be increased despite the "great problems involved." American ships, he added, were going freely across the Pacific to Vladivostok.

Skipper of Bombed U. S. Ship Says Raid Was Hot but Short

By Edward Kennedy
Associated Press Staff Writer

An Egyptian Port, Sept. 16.—The German bombing attack on the 6997-ton American freighter Arkansan early Friday was "like Dante's inferno while it lasted," the vessel's skipper, Capt. Paul Jones, of Gloucester, Mass., said today.

"But it didn't last long," he said, with a twinkle in his eye. (Previous reports have stated the attack was at Suez after the ship's arrival from the United States. Two of the crew of 38 were wounded.)

Joseph Martin, of Portland, Oreg., received a cut on the scalp from a fragment as he put his head through a doorway to see what was going on.

"Next time I'm going to keep my head inside," he said.

William Lewis, of New York, had the ligaments of his right hand severed by a splinter. He's still in the hospital.

"We pulled in Thursday night," Jones related.

"They dropped a stick of bombs right cross us. One fell off the starboard but it was the next one, just off port, that did the damage.

"There was a blast that ripped the barometer and other instruments apart, then there was a shower of steel all over the ship."

The Arkansan has some holes on the port side. The superstructure also bears numerous scars.

Meanwhile, Capt. William Hallday, of Baltimore, and the 35 other crewmen of the American ship Steel Seafarer, sunk in the Red Sea by an Axis bomber September 7, will return home aboard another American vessel in a few weeks. Isthmian Line representatives said arrangements were under way to expedite their passage.

The President's Day

By International News Service

OVERTIME: Mr. Roosevelt's carefully planned schedule for yesterday was knocked into a cocked hat as soon as it began by a couple of publishing cronies. New York Publisher Sulzberger arrived to pay his respects in the allotted 10 minutes, was still closeted with the President an hour later. When Sulzberger finally exited, smiling quietly, Chicago Publisher Thomasson entered to pay respects in 10 minutes. Twenty-five minutes later Thomasson was still paying his respects and the nice, neat schedule was a shambles.

GOOD NEWS: For a change, a caller came with good news. FDIC Chairman Leo Crowley bounced in, only took 10 minutes to tell the President that the Nation's banks were fit as fiddles, sound as kettle drums, got Mr. Roosevelt's appreciative smile and kind words.

IT'S AN ILL WIND, ETC.: Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago got a break out of the severely confused schedule, was asked to share a lunch tray with the big boss as a reward for his uncomplaining wait of almost two hours. Sandwished between the lengthy talks with the publishers was Defense Mediation Boardman William H. Davies. The Secretary of War was scratched as the President ran way off time.

CALM: A quiet, calm and collected Mr. Roosevelt in a white shirt and black tie greeted the press in the afternoon with no quips or laughs but delivered no barbed replies to their questions this time either.

FOUR BELLS: Single bright balloon sent up by F. D. R. for the edification of the correspondents was his comment on the Senatorial investigation of the movies. He said firmly that he hadn't, as a great movie-goer, noticed any war propaganda in the pictures, read out a sarcastic wire from someone in Connecticut to a certain Senator—presumably one on the investigating committee. The press enjoyed it hugely, so did the President.

SIGNEE: To relieve his writer's cramp and speed up lend-lease the President said he had tapped Ed Stettinius to sign all the applications on L-L items for him, boosted him from $1 to $10,000 a year. On his desk before him in the incoming correspondence basket loomed a paper mountain awaiting the freed President's signature.

HYDE PARK?: Tired and greyish beneath his summer tan, the President has had a tough, distressing week, may possibly leave for Hyde Park and a brief rest within the next few days.

We THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES...

On September 17, 1787—154 years ago—the Constitution was adopted. It says . . . "We, the people of the United States . . ." want to accomplish certain things, and to enjoy a certain form of government. And the gist, the most important word and thought, the thing that makes the Constitution a great, vital and human document lies in one word of the preamble . . . "We." There is the strength, the beauty and the rightness of our way of life. It means that "we," you and I, and the majority of our fellow Americans—not just a small part of them—want to live and order our lives to suit ourselves.

Hence one word, and those things for which it stands, makes the Constitution great. So in these chaotic times, let's more than ever cling to that word, and to the Constitution and its meaning, for it is a unified, united people that get things done. "We" do, therefore, and will continue to "form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity."

All Contracts Let For 2-Ocean Navy

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The Navy announced yesterday that every ship authorized in the two-ocean fleet program is now under contract and declared that when it is completed the Nation will have "the greatest array of fighting ships the world has ever seen."

Orders have been placed in the last 20 months for a total of 2831 ships of all types, costing $7,234,262,178, it was disclosed. This does not include $460,000,000 recently allocated for expanding shipbuilding facilities to speed up production.

The Navy Department estimated that an additional 125,000 men will be required by the Nation's shipyards by next July to carry forward the program on schedule, raising the number of ship workers employed on naval orders to about 500,000 men.

"Astounding Progress'

"Astonishing progress" has been made in speeding forward the huge naval expansion program, the department declared, and then set forth figures designed to prove it.

A total of 968 of the vessels ordered are already under construction, it was said. These include 17 battleships, 12 aircraft carriers, 6 battle cruisers, 8 heavy cruisers, 40 light cruisers, 74 submarines and 197 destroyers.

In addition, 193 merchant vessels have been taken over by the Navy and converted to war use, while 81 ships are now undergoing such conversion. By the end of the year, 258 such sea-going auxiliary ships and 500 smaller vessels will have been added to the Navy roster, it was said, bringing the total of such craft to about 1130.

Speed-up Measures

Navy tables disclosed that the keels of 436 ships have been laid thus far this year, compared with but 156 during 1940. In 1940 there were 60 ships launched and 47 put in commission, compared with 249 launchings and 213 ships commissioned in 1941.

The Navy credited these results to four speed-up measures taken: (1) Introduction of production-line methods; (2) duplication of existing vessels as far as was practical; (3) introduction of the 48-hour week and three-shift, 24-hour day, and (4) decentralization of ship-construction control by installing supervisors at shipyards with authority to make decisions without referring them to Washington.

Since the European War began, the Navy said it had put 135 combatant ships into service, more than were commissioned in the 14 years between 1922 and 1937.

of his authority. In addition, the President told reporters, Stettinius will report to him weekly on what allocations have been made.

The grant of authority to Stettinius, the nature of whose duties had hitherto been vague, will relieve Henry L. Hopkins, the President's lend-lease supervisor, for consultative work on broader phases of policy.

There were numerous reports and discussions last night of steps, aside from convoying, which the Navy might be taking.

Constant Patrols

One, reported by the New York Times, described United States bombers and observation planes, as well as ships, operating from key points in constant, unending patrols, with quick concentration at danger spots as they develop provided for. Such a plan would permit faster ships to cut across the ocean at top speed, instead of being tied down to the slowest ships in a convoy. They would thus be exposed to danger for shorter periods.

Another possibility, discussed by the Associated Press, was a corridor of Navy ships and planes across the Atlantic, each patroling a regular "beat" along the corridor, along which lend-lease traffic could flow. There was some doubt, however, that such protection could be made tight enough to keep out all Axis raiders.

The President, in explaining his speedup efforts, said that a survey two weeks ago showed that it took 25 to 30 days to clear an application from a foreign government for lend-lease help through the various Government departments that must pass on it. That time has now been cut to 16 days, and to cut it further Stettinius has been authorized to relieve the President of the work of signing the applications, many of which require as many as 20 signatures.

The administrative change was made in a letter to Stettinius.

In answer to a question, the President declared that he is not disappointed in the extent of aid actually shipped abroad, as revealed in his second 90-day report on lend-lease activities, released Monday.

He explained that 99.9 per cent of lend-lease goods have to be ordered and manufactured, and cannot be purchased from the shelves of a department store.

The President kept secret his intentions regarding the Neutrality Act. Though he discussed on Monday with his Congressional leaders the advisability of revising the law, Mr. Roosevelt declined yesterday to say whether he favored any change in the law, such as to permit the arming of merchant ships.

Other questions which the President declined to comment on included:

Whether the Red Sea is part of the "American defensive waters" which the President has instructed the Navy to clear of Axis "rattlesnakes."

Whether an Axis raider is operating in the South Pacific, off the Panama Canal.

Whether the United States is building a base in Labrador, as indicated by a remark in the President's September 11 broadcast.

When asked whether Republicans who have supported the Roosevelt foreign policy would be opposed at the next elections by Administration Democrats, the President asked why party politics should be dragged into national policy.

Woodside Church Plans Dinner Tomorrow

The annual fried chicken dinner of the Woodside (Md.) Methodist Church will be held tomorrow from 5 until 8 p. m. at the church hall, Georgia Avenue, Silver Spring.

Miss Lillie Anderson will serve as chairman of arrangements for the twenty-third consecutive year. The affair is sponsored by the Women's Society of Christian Service. Mrs. H. H. Howlett is president of the organization.

The acts for which they were shot as specified by the German command were:

Shooting at an officer and at a mobilized railroad official.

Striking an officer over the head.

Mobbing of a soldier by four young men.

The first three hostages to die, on September 6, were executed for the shooting of a German sergeant.

In both the free and occupied zones, courts continued to grind out sentences in an attempt to stamp out terrorism, sabotage and anti-collaborationism.

Today these courts sentenced one man to death for treason and 30 others to prison.

At Rennes, in the occupied zone, authorities arrested Marcel Cachi, 73-year-old former Communist senator from the Seine Department.

On the other hand, 22 men who have been interned in five different camps were released on order to Marshal Petain to take up their work again as union leaders. The statement announcing their liberation said "The marshal has distinguished between those who honestly defend the workers of all classes and those who exploit the difficulties of the working class."

Pope Refuses To Denounce Nazis

American President personally and the American people as a whole. There is understood to be gratitude for President Roosevelt's promise that he would try to sway the Moscow government's policy toward religious freedom. But all these friendly expressions, your correspondent was told, simply cover a rather firm, if in some respects, evasive refusal to take sides in the war.

There appear to be three main points in the Pope's answer.

First: That on a strictly doctrinal theoretical basis there is no such thing as "a just war," and the Holy See cannot, therefore, take such a stand.

Second: The United States and Britain have doctrines, interests and political aims of their own; the Holy See has doctrines, interests and political aims of its own.

Third: The doctrines, interests and political aims run parallel, but the very fact of parallelism means that they do not and cannot meet.

In Vatican circles this evening, according to what the writer has learned, it is being said that the President asked too much and that the Pope was placed in an impossible situation considering his responsibilities and the policies which he and the Holy See in general feel must be followed. By not coming out in favor of the "crusade against Bolshevism" idea, it is felt that the Pope already went very far in this direction, even though the motive may have been one of strict neutrality in its political policy. These sources point out the Holy See has grave and complicated limitations which do not permit it to cut gordion knots or to act along anything approaching nationalistic principles.

It should be stated that a rumor sent a few days ago by your correspondent that Taylor also brought a message for Premier Mussolini intended to try and separate Italy from Germany, was wrong. It has been possible to get an authoritative Vatican denial of that report.

Another report that President Roosevelt's message contained assurances of an Anglo-Saxon victory seems to have been a half-truth—that is to say, the statement was evidently not in the message, but Taylor is understood to have conveyed that conviction very strongly in his personal conversations with the Pope.

Lewis Rejects Plea to End Strike

submitted to Government occupation and operation of its subsidiary shipyard at Kearny, N. J., rather than accept a Mediation Board recommendation for a union-maintenance clause less drastic than the union shop demanded of the steel company's coal mines.

Other labor difficulties and tieup threats, as reported by the Associated Press included these:

A sitdown strike brought production to a halt at the Clairton, Pa., works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation. Company officials said some 300 members of the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee had refused to work with non-union men in the byproducts plant, which supplies gas for the firm's six Monongahela plants employing 60,000. In addition to the Clairton works, two other large plants were partially closed.

The strike was ended last night and the company made plans to restart the furnaces.

Hard Coal Idle Increase

The number of idle men in the eastern Pennsylvania hard coal fields increased to about 22,000 when miners walked out of three more collieries to join colleagues protesting increases in dues and assessments of their union, the United Mine Workers. The men in the union's district No. 1 are protesting a national assessment of 50 cents a month, and those in district No. 7 are protesting the assessment and also an increase in district dues.

In New York, the A. F. L. Seafarers Union rejected an offer of Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission, to attempt to settle within two weeks a union demand for war bonuses and other payments provided the union would consent to the sailing of ten ships tied up by strikes.

At Youngstown, Ohio,—A walkout of C. I. O. machinists at the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Co.'s McDonald finishing plant, which employs 3000, caused suspension of operations at half the 12 mills. Officials of the U. S. Steel Corporation subsidiary said the other six might be forced to shut down overnight.

Company officials said the machinists' walkout was over "wages and other grievances."

Walkout Called "Unauthorized"

John L. Mayo, district S. W. O. C. director, described the walkout as "unauthorized" and said he would confer with machinists' representatives last night to learn the nature of grievances.

At Buffalo, N. Y., members of both A. F. L. and C. I. O. unions walked out at the American Car and Foundry Co., producers of artillery shells for the United States and Great Britain, in a dispute over representation.

A. F. L. and C. I. O. officials asserted they had not authorized the move, but pickets said they represented both rival labor groups from the plant's 1300 employes.

At Watervliet, N. Y., operations of the Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corporation, making defense steel, were cut in half as the result of a C. I. O. strike protesting discharge of three union members. The company said 35 to 40 per cent of the plant's 1000 employes were out, while the union claimed "more than 750." Union officials said they were asking full union recognition and a contract.

Early Habits Often Bad For Hair, Says Specialist

Unforunately, some habits formed early in life are bad for the hair and scalp, says F. D. Johnson, local hair and scalp specialist.

F. D. JOHNSON

Few parents fail to impress upon their children the importance of brushing their teeth regularly. Yet many are unable to decide upon a definite health program for their children's hair and scalp.

Undoubtedly, this may be due to conflicting ideas as to how often the scalp should be washed, what one should wash the scalp with and whether or not soap and water are harmful to the hair.

Seldom does one experience trouble from being too clean. A weekly shampoo is a good safe schedule. Shampoos containing but little caustics, alkalies and no alcohol have less drying effect on the scalp and hair. That soap and water have little harmful effect upon the hair is evidenced by the fact that men seldom lose their beard despite the use of all kinds of soaps and creams. The beard is hair and the difference between the beard of the face and hair on the scalp is negligible.

A clean scalp is less likely to become infected. If scalp troubles develop despite every precaution, or because of negligence, there is but one thing to do . . . get rid of the trouble.

If you need help call on F. D. Johnson, located at 1052 Shoreham Building. There is no charge for examination or advice. Treatment will not be advised unless he believes it will help you. Phone NA. 6081.

Wiedemann Avoids Probe In Argentina

By the Associated Press

Buenos Aires, Sept. 16.—The Argentine foreign ministry announced tonight that Capt. Fritz Weidemann, former German consul general at San Francisco, would depart tomorrow on the Japanese ship Manila Maru en route to his new diplomatic mission for Adolf Hitler in the Far East.

His early departure will preclude any questioning by the Argentine congressional committee investigating subversive activities which has kept him under surveillance since he arrived by plane from Rio de Janeiro last Sunday on a transit visa.

The committee has admitted it would be unable to summon him for questioning unless he overstayed his time limit in Argentina.

The embarkation here cancels previously announced plans by which he would have gone by plane to Chile and taken a ship from there.

Meanwhile, the Argentine "Dies Committee" pressed its campaign for the ouster of German Ambassador Edmund von Thermann by declaring that a congressional resolution censuring him for abuse of diplomatic privileges implicity requires his ejection.

From perusal of the resolution forwarded to Acting President Ramon Castillo, committee members said, "the executive power very well understands what it is Congress wants him to do."

In order to obtain an overpowering majority vote of 37 to 4, the committee agreed to withdraw a clause flatly demanding that Von Thermann leave Argentina.

The resolution demands the ejection within three days of the chieftains of Nazi organizations operating in Argentina, among whom the committee lists Von Therman.

Peru Admits To Bombings Of Ecuador

By the United Press

Lima, Peru, Sept. 16.—The Peruvian government today confirmed that its air force had been in action over Ecuadorian territory where according to Guayaquil reports, a number of persons were killed or wounded in bombing and machine gun attacks on a United States-owned banana plantation and several other settlements.

"The military command was obliged . . . as a measure of reprisal and safety, to attack with its air forces certain localities from where a treacherous Ecuadorian attack was started," a Peruvian foreign office communique said.

The communique said that no settlement was bombed "that was not a military objective," and added that it would be easy to fly over the city of Guayaquil and bomb it any time but "the generosity and humanity of Peru makes such an idea repugnant."

The attack to which the communique referred was the September 11 fighting at Porotillo "in which 26 officers and men of a Peruvian detachment were massacred."

The Peruvian Senate and Chamber of Deputies today passed resolutions protesting the attack "before the nations of America."

River Town Bombed

Copyright by New York Times

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Sept. 16.—Peru's airplane attacks on undefended towns appear to be approaching this city as the last one reported was from the river town of Balao near Puna Island.

The newspaper La Prensa reports tonight that Balao, which was bombed yesterday, was wiped out today by Peruvian military planes.

The sailing ship Reina Maria was attacked by planes. Three persons were killed and seven were injured. The ship was badly damaged. The ship was bringing refugees to this city from territory that has been invaded by the Peruvians.

Steps Taken To Safeguard 94,000 Pupils

Plans for safeguarding 94,000 District elementary school children from the perils of Washington traffic during the coming term were discussed at a meeting yesterday afternoon by police officials, members of the Board of Education and local traffic experts.

It was decided to provide greater police protection for the youngsters by increasing the number of patrolmen at intersections, establishing closer cooperation between schoolboy patrol coordinators and school principals, and relieving policemen on crossing details of the duty of communicating with their precincts every hour.

Operation of one-man scout cars during the hours when children are going to and from schools was decided upon also. Under this plan, it was explained, the extra man will be stationed at a school crossing.

Kelly Orders Survey

After the meeting, Maj. Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of police, issued an order to all precinct commanders instructing them "to make an immediate personal survey" of their precincts and establish a list of locations of all public, private and parochial schools. The list is to be maintained, Kelly said, so that policemen may be assigned to important intersections.

"Each year changes are made in schools and new schools are opened, as well as street improvements, which necessitates the changing of the locations for the assignment of policemen," Kelly's order said.

"You will direct the members of your command regardless of the character of his assignment and whether on or off duty to be alert at all times to safeguard children. Whenever a child or group of children are observed at any point of congestion, regardless of the hour, time or occasion, it shall be the duty of members of the Police Department to assist such child or group of children to their destination in safety.

"All members of the Department, whenever the opportunity presents itself, should stress to the children the importance of exercising care and promoting safety."

Southeast's Needs Stressed

Also present at yesterday's meeting were Inspector Maurice Collins, James F. Beckett, Harvey Callahan, Arthur E. Miller and Ira Keck; Washington I. Cleveland, of the American Automobile Association; Robert L. Haycock, Dr. Robert W. Eaves and H. K. Savoy, of the Board of Education.

The latter three men stressed the importance of increased police protection in the Southeast section of the city where six new schools are located.

They informed the police officials of the increased number of children due to attend schools in Anacostia and the Navy Yard sections because of the defense program which has brought about expanded housing facilities.

Maj. Kelly ordered the police radio station to broadcast at different periods of the day instructions to policemen "with reference to promoting safety."

The victim died at Emergency Hospital last Saturday after he was struck by a trolley at Connecticut Avenue and L Streets Northwest, September 8. He suffered a fractured skull.

It was testified that Vassaw, a pedestrian, was crossing from the east to the west curbs and was using a temporary crosswalk, necessitated by street repairs.

Witnesses told the jury Vassaw apparently did not hear the approaching street car because of noise made by pneumatic drills. He walked from behind a group of workmen, it was said, and was out of Jacobs' view until it was too late to stop the street car.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

Rule of Thumb Fails to Work for Kansas Governor

Topeka, Kans., Sept. 16 (INS).—Gov. Payne H. Ratner of Kansas conceded tonight that his technique as a hitch-hiker is not so hot.

En route to Hill City, the Governor's plane was forced down by engine trouble near Barnard. Then he learned that thumb-waving really is an art.

He and a companion, Earl Thatcher, Topeka lawyer, went to a nearby road and gesticulated in the time-honored manner with all the persuasiveness at their command, but motorist after motorist passed them up with hardly a glance. Finally, they were compelled to walk to a farm house and telephone for a lift.

Hitler May Use Germs in War, Briton Predicts

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Sept. 16.—If Hitler is thwarted by the English, he will attempt the destruction of England by using all possible violent means, it was predicted today by A. B. Baxter, a member of Parliament, who arrived from Lisbon on the Yankee clipper.

"Things are going awfully well," he said of the British war effort. "Our bombings are beginning to annoy Hitler. If we get him on the run, he'll concentrate on England with things never thought of, not stopping at bacteriological warfare. And we'll meet him halfway."

Repeating that in England "things are going awfully well," Baxter said that Hitler's hatred of England is "wonderful" and that now Hitler is "awfully cross with the United States." He added that Europe is about to experience a noisy winter.

Declining to divulge the purpose of his mission to the United States and to Canada, which he will visit for two or three weeks before going to Washington, he was met at the Marine Terminal by his wife, who has been living with her two children in Vancouver for two years.

Among the other 21 passengers from Lisbon was William Brown, general secretary of the Civil Service Clerical Association of Great Britain, who is here at the invitation of the American Municipal Association of Chicago. He declared that clerical workers in England have received some increases in wages, but not enough to compensate for the 30 per cent advance in the cost of living since the war began.

Nazi Influence In Propaganda Books Probed

A grand jury search for Nazi influence behind the publishers of propaganda books in the United States opened here yesterday with questioning of a New York publisher, a former FBI agent and a mystery witness from Akron, Ohio.

The "propaganda squad" of Department of Justice special prosecutors sought grand jury action after months of preliminary detective work. These investigators suspect that German money and German control are responsible for a series of books whose tone is savagely anti-British or pro-Hitler or both.

Flanders Hall, Inc., of Scotch Plains, N. J., was the first company scheduled for scrutiny. This firm's publications have included "The Hapless Boers," purporting to have been written by a Dutchman, and "Democracy on the Nile," attributed to an Egyptian. The texts of both works appear to be translations of books by Germans which were originally issued by the German Institute of Information in Berlin.

Records Produced

This company published "Lord Lothian Versus Lord Lothian," by George Sylvester Viereck, who has registered with the State Department as a Nazi agent. Dr. Friedrich Ernst Auhagen, now in jail for propaganda activity, testified the Germans paid Viereck $2500 a month.

Obeying a court order, Siegfried Hauck, Flanders Hall president, brought four large boxes of his company's records and accounts before the grand jury. Grilled several hours yesterday, Hauck is scheduled for another appearance today.

From Akron, Ohio, came Attorney Frank B. Burch, who was escorted to the grand jury room after a conference with Special Assistant Attorneys General William P. Maloney, George A. McNulty and Edward J. Hickey. The prosecutors declined to discuss Burch's role in the investigation.

Former G-Man Called

Virgil Wiltsie, a former FBI man, was the third witness yesterday. It was conjectured that he worked on the propaganda inquiry while he was at the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Scheduled to appear today is Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, Chicago, who won attention a decade ago as the author of "The Red Network" and more recently when she was twice convicted of disorderly conduct for her maneuvers against passage of the Lend-Lease Act.

Under subpena is Adolph Hauck, former secretary of Flanders Hall, who has been drafted into the Army.

of warship deck which destroys aerial bombs before impact.

In messages read today, the German espionage system stressed a requirement for information on American antiaircraft guns and shells and urged Duquesne to "enlist the services of members of the United States Air Corps."

Most of the messages are not being offered in evidence by the Government. Sebold said earlier, however, that FBI agents supervising the radio sent misinformation to Germany.

Government exhibits today included a message transmitted from the Long Island station to the Hamburg Gestapo office on July 24, 1940. It said:

"Dunn says four battleships of Texas class and ten destroyers going Caribbean to scout for England. Six hundred reservists; 600 enlisted men. The Todd Drydock has contracted to put laminated antibomb deck on U. S. destroyers, 20 new destroyers, 20 World War destroyers. Explosion takes place before bomb reaches lamination."

Sebold said Dunn was Duquesne's alias.

Sebold testified that, also on Duquesne's instructions, he transmitted the following message on July 15, 1940: "Dunn says investigation being made by U. S. Army Capt. Coom of maks and cannister to stop chlorine. Army Advisory Board thinking of stopping production of Garrand rifle because of poor results."

Sebold said that in five months, between December, 1940, and May, 1941, he was given $22,000 for disbursing among spies. The drafts, he added, were sent by a Pedro Gonzales, of Mexico City, to the Chase National Bank in New York.

Besides this amount, messages indicated that several thousands dollars were sent direct from Europe.

Truck Drivers Vote to End Strike

terrupted by the strike. Only less than carload freight, which required trucking service, has been held up, it was explained.

The strikers, members of the A. F. of L. Teamsters' Union, Local No. 639, has asked a weekly wage increase for drivers from $31 to $35, and for helpers, from $25 to $30. Under the accepted proposals, drivers will receive $33.60 and helpers $28.10.

The agreement also includes a provision for a closed shop and seven holidays off with pay per year. The 48-hour work week was not reduced. Acceptance of the proposals by the strikers came after the men had heard addresses by Conciliator Sheehan and Thomas P. O'Brien, international representative of the union, urging them to return to work. The meeting was held at 523 New Jersey Avenue Northwest.

First Agreement of Kind

The agreement was said to be the first one ever made between the union and the District of Columbia Trucking Association. Previously, contracts had been negotiated separately with the various trucking companies.

Settlement of the strike will release a number of materials consigned to the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and the Western Electric Co., to be installed in defense agency buildings in the District. In addition, thousands of pounds of freight for schools, stores and other private agencies will be free for delivery.

Commenting on the end of the strike yesterday, Harry Kane, jr., spokesman for the Trucking Association, stated: "The management went just as far as it possibly could in raising wages. I am glad that the strikers realize this, and that there was no violence or property damage."

Union leaders would make no comment on the strike settlement.

18 Firms Involved

Eighteen trucking firms were involved in the strike, four small companies having signed separate contracts with the union September 8, several hours after the walkout.

Among the trucking companies who signed the joint agreement with the union yesterday were Jacobs Transfer Co., Eagle Transfer Co., Calvert & Rogers, Horton Motor Lines, Davidson Transfer & Storage Co., Kane Transfer Co., Capital Motor Lines, Horlacher Delivery Service, American Transfer Co., Farran Transfer Co., National Trucking Co., Cowan Overnight Co. and American Transfer Co.

Tax Bill Sent To Senate

a Federal tax par with other taxpayers, lost in House defeat of joint income tax returns and Senate sidetracking of a more direct proviso, will resume on the administrative bill Doughton warned.

In addition the Treasury in framing a revision of insurance company tax provisions, lowering exemptions of mutual companies, for inclusion in the tax bill ahead.

House Conferees Criticized

During yesterday's hour-long House debate, House conferees were criticized by some members for yielding to the Senate on lowered individual exemptions, wiping out of a House-proposed special 10 per cent excess profits levy and some other changes. But no single move was made to block passage.

"I hate to say 'I told you so,'" Doughton replied to critics of the base-broadening move. "When joint returns were defeated, I warned that more objectionable taxes would have to be levied to make up the revenue."

Representative Crowther (Republican), of New York, asked why recommendations for higher taxes of cigarettes, tobacco and gasoline had been ignored and why the special 10 per cent excess profits levy was rejected.

Doughton said it was found the 10 per cent tax would work hardships on many corporations, including railroads coming out of receivership. Tobacco, cigarettes and gasoline, Doughton said were already carrying all the taxes the traffic would bear.

Treadway Supports Doughton

Treadway, committee Republican, supported Doughton's position against attacks by minority colleagues.

Representative Michener (Republican), of Michigan, said he thought the country ought to be told there will be another tax bill in November.

Treadway replied there would be "no new bill as steep as this one" and the next measure will be aimed mainly at clarifying administrative procedures, plus reaching community-property States.

Chairman George of the Senate Finance Committee, who won out in conference with all but 29 of his 164 Senate amendments, anticipated no difficulty in swift Senate passage of the tax bill today.

Nazis Say Knox Is Roosevelt's Mouthpiece

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Sept. 16.—Aauthoritative sources today called Navy Secretary Frank Knox "Roosevelt's staff trumpeter," who must always blare out what the President "does not quite dare to tell the American people."

Commenting on Knox' speech before the American Legion convention yesterday, the spokesmen said that men like Knox and Senator Pepper always put into precise language, without speaking officially, "what Roosevelt for very good reasons does not say."

A spokesman said President Roosevelt had exceeded his Constitutional powers and "it is a fine commentary on democracy and its workings."

He charged the Roosevelt Administration with deliberately evading a definition of what waters are regarded as United States defense areas until something happens somewhere.

The incident then can be claimed by the United States to have happened in one of the areas meant, it was said.

Assailed by Fascists

Rome, Sept. 16 (AP).—The Fascist press professed today to foresee inevitable hostilities with the United States as a result of Secretary Knox's announcement yesterday that United States naval vessels would protect ships carrying aid to Britain.

"The United States has really arrived at what is called the last step," said Il Piccolo. "What margin now remains for averting the drama? None."

Other papers joined in assailing what Il Piccolo called "the blind irresponsibility of the White House."

"From dawn this morning the American fleet is on a misson of war at sea from America to Iceland," said Il Popolo di Roma. This paper interpreted Knox's announcement as meaning that United States warships would escort supply ships for Britain, although noting that the Navy Secretary refrained from using the word convoy.

A heavy slump on Italian stock markets was reported with capecially heavy declines yesterday in textile shares and shares of the big Fiat and Breda companies, makers of airplane and other engines.

Contracts Given For 2 Army Posts

Two contracts for construction totaling $900,124 at Army posts in the District area have been awarded, the War Department announced yesterday.

The Joseph Light Co., of Washington, will build an addition to the Recruit Reception Center at Fort George G. Meade, Md., for $374,987. James L. Barnes, of Logansport, Ind., was given the contract to build motor repair shops and classrooms at Camp Lee, Va., at a cost of $525,137.

A penny milk program got under way this week in 387 public schools of New York City, extending the service to 102 schools which were not included last year. About a dozen other cities, including Chicago and Boston, enjoyed similar programs last year.

Nursery schools, boys' club, community centers and other nonprofit agencies serving children are eligible, along with public schools, to get milk for which the only cost is 1 cent a half pint. The Government requires that 85 per cent of the clientele be from families on relief, dependent on WPA or private charity or in the "lowest third" income group.

Wants Class I Bottle Price

Bruce B. Derrick, chief of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, told The Post last night that his group will drop opposition to the penny milk plan "if the full Class I price is paid for the bottles."

Such a condition, as he knows, is impossible for the Federal Government to meet, under its surplus milk setup. The Washington milk marketing order provides that farmers shall receive, for milk distributed at low cost to the needy, 2½ cents a quart below the regular market price, but 9 cent higher than the fixed surplus price.

Thus, according to the Surplus Marketing Administration, if a 270 per cent increase in consumption were effected in those schools and centers where penny milk programs were established, the producers would be protected against any financial sacrifice.

Won't Pull in Guns

Reminded last night of this safeguard, Derrick nevertheless insisted that his powerful combine won't pull in its guns unless its 1100 members are guaranteed the full 8½ cents a quart for milk which would be given free to undernourished boys and girls, paid for by local sponsors at the rate of 4 cents a quart.

News of launching the 1941-42 program in New York City came from the New York Times. Asked to confirm the story, Leon J. Steck, Agriculture Department economist assigned to the relief milk program, suggested to the reporter that he write to New York City for information.

Only because the Northwest Settlement House and Temple Center sent copies of their applications to The Post was it known that these juvenile welfare groups have formally asked for one-cent milk. Steck said he is "not in any position" to tell whether these or any other Washington organizations are seeking to extend benefits of the Federal milk project to the impoverished boys and girls of their respective communities.

Mrs. Frank Schwoerer, president of the Ladies of Charity, declared last night that the prominent welfare group which she heads is particularly hopeful that the penny project will be extended to parochial schools in low income areas.

Despite obstacles raised by Surplus Marketing Administration officials and the producers' combine, mounting enthusiasm of school and welfare leaders indicates that the fight can yet be won.

Young Men! The Radio Industry offers you outstanding opportunities for a secure and profitable career!

Prepare NOW for a successful future in Radio Engineering—in 11 Months

Young men just out of high school find themselves in a unique position. The pressing emergency of national defense is forcing industry to give jobs to untrained or inadequately trained men, where in normal times such men would not be considered—at best these jobs are temporary. But the responsible, supervisory positions that lead to secure, lasting careers still go to the men with thorough technical training.

Radio employers are calling for CREI graduates for preferred employment throughout the industry—not for routine emergency jobs—but for positions that lead to desirable, permanent futures.

The demand for our graduates far exceeds the supply, and every graduate of our last one-year class has obtained technical employment (the majority received offers before graduation). National emergency has created an unparalleled opportunity for you to assure yourself of a career in radio. Invest NOW in your future.

Classes are filling rapidly. Located here, in the Nation's Capital, CREI is in the very center of America's industrial program. CREI offers you efficient, modern and thorough training—an engineering school with an outstanding faculty of radio engineers—we urge your immediate consideration and careful study of our courses.

Norse Putting More Ships Into Atlantic

By James B. Reston.
Copyright by New York Times

In a major move to expedite the transport of American planes, tanks and guns to the war fronts, the United States and Norway are throwing 50 to 150 additional merchantmen into the enlarged Atlantic convoys now moving with increased protection of United States warships.

The object is not only to clear lease-lend materials that have been piling up for lack of shipping, but to release more and more equipment for the British forces in Africa, which are expected to face new Axis drives before many weeks.

The Norwegian government in exile is believed to be putting more than 50 additional ships into the British "pool," bringing to nearly 600 the number of Norwegian ships operating under the direction of the British ministry of shipping.

317 in British "Pool"

At the time of its invasion by Germany, Norway had the fourth largest merchant fleet in the world, totaling about 7,625,600 dead-weight tons. In the first days of the German invasion more than 1,600,000 tons were sunk or seized, but the other ships were out on the high seas at the time or otherwise managed to escape.

Norway has had 557 vessels totaling 3,782,172 tons sailing in the British "pool" and 159 vessels of 1,204,781 tons bringing strategic raw materials into this country for our defense program. Under the new management less than 100 Norwegian ships will be kept out of the main Atlantic run and as the supply of war materials increases many of these may be transferred to the Atlantic service.

To take advantage of the greater protection now afforded to ships carrying lease-land materials, it is understood that each convoy will be made up of a larger number of cargo vessels and that the number of cruisers and destroyers assigned to each convoy will be larger.

This does not mean that protection will be ideal. Much of the United States Navy is still in the Pacific and convoys have had far less British protection than they received at the end of the last war, when the convoy system was credited with breaking the U-boat menace.

Safety Far Off

In 1918, convoys of 30 or 40 Allied ships, with the navies of Great Britain, the United States, France, Italy and Japan to draw from, were often protected by at least one large cruiser and, in the danger zone, by as many as 12 destroyers.

After the collapse of France a year ago some British convoys were protected by as few as two or three destroyers, and, while this protection undoubtedly will increase through the use of United States warships, it is doubtful if it will at an early date reach what naval experts call "adequate protection."

Most of the Norwegian ships sailing the Atlantic are still without a single antiaircraft gun. Ever since the Norwegians entered the war they have been trying to get from Great Britain and the United States enough antiaircraft and antisubmarine guns to protect their seamen, who number about 25,000 in the Atlantic. But neither the British nor the United States has been able to supply its own antiaircraft requirements.

Envoy Talks With Roosevelt

The Navy Department did release in June and July some guns out of their stock for the Norwegian ships, but these were only a handful and were not the type required. What these ships—and scores of American ships—need is 3 or 4-inch low-angle guns to protect themselves from low-flying craft.

The German Condor planes which range out over the western approaches from Stavanger and Bordeaux have in some cases been getting down to within 1000 feet of these unprotected Merchantmen and bombing them with great effect. The protection of the United States Navy will, of course, relieve the inadequately protected sailors, but to protect itself a convoy should be throwing up antiaircraft fire from every ship.

The Norwegian Minister, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, and the head of the Norwegian Shipping Mission, Oivind Lorentzen, have talked to President Roosevelt this week about the Norwegian shipping position. Nothing is known of what transpired at this conference, but it is presumed that the Norwegians urged the President to do what he could to get added protection for the Norwegian ships.

Doughboys of '17 March Again to the Cheers Of Spectators in 12-Hour Convention Show

QUEEN OF CONVENTION—Blond Barbara Tullgren, of Milwaukee, was crowned queen of the American Legion convention. Hundreds of Legionnaires (top) march to the cheers of thousands upon thousands of spectators at the mammoth parade yesterday in Milwaukee

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee, Sept. 16.—Veterans of a doughboy army which marched to war 23 years ago in Europe marched again in peace today in the American Legion Convention parade.

Putting aside for a day their deliberations on such weighty questions as national defense and protection of arms for Great Britain, the legionnaires donned their colorful costumes to regale scores of thousands of Milwaukeeans and visitors with a 12-hour show of martial music and marching men.

They started at 9 a. m. Late in the afternoon the end was not in sight. Threatening clouds gave way to a beaming sun, and predicted showers failed to materialize.

There was color at its height; military precision at its best; comedy in all its phases; pathos, as men wounded in France grimly set their teeth and defying age and hurts, strode proudly behind their banners.

Over all there was the American spirit, the pride of homeland, the air of freedom which gave tangible support to the declaration of the organization's leaders that the American Legion stood ready to do its duty should the Nation call.

Great cheers rolled up from the closely packed spectators as one champion musical organization after another snapped into "eyes right" for the salute of National Commander Milo J. Warner and the distinguished guests at the reviewing stand.

The Commonwealth Edison Post Drum Corps of Chicago, which successfully defended its championship, received a wild greeting all along the 2½-mile route.

An Oklahoma legionnaire, led along on a chain and dog collar, meekly followed his wife. An acrobat marched on his hands, saving his feet for another day. The Illinois delegation featured an imitator of Abraham Lincoln.

Joe Whisman, of Clinton, Ind., clad in cowboy costume and riding a Pinto pony, maintained his record of lassoing the national commander. When his lariat dropped over Commander Warner's shoulders, Whisman cut another notch in his six-shooter—it was the fourteenth consecutive time he had roped the big chief.

Jimmy and Johnny, Uniontown, Pa., comics, drew many a laugh with their deadpan act. Identical from head to 3-foot feet, they paraded as a man and his shadow.

Locomotives of the 40 and 8 society snorted down the streets puffing smoke and belching blasts from simulated cannon.

Drill teams vied with each other in presenting beautiful drum majorettes, and it seemed that each arrival surpassed the one ahead.

Ancient jaloppies coughed along in the procession, but the big laughs were reserved for the funny little cars, mounted on off-center wheels, which zipped up and down in eccentric maneuvers.

Halifax Says He's to Return Soon to U. S.

London, Sept. 16 (A).—Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador to Washington, disclosed in a radio interview tonight that he would return shortly to the United States.

"When I go back to America—it won't be long now—I shall take back a good report of all I have seen here," he said.

The broadening of American frontiers beyond the coastal limits of the United States, such as establishment of the defensive outpost in Iceland, will be welcomed by Great Britain even after the war, Lord Halifax said also.

G. O. P. Gives An Early Lead To LaGuardia

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 16.—The Republican renomination of Mayor LaGuardia for a third term was claimed at midnight (E. S. T.) tonight at his campaign headquarters as tabulation of primary votes placed LaGuardia substantially ahead of his opponent, John R. Davies, former president of the National Republican Club.

Returns from 2275 election districts out of 4050 gave Davies 23,710, LaGuardia 33,137.

At the same time Davies' campaign headquarters claimed Davies would win the nomination by 20,000 votes.

The mayor, unopposed for the American Labor Party designation, had the support and the votes of Wendell L. Willkie and District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey.

La Guardia opposed Dewey when he made his close but unsuccessful race against Governor Herbert H. Lehman in 1938 and he also supported President Roosevelt against Willkie.

Davies discounted the support of these two Republican leaders.

"Mr. Willkie has joined the other prowar Republicans, whose opposition I expected," said Davies in a statement. "Willkie's former followers will vote for me."

The mayor, who remained entirely aloof from the campaign, announced he would not even vote. He is ineligible to vote in the Republican primary as he is enrolled in the A. L. P.

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 16 (U.P.)—Gov. Burnett Maybank tonight won the Democratic nomination—tantamount to election—to fill the remainder of the United States Senate term of James F. Byrnes, who was elevated to the Supreme Court.

Maybank's opponent in today's balloting, former Gov. Olin D. Johnston, at his headquarters in Spartanburg, conceded the nomination to the Governor after the latter took a lead of more than 20,000 votes with the count nearly complete.

Returns from 1,326 precincts of the State's 1,520 showed:

Maybank, 88,254.

Former Gov. Olin D. Johnston, 67,047.

Today's primary was a runoff for the two leaders in the first balloting for the nomination—tantamount to election—two weeks ago.

Rev. G. E. Kelly, Georgetown U. Teacher, Dies in Hospital

The Rev. George E. Kelly, S. J., 63, teacher at Georgetown University, died yesterday at Georgetown Hospital after a short illness.

Father Kelly, a native of Baltimore, studied theology at Woodstock College, and was ordained in 1909. He was administrator of Gonzaga High School from 1915 to 1922, and was active in the affairs of St. Aloysius' parish.

After leaving Gonzaga, Father Kelly became dean and later administrator at Georgetown Preparatory School, Garrett Park, Md., until 1931. He was then made administrator at Fordham University.

In recent years, Father Kelly was rector of the Brooklyn Preparatory School and administrator at St. Ignatius Loyola in New York. He also spent a year at Loyola College in Baltimore, before joining the faculty at Georgetown.

He leaves two nephews, William T. Kelly and George Kelly, and a niece, Anne G. Kelly, all of Baltimore.

Requiem mass will be celebrated at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in Dahlgren Chapel at Georgetown University. Interment will be in the community cemetery at the university.

Captain X, 16 Dutch Seamen Tell Adventures But Not Names

CAPTAIN X AND HIS CREW GIVE THE V-FOR-VICTORY SALUTE

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Capt. X and 16 members of the S. S. ——, a Netherlands freighter, came to Washington on a sightseeing tour yesterday. They were the vanguard of many Dutch seamen who, from time to time, will be noted rubber-necking at the Capitol, the Washington Monument, the Lincoln Memorial and other shrines of this world capital.

The hard-bitten sailors seen here yesterday, and thousands of Dutchmen like them, are engaged in carrying war materials from the United States to the British Isles, a perilous task.

The Netherlands Legation has arranged to have the crews come to Washington for a little recreation whenever their ships put into ports within a reasonable distance of this city.

Newspapermen were permitted to interview Capt. X and his men, but legation attaches asked that all names be left out of the story. The Gestapo, it was explained, might make things extremely uncomfortable for the families of the seamen back in Holland.

At the outset of the war, Holland had one of the finest merchant fleets in the world, a fleet totaling three million tons. Fortunately for the Allied cause, most of the Dutch ships were on the high seas when Germany struck at the homeland on May 10, 1940. These ships made for British or neutral ports, and the Germans were able to seize only a few that were unable to get away from their home ports.

Today about 60 per cent of the Dutch ships are hauling war materials across the Atlantic, while the other 40 per cent are plying between the Dutch East Indies and ports on America's West Coast.

A good many of the Dutch ships have, of course, been sunk by the Germans.

Capt. X was master of one of these. He told about it yesterday in a very matter-of-fact way at the legation.

"Yes," he said, "I was once torpedoed. It happened in September last year. We were nearing the other side when we were hit by a torpedo. It was fired by an E-boat. (A fast motorboat that the Germans use to supplement their U-boats and long-range bombers.)

"The torpedo hit us at night," continued Capt. X, "and 14 men who were asleep in the after part of the ship were killed. The rest of us got away in lifeboats. We were picked up by a British destroyer."

What was the most dangerous, Capt. X was asked, a German submarine or a bomber?

"Both," he replied.

Going to College Here This Fall . . .?

Wilson Prepares Students For Teaching Careers

By Robert W. Harvey
Post Staff Writer

Within the stately, elm-shaded Tudor-brick building at Eleventh and Harvard Streets Northwest, Wilson Teachers College is planning, redecorating, hustling—preparing to open next Monday for its sixty-eighth year as a teachers' training institution, and its twelfth year as a four-year teachers' college.

Principal reason for the hum of activity is Dr. Walter E. Hagar, who arrived in Washington only a few weeks ago from 13 years on the staff of Columbia Teachers College, to take over the presidency vacated last February by the resignation of Dr. Edgar C. Higbie.

Enthusiastic over his faculty and a firm believer in the axiom that any teacher must "not only know how to teach but also must be a cultured and educated person," Dr. Hager wants most of all to bring the institution the honor in its own land that it has been accorded outside of Washington.

Its reputation at Columbia for instance, he points out, is as high as almost any teachers' college in the country, and with reason. Its 500-odd students spend freshman and sophomore years in an almost exclusively liberal arts curriculum, acquiring a "sound, basic, cultural education." At the end of this two year period, they decide in conference with advisers how to go on into specialized teaching preparation, or whether they should go on at all.

BUSY with incoming requests for information and outgoing calls on last-minute arrangements for opening school are Helen Wiehle, switchboard operator at Wilson Teachers College, and Mrs. Karl J. Moser, secretary to the president of the school

WILSON'S STATELY TUDOR-BRICK BUILDING

If it is felt that the student is not fitted for teaching as a career, Dr. Hagar believes it to be the school's responsibility to help him decide on another field for which he is suited. If he does continue with teaching, he spends two more years in study of special subjects, of the theory and psychology of education, and in practice teaching in District classrooms.

Upon graduation he receives a Master of Science Degree, and is qualified to take teaching examinations for elementary and junior high school work. Operated by the public school system, Wilson costs nothing to residents of the District, $250 a year to nonresidents.

Dr. Hagar's enthusiasm for the school has been transmitted to the students, who are already dropping in for a few hours a day to help paint cafeteria tables and otherwise aid in redecorating the school's interior.

The building, unfortunately, is as ancient as it is dignified. Built over the old Tiber Creek bed, its walls are constantly settling and cracking, and twice during the past decade it has had to be renovated for safety. A request for new building funds is now before the commissioners.

"It should be possible," Dr. Hagar believes, "to plan together and build one of the best teachers' colleges in the country."

Roosevelt Has Gone Too Far In War Policy, Hoover Says

By Allen V. Dowling
Wireless Press Staff Writer.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Herbert Hoover declared tonight that American entry in the European war would frustrate the "freedom and justice" President Roosevelt seeks to impose on the world" and involve the Nation at a time when "Hitler is on the way to be crushed."

He said the "actual dangers" to America were less today than at any time since war began and that this Nation could "secure reparation for transgression of our just rights" in other ways than entry into war.

"The stern voice of experience says that America cannot impose its freedoms and ideals upon the 28 races of Europe or the world," the former President said in a radio address. "We should not again sacrifice our sons for that proved will o' the wisp."

Cites 'Fear and Hate'

Hoover asserted that "fear and hate" of the allied powers defeated the idealism of President Wilson and would defeat the idealism of President Roosevelt.

"We won the war, but we lost the peace," he said, "at least so far as our high purpose of freedom and permanent peace was concerned."

He denounced the "President's policy of edging our warships into danger zones" without approval of Congress, declaring them violations of "the spirit of the Neutrality Act."

"There are other ways than going into this war," he said, "to secure reparation for transgression of our just rights and respect for them."

"Stop Calling Names"

These ways, he said, must begin with intrenchment of the four freedoms at home and he offered five-point pattern for their establishment:

1. Stop calling names.
2. Direct preparedness policies with minimum interference with economic freedom.
3. Give aid to "democracies alone" and give it generously. (This appeared to exclude aid to Russia.)
4. Stop provocative steps that may take our sons into war.
5. Take no war-like step without action by Congress

"I believe real unity can be had among the American people in these proposals," Hoover asserted.

He called for fredom of spech and expression, which he said "are being stifled by phobia right now." And he identified a fifth fredom, or "economic fredom; without which he said the other four freedoms could not survive.

Sees Effort for Socialism

"A large number of men administering our preparedness program do not believe in this freedom," Hoover said. "With a long war—and it will be long if we put our boys into it—then their methods . . . will make us over into a state socialism, probably under another name."

A condensed version of Hoover's text follows:

"Since ten weeks ago the military scene in the world has enormously shifted. New objectives for the American people have been advanced. The Navy has been ordered to start shooting. Our people are bewildered and divided.

"No one will deny that if we keep up this step-by-step policy it will lead inevitably to sending our sons into this war. Nor will anyone deny that the realization of the objectives set before us leads to that same fate . . .

"Debate Must Continue"

"If we would preserve the very spirit of free institutions American boys must not be sent to death in this war without the specific declaration by the Congress. Congress should not be eliminated. And in the support of free institutions this debate must continue until Congress shall declare war . . .

"Those who sincerely and openly advocate sending our boys into this war are entitled to respect. And those who oppose it are entitled to like consideration . . .

"A cold survey of this world situation will show that the dangers of ultimate totalitarian success are very much less than even ten weeks ago. The fratricidal war between Hitler and Stalin is daily weakening both dictators . . .

"Although Hitler has won unprecedented military victories, he has kindled behind him a consuming fire of hate. It is now evident that he has failed to convert to nazism the 200 million people that he has invaded. He cannot recruit a division of dependable soldiers among them. They hate him. If he occupies all Russia it will add another 150 million haters . . . The hate of Hitler will be more terrible than the blizzard was to Napoleon.

Dangers to U. S. Less

"We are assured Hitler cannot cross the English Channel with his armies.

"The actual dangers to America are less today than at any time since this war began.

"Thoughtful men agree that the revolution in weapons makes the Western Hemisphere impregnable from invasion by Hitler . . .

"And I may add that if Hitler had all the shipyards in Europe he could not in five years build an armada big enough even to start across the Atlantic.

"Hitler is on his way to be crushed by the vicious forces within his regime. Patience for this is far better than spending the lives of our boys.

Right in Protests

"Under an American policy, whether interventionist or nonintervention ist, in either Europe or Japan, if we have common sense we will concentrate upon building our production, give Britain her tools and await the development of all these forces, both East and West . . .

"The President is right in vigorous protest at firing upon American warships. He is right in protest at sinking American merchant ships without adequate protection to the crews, even though they were all carrying contraband . . .

"But the President's policy of edging our warships into danger zones, of sending American merchant ships with contraband raises the most critical of all questions. These steps to war are unapproved and undeclared by the Congress. That is not in accord with the spirit of representative government and it should be remembered that these incidents are the consequence of violating the spirit of the neutrality act.

Other Ways Than War

"There are other ways than going into this war to secure reparation for transgression of our just rights and respect for them. "On August 12 the President and Prime Minister Churchill issued their Atlantic statement . . .

"Can America impose these four freedoms upon Europe and Asia by sending our sons into this war?

"Shall we not lose in America all these freedoms by the very necessities that arise if we send our sons into this war? . . .

"As the situation stands today, we can sum up certain bases upon which American policies should be predicated:

1. If we prepare we cannot be invaded nor our economic life be dangerously impaired.

"2. England can prevent invasion of her shores if we give her the tools, and even warships, without our sending our boys to death, either on ships or land.

"3. Hitler is on the way to be crushed by the vicious forces within his own regime.

"4. We have proved by bitter experience that it is a futility for us to try to impose freedom and justice upon the world by war.

"5. The ideas and ideals of the west can grow and spread abroad by our demonstration in our own country. . . .

"6. To send our sons into this war must also be weighed in the scales of future America. Should we not weigh in this scale the dead and maimed? Should we not weigh the one-third of undefed, undernourished, underhoused, undereducated Americans for another generation that will be inevitable? . . .

"We must have impregnable defense. This defense must include the other 20 nations in the Western Hemisphere. That is not isolation.

"We must give the tools of defense to the democracies. That is not isolation.

"We should reserve our strength that unexhausted we may give real aid to reconstruction and stabilizing of peace when Hitler collapses of his own overreaching."

Asks Intrenchment Of Four Freedoms

Disciples of Christ Seek to Raise a Million for Emergency

By Robert Tate Allen
Post Church Editor

National leaders and missionaries of the Disciples of Christ denomination will gather here Friday to plan for raising an "emergency million" to further the church's work in national defense and to meet rising costs of missionary work due to the war.

A team of ten workers, including five national secretaries and five missionaries, will conduct the sessions at Ninth Street Christian Church, Ninth and D Streets Northeast, beginning at 10:30 a. m. Disciples of Chrst churches in the District, Maryland, eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, eastern West Virginia and Virginia will send lay and clerical delegates.

Among the speakers will be Dr. William T. Pearcey, of Indianapolis, secretary-treasurer of the denomination's board of church extension; the Rev. George Earle Owen, head of youth work for the Chesapeake area; Mrs. George Hagman, missionary in China; Fred W. Hughes, of Paraguay; Miss Faith McCracken, of Bolenge, Africa; Miss Dale Ellis, India.

Described by leaders as "one of the biggest undertakings in years," the "emergency million" project is expected to further the denomination's work among service men in and near camps.

Among local participants will be Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, pastor of the National City Christian Church, the national edifice at Thomas Circle; Dr. Arthur P. Wilson, Columbia Heights Christian Church; the Rev. C. N. Williams, Third Christian Church; the Rev. Leslie L. Bowers, Fifteenth Street Christian Church; the Rev. J. Lloyd Black, Park View Christian Church; the Rev. Virgil Lilly, Rockville (Md.) Christian Church, and the Rev. Ernest Bryan, Takoma Park Christian Church.

. . . there shall be no night

As LONG AGO as August 1939, Timken saw that night was the real foe of all-out preparedness. Nights and week-ends, when the lights go out, the machines shut down, and the forces of production stand still.

Timken determined that there shall be no night and no week-ends in the production of roller bearings, which are so vital to the defense program on a thousand fronts.

Machines know no fatigue, so they work now at Timken on a 168-hour week. That was no problem. But men and women are not machines; so Timken designed a rotating shift schedule so that workers in the Timken employ are usually on the job not more than eight hours at a time, and not more than forty hours a week except every fifth week when they work eight hours additional with overtime pay.

For more than a year and a half this plan has worked. For more than a year and a half, many Timken departments have had no night or Sunday shut-downs. Timken has been rolling 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, keeping abreast of the hundreds of defense work orders that Uncle Sam has given the builders of tanks, airplanes, ships, gun carriers, machine tool builders.

These manufacturers can depend upon Timken for ever-increasing quantities of Timken Bearings and Timken Steel. Added to the already completed expansions in Timken's steel mill and bearing factories are further expansions yet to be completed.

Keith's Shifts Opening Days to Thursdays

And a Lot of Other Strange Things Happen; Sun Valley Looks Wonderful in Musical; Three Days on the Local Theater Scene

By Richard L. Coe
Substituting for Nelson B. Bell

YESTERDAY: Half The Post Drama Department sighed, settled down into permanent (?) quarters after four months of sardine-like flux. The other half went to the ball game. Keith's dropped a bombshell in announcing it's shifting opening days to Thursdays. Half the P. D. D. went to a screening in the most surprising screening room in town (you won't guess where it is and we won't tell). We listened to Carmen Cavallaro play the piano. We looked at some worms someone sent us after reading our notice of "Separate Rooms." We got our draft questionnaire.

SONJA HENIE

Keith's new opening day policy is, of course, what will interest you most immediately. You'd have heard about it sooner if they could have found The Post drama department yesterday, but better late, etc. "My Life With Caroline," the Ronald Colman comedy, is the first booking under the new plan which goes into effect tomorrow morning. The Fifteenth Street house has been contemplating the move for some time, but what with long runs and things ("Tom, Dick and Harry," "Citizen Kane"), the innovation's been a while getting under way. But tomorrow sees the shift and makes it an even busier day for those who insist on getting their films while they're hot.

"Sun Valley" From a Rare, Hidden Viewpoint

As for the screening, we'd been told to meet Loew's Dan Terrell at 12:30 in the lobby of the Washington. Just the way they do in spy stories. Feeling like Operator 13, we got there on the dot. Then the boys and girls of the press were—to all intents and purposes—blindfolded and didn't see a familiar thing 'til the Twentieth Century-Fox insignia flashed on the screen 15 minutes later. The screening room was wonderful: Chairs that sank back as well as down and soft blue carpets on which to flick your cigarette ashes. The picture was good, too: "Sun Valley Serenade," which will be along at the Palace soon, and which merrily ignores its story for the charm of Sonja Henie, the music of Glenn Miller, the jokes of Milton Berle and the naturalness of John Payne. Sun Valley thereby becomes the latest spot for our vacation nook. More when it gets here.

The new drama department is almost a thing of wonder, with a terrace for tea on a warm summer day now that the leaves are falling. The ball game surely couldn't have been better than the Dodgers' 17-inning epic of the day before. Carmen Cavallaro's music in the Carlton's Cosmos Room is even sweller than it was last year. And our questionnaire is certainly more illuminating reading than this column.

TODAY: The Operatic Film Festival opens at the Hiser out in Bethesda. "The Dream of Butterfly," based on Puccini's "Madama Butterfly" is the opening bill and continues through tomorrow night. With five musical films drawn from the operas in its repertoire, the festival continues through Tuesday the 30th. "Intermezzo" begins its fifth week at the Little. We're going to try to sneak a few hours off to see "Here Comes Mr. Jordan" again at the Metropolitan, an astonishing film comedy which audiences like as much as the reviewers do. We're going to think of a worthwhile answer to George L. Yates who has written us an interesting letter in re: Theater Manners.

TOMORROW: The Capitol's fourteenth anniversary program opens, with what should be a happy musical film, "Lady Be Good" and a stage revue headlined by merry Sheila Barrett, whose mimicries always make us blush for shame, and Hal LeRoy whose dancing always makes us want to call up Phil Hayden. Nor is that all. "The Chocolate Soldier" will be compressed into a time pellet which will contain all the Oscar Strauss hits, with charming Lynn Allison, Nina Veralla, Nina Allen, Richard Ames and Byrnes and Swanson in the cast.

Singing "La Boheme" on the Screen

JAN KIEPURA AND MARTA EGGERTH, husband and wife in private life, these singing stars have the leading roles in "The Charm of La Boheme," screen adaptation of the delicate Puccini opera, billed Friday in the first week of the Operatic Film Festival at the Hiser Theater in Bethesda. The festival opens this afternoon.

Katharine Cornell in Shaw Play at National Next Week

"THE DOCTOR'S DILEMMA." Katharine Cornell will present her eleventh production as an actress-manager and her third of a Bernard Shaw drama for a week's engagement at the National Theater Monday evening. Miss Cornell's supporting company for Shaw's barbed remarks on the medical profession includes Colin Keith-Johnson, Bramwell Fletcher, Cecil Humphreys, Whitford Kane, Clarence Derwent, Barry Jones, Gina Malo and Alice Belmore Cliffe. Guthrie McClintic staged the play and Donald Oenslager designed the settings. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Capitol

"LADY BE GOOD." With Eleanor Powell and Ann Sothern in the leading feminine roles, this screen version of the Gershwin musical includes most of the original score as well as Jerome Kern's "The Last Time I Saw Paris." Robert Young, John Carroll, Red Skelton, Lionel Barrymore and the Berry Brothers are featured. The theater's fourteenth anniversary is celebrated on the stage with Sheila Barrett, Hal LeRoy and excerpts from "The Chocolate Soldier." Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

"MY LIFE WITH CAROLINE." Ronald Colman stars in this comedy with a new leading lady playing opposite him, the English actress, Anna Lee. The story relates a busy millionaire's efforts to keep his wife from running away with a couple of her playmates. Charles Winninger, Reginald Gardiner and Gilbert Roland are featured. Also on the bill is the new "March of Time" release, "New England's 8,000,000 Yankees," and a Donald Duck cartoon. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"NAVY BLUES." Ann Sheridan, Jack Oakie, Martha Raye, Jack Haley and the Capital's recent visitors, the "Navy Blues" Sextette, have the leading roles in this new musical film. Laughs and music, including "In Waikiki" and "You're a Natural," are emphasized. Jack Carson, Herbert Anderson and William T. Orr are in the cast. "All Out for Fun" is the stage revue, with Yola Galli, Harry Reso, the Danwills and the Roxyettes in its cast. Opens Friday morning.

Trans-Lux

"THIS CHANGING WORLD." First of a series by Raymond Gram Swing, this leading short subject at the newsreel theater concerns "Broken Treaties" in its examination of recent world history. Ken Murray narrates the first of the twentieth anniversary screen snapshots and "Dance of the Weed" is the color cartoon. Opens Friday morning.

Gayety

"FUNZAPOPPIN." Dian Raye is the starring performer in this new burlesque musical opening Sunday afternoon. Others in the cast include Comics George Murray and Bert Carr; Allene Dale, Joyce Hyles, Lucille Rand and Eileen Hubert. The Gayety has resumed its policy of midnight performances on Saturday evenings.

Central Auditorium

"PASSPORT PARADE" Latest in the series of musical revues sponsored by the entertainment committee of the District Council of Defense, this production has been directed by Danny Faber. Miss Faber has included in her company the Champion Majorettes, of Nebraska State, as well as Scottish and Spanish dances. Tonight only at 8:30, in Central High School Auditorium, Thirteenth and Clifton Streets.

HEDDA HOPPER

Louisiana Hayride for Orson

Hollywood, Sept. 16.—Guido Orlando and Orson Welles were discussing the story of Huey Long, which Orson is planning to do in pictures. Orlando gave Orson an autographed copy of Huey's book, "Every Man a King," which, incidentally, was the last copy the Kingfish signed, the day before he was popped off. Orson met Orlando first in Chicago, in 1934, at a reception given for Italian Gen. Balbo, whose Van Dyke beard Orson copied with such glee. Orlando's manager for Sailing Baruch, out here buying up boats from private owners for the Navy.

ORSON WELLES

I dropped onto "The Man Who Came to Dinner" set just in time to hear Bette Davis tell Monty Wooley she's going to be married. He's furious at the news, tried to talk her out of it. First Bette blew her lines, then Monty reverted to his stage speeches, which Will Hays frowned down, and the result was hilarious. Wish they'd leave it in the picture.

An Indian on "They Died With Their Boots On" set complaining about a war bonnet that didn't suit him, said, "It fits like a Hedda Hopper hat." So it's come to this—even Indians razz me! And after that I had to weave through snoring Redskins to get onto the set. Heard that ten of them said "Nerts to Hollywood" after being here a few days and had to be sent home to North Dakota.

Having read that little Joan Carroll had two horned toads as pets, I asked her about 'em. "Have just one," she said. "Can he do tricks?" "No," explained Joan, "he's stuffed." "Would you sell him?" I asked. "Couldn't," said Joan patiently. "You see, he belongs to my brother." . . . After finishing her stint here, June Havoc returned to New York to look after five dogs, two cats, two goats, some Chinese chickens—and perchance a few wolves.

Watching Edmund Lowe do a scene for "Call Out the Marines," I remarked how young he still looked. "For gosh sake," said Vic McLaglen, "don't tell HIM!" . . . Glenn Ford, out with Martha O'Driscoll the night his engagement to Evelyn Ankers was erroneously reported, also dates Ann Miller—lucky boy. . . . Ron Russell is known as Hollywood's "Number One Bachelor Girl"—Ruth Hussey as our "Favorite Bachelor Girl." Come on, marines, what are you waiting for?

Well, blow me down! Our latest "Mr. and Mrs." team will be Binnie Barnes and Ernest Truex in "Twin Beds." Remember how funny Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland were as a team? Also Marie Dressler and Wally Beery?

Three Stripe Man

New York, Sept. 16.

Garson Kanin, the movie director whose last assignment was the Ginger Rogers picture, "Tom, Dick and Harry," now is making his first Army movie, for the Signal Corps. Its title is "Battalion First Aid for Gas Attack Casualties." Kanin read the title and told his commanding officer: "It's no good—you can't get it on a marquee" . . . Last week Kanin received his official promotion—to sergeant—and immediately phoned the news to his brother, Michael, the coauthor of Katharine Hepburn's new movie. "I'm a sergeant now," Garson reported . . . A what?" asked his brother . . . "Sergeant," Garson repeated. "Me—I'm a sergeant now" . . . "I can't hear you. You're a what?" Michael shouted . . . "Sergeant," said Garson, "y' know, sergeant—like in York."

Odets left New York, arrived in Beverly Hills and noted its resemblance to a Westchester community. "I can't believe I'm in Hollywood," he confessed . . . Milestone decided that they could work better at Arrowhead Springs and brought the New York playwright to a bungalow there. Odets walked around the place and said:: "I still can't believe I'm in Hollywood" . . . He asked Milestone about the bungalow rates. "$35," Milestone told him . . . "That's quite cheap," said Odets . . . "That $35 is not a monthly rate," Milestone reminded. "The rate is $35 a day" . . . Odets shook his head in wonder. "Now," he announced, I believe I'm in Hollywood."

House Gets Bill to Settle Liquor Prices

A bill intended to eliminate liquor price cutting in Washington by establishing a definite schedule of wholesalers' discounts was introduced in the House yesterday by Chairman Jennings Randolph of the District Committee.

Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, told reporters the measure was inspired by investigations of the liquor business here by a District grand jury this year and a subcommittee headed by Representative Eberharter (Democrat) of Pennsylvania, in the spring of 1940.

After an antitrust investigation of the trade, the grand jury found the Capital's retail liquor business "in an extremely chaotic condition due principally to ruinous price-cutting" which the jury attributed to "secret deals" made by wholesalers and distillers with cut-rate stores. A similar finding was made by the Eberharter subcommittee.

Rates Are Defined

The bill would prohibit manufacturers, wholesalers and solicitors from giving "rebates, quantity discounts, free goods or allowances" except at the following rates:

One per cent for sales to retailers of from one to four cases; 2 per cent on from five to nine cases; 3 per cent, 10 to 24 cases, and 4 per cent, 25 cases up.

To do business in the District, wholesale distributors would be required to file detailed price schedules with the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board within 30 days of passage of the bill. The measure would permit at any time filing of new price schedules which would become effective ten days after they were filed.

Representative Everett M. Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, who was a member of the Eberharter Subcommittee, expressed hope that the bill "will meet the abuses that have been found by the subcommittee and the grand jury."

Remedy, Says Dirksen

"The Eberharter Subcommittee recommended the outlawing of secret rebates and kickbacks, discounts and allowances which destroy free competition and which are definitely in conflict with the best interest of everybody who is in any way identified with the business of producing and distributing distilled spirits," Dirksen said.

"The grand jury found that this condition existed in the District and, while it disclaimed any jurisdcton as it was only empowered to investigate practices in violation of the antitrustlaws, it did suggest that the proper authorities give consideration to a remedy.

"The only restrictive provision in the bill is that which limits the amount of discount that can be granted. So, in view of the fact that a basic price is not set, this is not a price-fixing bill, but leaves the producer and wholesaler the right to change prices as often and substantially as they may want to."

Latter Day Saints Form New District Division as Work of Church Expands

Expansion of Mormon church work here has necessitated formation of a new division—the Capitol Ward—officials of the Washington Stake (diocese) of Zion announced here yesterday.

The new ward covers the area east of Sixth Street Northwest, and south of Michigan Avenue, and was formerly part of the Washington Ward. One year ago the Washington, Arlington (Va.) and Chevy Chase Wards were organized into the Washington Stake of Zion.

Officers of the Capitol Ward, approved by Washington Stake President Ezra T. Benson, are J. Ellis Overlade, bishop; Harold G. Clark and Frank C. Kimball, counselors, and Lyle S. Curtis, ward clerk.

Commissioner Edgar B. Brossard, it was stated, will continue serving as bishop of the Washington Ward, and has selected Claude C. Cornwall and Milton Barlow as counselors.

The Mormon Church, officially known as the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, has its local activities centered at the Washington Chapel, Sixteenth and Columbia Road Northwest. D. Sterling Wheelwright is organist-chapel director.

Letter Undelivered In 6 Years, Man Is Believed Dead

A registered, special delivery, airmail letter sent by the Washington Institute of Technology to a radio engineer in Newark, N. J., six years ago returned yesterday unopened—and with six cents postage due.

Col. Sydney F. Mashbir of the institute explained the letter was sent from Washington on November 2, 1935, to a radio engineer, Paul Cregg, at a Newark, N. J., hotel. Cregg was developing an aircraft radio instrument in which the institute was interested.

The institute requested a receipt for the letter. It was obtained two days later, November 4, 1935, from the Post Office Department. But no reply came from Cregg, and attempts to locate him were unavailing.

After return of the letter yesterday Col. Mashbir said he was convinced Gregg was dead.

Safety First

Since the beginning of the year 44 pedestrians have been killed in traffic accidents in the District. This, as Police Chief Kelly emphasizes, is an appalling toll, particularly when you consider that more than half of these accidents have been due to carelessness on the part of the unfortunate victims. Evidently, in spite of safety campaign after safety campaign, people continue to cross congested streets outside safety zones; they ignore red lights; they dart out from behind parked cars. Sometimes automobile drivers are at fault, but all too often the blame for fatalities or serious injuries rests squarely on foolhardy pedestrians who disregard elementary safety precautions.

The traffic division of the Police Department is starting another drive to cut down jaywalking. It will seek the cooperation of school authorities in working out a traffic education program. In the last school year 173 children of school age were injured as a result of their own thoughtlessness, and it is hoped that this figure can be appreciably reduced in the year ahead. This may prove possible if parents join in the effort to make children safety-conscious. But the conditioning of children—or adults, for that matter—to observe automatically certain pedestrian regulations is a slow business. Too many, though they know better, remain indifferent to street hazards, and are seemingly beyond all traffic preachments. To be convinced or reminded, they apparently have to be knocked down.

Pulling Together

One of the most pleasing postscripts to the President's speech last Thursday comes from Buenos Aires. With only a single dissenting voice the Argentina Chamber of Deputies has approved a resolution censuring the German Ambassador for "overstepping the functions of his office and abusing his diplomatic privileges." Simultaneously the demand was voiced for the deportation of all leaders of German organizations that are engaged in anti-Argentine activities. So another Latin American republic takes measures to combat a Fifth Column in its midst. In this instance the Fifth Column was large and powerful, for a large number of Germans live within the borders of Argentina. Furthermore, considerable appeasement sentiment once prevailed in that country. Early in the European struggle, when there seemed to be a strong possibility that Germany might win, voices were raised in Argentina urging that the nation pursue a policy of strict neutrality and close its eyes to the activities of Hitler's agents. The agitation was combated vigorously by friends of democracy of whom there are many in Argentina. This element has made rapid gains during recent months, particularly after a legislative investigation had uncovered the nature and extent of Nazi activities. Now a wholesale housecleaning of the Nazis in Argentina appears to be in sight, and may be accompanied, if the executive branch of the government heeds the wishes of the legislature, by a break in Argentine-German relations. The development is a testimony to the manner in which all America is moving together in this greatest of world crises.

Action In Egypt

During the last few months something like a stalemate has existed in the Egyptian war theater. But there are multiplying indications that this all but forgotten battle front may soon stir to new life. On Sunday two Axis columns penetrated 35 miles in Egyptian territory, but were driven back, losing, the British say, many men and much equipment. It may soon be the turn of the British to take the offensive. For the British have not let any grass grow under their feet in building up their defenses in Egypt. Considerable reinforcements of men and supplies have arrived in Cairo and Alexandria during recent months, and it looks as if a new attempt to drive the Italians out of the only part of Africa they still occupy may soon be launched.

But while the British have one eye on the Axis forces in Libya, they have another eye fixed on the course of the fighting in Russia. Should Hitler's latest drive in the Ukraine succeed, the same tragic necessity may face the British this time as faced them last spring. Then they had to deplete their forces in Africa to reinforce the Greeks. This time they may have to strip the Army of the Nile to strengthen their garrisons in the Middle East. But should the Russian lines hold, a large-scale British offensive west from Egypt will become a real possibility.

Blue Pencil

George Creel's experience as chief censor during World War I was such as to convince him that if we ever got into another war there ought to be practically no censorship of any kind at home. In recent months, when armed hostilities have seemed imminent, he has taken the trouble on several occasions to point out that more harm than good can come from censoring the domestic press. But he has consistently urged censorship of international communications—that is, the cables and radio—by means of which information may be transmitted to an enemy abroad rapidly enough to be of immediate military use.

Whether or not the Navy and War Departments have been influenced by Mr. Creel's reasoning is indeterminable, but they appear to have accepted at least two of his suggestions. For both Acting Secretary of the Navy Forrestal and Undersecretary of War Patterson have assured the House Naval and Military Affairs Committee that under no circumstances will there be compulsory censorship of the press. At the same time they have indicated that, if we go to war, there will be some form of military control over outgoing communications from this country.

These assurances are well-timed. Probably they are intended to remove whatever doubt may have existed of official willingness to permit the press to exercise its normal function in the event of war. But unfortunately the matter of voluntary censorship on the part of the press remains to plague editors and reporters. As of today, because of Navy and War Department interpretations of what should and should not be published, and because of newspaper willingness to cooperate, items of information known to thousands of persons in areas where naval or military work is going on are voluntarily suppressed. So long as such items may be cabled or radioed abroad, there may be some excuse for such voluntary suppression. But customary sources of information within the Navy and War Departments have become more close-mouthed, more inclined to encourage the extension of the boundaries of voluntary censorship.

Call it what you will, this is an effective way of suppressing news. And, if we go to war, it is only logical to suppose that voluntary censorship will impose an even greater burden of responsibility on the press—regardless of the assurance of "no compulsory censorship." So while the Navy and War Departments seem to have accepted the body of Mr. Creel's recommendations, they will presumably continue to ignore his central argument that the public should have all the facts so long as those facts are prevented from going abroad. We think that the ideas of Mr. Creel should be adopted in toto.

Obituary

From Detroit, not long ago, came a small news item that the tangible assets of The American Boy, consisting mostly of bound volumes of the magazine, had been sold at public auction. We dare say that a good many middle-aged men who happened to notice this item let a nostalgic tear drop into their newspapers. The American Boy which made its debut in 1905, was quite a factor in shaping the literary tastes of that generation which came of age in time to enlist or be drafted in 1917. Of course, the magazine had the advantage, in most instances, of parental imprimatur, and it was favorably regarded even by clergymen and schoolmarms. This put it into a very different class from Tip Top Weekly, Fame and Fortune, Boys of '76, Wild West and so on which, for reasons never quite plain, were considered "unwholesome" and had to be read surreptitiously behind school geographies.

The success of The American Boy gave rise in time to other publications of the same general format and content, such as The Boys' Magazine, and later Boy's Life, published under the aegis of the Boy Scouts. But for some years its principal rival was St. Nicholas, which still exhibited the aura and influence of the great Mary Mapes Dodge, who was its editor from 1873 to 1905. By any literary or typographic standard St. Nicholas was incomparably the better publication of the two, but its popularity was much greater with girls than with boys. For, along with such lively and robust stuff as "Phaeton Rogers," St. Nicholas had published "Little Lord Fauntleroy," an error which it had never quite been able to live down. Every boy who had ever been forced into a Fauntleroy suit or had had his hair put into paper curlers nursed a grudge against St. Nicholas. It had been founded in 1865 as Our Young Folks, but the first thing Mrs. Dodge had done was to abolish this priggish and pompous title. Of still more ancient lineage was The Youth's Companion founded in 1827 by Nathaniel P. Willis.

By the 1920s, however, juvenile journalism in America was very definitely on the down grade. In the last year of that decade The Youth's Companion gave up the struggle and was merged with The American Boy. About the same time St. Nicholas was sold by the Century Company to a Chicago concern which presently streamlined it out of all recognition. Even the dime novel—or, more accurately, the five-cent novel—was at the threshold of extinction. All this, of course, raises the question of why juvenile publications have failed to flourish among the past two generations of young readers. Some blame the movies for it; others the comic strips. Our own guess is that, with so many magazines, which for the sake of mass circulations have deliberately reduced themselves to the level of childishness, there is no longer any need of special children's publications.

Finn And Nazi

A little more light is shed on the obscure Finnish situation by the issuance of a "blue-white book" of documents and by fresh statements from officials in Helsinki. The documents tend to support the Finnish contention that this new war was forced upon the Finns. Four days of Soviet bombardments from the air, according to this evidence, put Finland again on the warpath. We are left to infer that, if the Russians had not taken the offensive, the Finns would have remained quiescent behind their reduced frontiers. This may or may not be the case. However, there is no need to argue a hypothesis, for the Muscovite aggression against Finland is history. It did not even stop after the peace ending the 1939-40 war. Soviet Russia turned from the military to the diplomatic weapon, the aim being, as the covering explanation to the blue-white book says, to "wear Finland down by starvation and unending demands into a state of vassalage." It is ironical, in the light of the turn in the war, that Moscow's pressure partook in part of an effort to make Finland extrude British interests in Finland.

Of more interest than this explanation, however, is Mr. Vaino Tanner's mission to Berlin. Mr. Tanner, who is minister of trade and communications, is no Nazi sympathizer. As head of the Social Democratic Party in Finland, and as prime leader in the consumer cooperative movement in Finland, Mr. Tanner is one of the architects of democratic Finland. No doubt he represents the desire of the Finnish man in the street to get out of the war now that the old Finnish frontier has been won back. Shall it be done by a formal peace with Soviet Russia? Mr. Tanner, who shares to the full the average Finn's aversion from Russia, denies any such possibility. The argument that any peace with the present regime in Russia is not worth the paper on which it is written is supported by the evidence in the blue-white book. Another argument in the minds of the Finns must be that sooner or later the present regime in Moscow will be vanquished. Still the Finns look for a quick peace. If this means anything, it means that the Finns will not go adventuring with the Germans in Russia proper, but will simply quit fighting, and remain defensively on their regained frontiers. This is what all friends of Finland will wish. Otherwise Finland's place in the next world ordering will be prejudiced and her friendships with the democratic world strained.

They Also Fight

In the list of countries that have been and are being aided under the Lease-Lend Act to carry on the war against the Axis one is conspicuous by its absence. That country is France. To be sure, we continue to maintain relations with the Vichy regime, which is dominated by persons who more and more act like the Nazis whom they are eager to serve. But Vichy is not France, even though the men of Vichy, with monumental effrontery, profess to speak in the name of all Frenchmen. The real France is the France of Gen. de Gaulle and those courageous souls who, in defiance of the men who betrayed the French nation, have continued the struggle against Hitler. There is no earthly reason why in any program of aiding the forces opposing the Axis the Free French should be forgotten. Indirect aid from the United States, it is true, is said to be reaching them through Great Britain. But the time has come to make De Gaulle and his brave band the direct beneficiaries of the American arsenal, particularly since, with the establishment of the new ferry service across the Atlantic and Africa, a direct link between the United States and Free French territory will soon be opened.

HOT AFTERNOON

The cowbells in the distant pasture ring
Like water purling here into the spring.

The sounds are blended now and intertwine
Into a melody as cool as pine.

They are one placid woven sound that tells
Of ringing water, and of liquid bells.

The Constitution

September 17 is the 14th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution of the United States in Independence Hall, Philadelphia. While most of our people know this, many of them do not know that Pelatiah Webster, of Philadelphia, was the first author of the Constitution, as per his book on "The Political Union and Constitution of the Thirteen United States" published in Philadelphia on February 16, 1783, or 4 years before the Constitutional Congress met there. Everyone had read his book then, as he was the most prolific writer on all Government matters at that time. He was not a member of the Constitutional Congress, as his fast growing shipping business prevented it, but the various members of that Congress frequently met at his home in the evenings while the Congress was in session, and he was glad to give them the benefit of his wise counsel and advice after his own reflection of 4 years on his original plan of 1783. He was the most insistent one then to urge the calling of the Constitutional Congress to prepare a new Constitution to take the place of the old Federal Constitution of 1781.

Pelatiah Webster was the great grandson of Gov. John Webster, one of the first settlers and founders of Hartford, Conn., in 1636, when he arrived there from Boston with Thomas Welles, who was afterwards Governor, Rev. Thomas Hooker and several others, and it took them over two weeks to make this short trip. Noah Webster, who compiled the dictionary, was also one of John Webster's descendants, and placed a tombstone on his grave at Hadley, Mass., in 1818. Pelatiah Webster was born at Lebanon, Conn., November 24, 1726, graduated from Yale in 1746 and died at Philadelphia in 1795.

Pelatiah Webster said in regard to the old Constitution of 1781 that "it was found to be extremely weak, defective and totally inefficient and inadequate." As no one else had prepared any other plan for a new Constitution as outlined in his Dissertation of 1783, Webster said he found "it would be ten times easier to form a new Constitution than to amend an old one. Under these circumstances I offered my Dissertation of 1783 to the public."

After the Constitution meetings were over on September 17, 1787, George Washington and the various delegates left for their homes after four months of hard work during a hot summer, as they felt that Pelatiah Webster would be able to get the 16 Pennsylvania members to ratify the new Constitution who had objected to a Congress with an Upper and a Lower House. In a brilliant speech before a large crowd in Philadelphia that he made on September 29, 1787, he went after the sessionists and answered all of their objections to a Congress of two Houses, and the 16 members finally ratified the new Contitution.

When the Revolutionary War was over Pelatiah Webster published a special "Plea to Congress," saying that the American soldiers "Have not been paid, ought to be paid and must be paid." He kept after Congress until the old Revolutionary War soldiers had received their back pay, and they were very thankful to him. They had no American Legion then to fight for their rights. The Germantown Academy of Philadelphia, where Pelatiah Webster taught from 1763 to 1766, placed a memorial tablet in his honor on Pelatiah Webster Day last January, when Justice Owen Roberts of the United States Supreme Court delivered an interesting speech to the students. G. W. Mingus, a descendant of Webster, gave a brief talk about him.

A memorial tablet should also be placed in Independence Hall and one in Washington in honor of Pelatiah Webster, the first author of the Constitution of the United States.

Enlightening Reports

You did a very great service in publishing the article on page two of your Sunday editorial section called "The Russian Campaign As the Germans See It."

This collection of German newspaper reports on the Russian campaign is about the most enlightening thing I have yet seen on the subject. To my mind it is the more important because these astonishing reports were written by Germans for German consumption. It is highly important for us to know what picture of the war the German people are getting. The picture given in these German press excerpts is certainly, as you say, amazing in its candor, as well as in its substance. And the inferences to be drawn from the facts presented in your article, as regards both the war and the peace, give food for very serious thought, indeed.

I hope you will give us other such articles from time to time, and make reprints of them available. It seems to me that everyone who is doing any serious thinking on the war and the peace should read the article you published Sunday, and no doubt many of them missed it then. CLARENCE K. STREIT.

Washington, Sept. 15.

Over Forty

Men and women of 40 and above have applied for work by the hundreds who are thoroughly capable, but who are refused Government employment, because of age and not being able to do typing and stenographic work. Yet girls, mere children from every State in the Union, are taken on through patronage by Senators, Congressmen and higher officials; but after they are placed, many are not assigned to do typing and stenographic work.

All of this is well known and the injustice and discrimination against settled men and women are not only a reflection on the Administration as a whole, but contradicts just what Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Perkins have advocated and urged.

Congressmen are largely responsible for these injustices by placing members of their families and constituents—often from three or four in one family in Federal or District relief, also Civil Service.

It is generally conceded that not only Congressmen but their secretaries do this. A fine way to pay for their positions while many worthy applicants are refused work that might enable them to live decently. Will our Administration and the Congress continue this cruel discrimination which reflects upon their integrity and honesty as representatives of their States?

JUSTICE.

Farsightedness

The isolationists may not be so farseeing, as many of your letter writers contend, but it was Senator Clark of Missouri, if I recall correctly, who predicted, during the Senate debate on repeal of the arms embargo, that America finally would be persuaded to send financial aid to England, and then, sooner or later, would have to send its armed forces to protect that aid.

While the Senator did not exactly hit the nail on the head, however, it appears that he came close enough to be considered well up in the ranks of the farsighted; for here we stand, sending war materials to England, and then having to employ our Navy to protect those materials.

Pensioners' Plight

The retired employes of Uncle Sam, and the municipal employes of the District of Columbia are certainly an uncomplaining group. They have been grateful for an allowance which has enabled them to live under fairly comfortable conditions, but this increased cost of foods alone necessitates a rebudget which just won't work.

Where are these retired folks to turn for relief? Active persons, in active organizations have pressure brought to bear and bring! Wages are increased. Perhaps we old retired folks should now make application for reservations at Blue Plains; or file papers for relief. The more fortunate of us (those in the higher brackets, $100 per month) may be receiving enough to enter some semicharitable institution.

Personally, I am wondering about what's going to happen to my favorite five cent cigar. It is cheaper to smoke a pipe but these darned false teeth just won't grip a pipe stem and stay put themselves. When these five cent cigars sky rocket real inflation has arrived.

Isn't there some way we old folks may be saved from being deprived of the few comforts we so long labored for? The plight of the retired who have dependents is worthy of even more serious consideration. RETIRED.

Earthworm Analogy

May I comment upon a letter, "The Urge to War," by Edward Conn in Sunday's Post? The meaning was so camouflaged by the employment of ornate language which seemed to be used, rather to obscure than to clarify, that I had to read it several times to get the real trend which seemed to be, when boiled down, that Americians should not fight, except a war of defense: not fight unless we are attacked.

Americans are not going to allow themselves to be pushed around, or permit anyone to tell them where they can sail or when. They will see to it that it is made possible for them to sail where they please, when they please and help whom they please whenever they please, and whoever tries to stop them will take the consequences. That is my idea of being civilized. If one must sit in his cave with a big rock at the entry he might just as well be dead. The earthworm crawls in the ground and only comes up when a big rain drives him up for oxygen and then what happens to him. Look around after the shower and see the dead earthworms lying about! LAURA K. POLLOCK.

President's Choice

It is with pleasure that I take the opportunity of congratulating Col. Lemuel Lewis Bolles for his new assignment, having been called to active duty by President Roosevelt and named civilian defense director for the metropolitan area of Washington.

In addition to the service he saw overseas during the World War as a staff officer, Col. L. L. Bolles has won among his friends, and from everyone who has approached him, the reputation of a man of great honesty with a deep sense of duty and responsibility; he is also well known for his kind and generous heart, always ready to help the most unfortunate in a gallant way.

The city of Washington will be in good hands, and we certainly need more men like Col. L. L. Bolles at the present time, who besides working for the sake of the country, could also be called "a good Samaritan." JEANNE M.

The Post Impressionist

Shanty Irish

When we were growing up we happened to be the only Irish family in an intolerant little town in northern New York. We were poor even by its modest standards. When our young playmates, struck by an excess of nationalism or sectionalism or something, turned into The Crowd, as young playmates have a way of doing, they would gang up and shout "Shanty Irish" at us. We never knew exactly what they meant and I doubt that they did either. But we did know that we were helplessly, hopelessly different.

There was a young squirt of a golden-haired miss living in what I know now was a humble clapboard house across the street. In one of her moods of brutal golden-haired frankness, she announced, "My mother says I can't play over at your house because you have too many little brothers." "What's wrong with that?" I asked. "Oh, she says the Irish always have too many little boys in the family."

It hung balefully like a bat in my mind—conjured out of the Lord only knows what in her mother's head—the idea that so many little boys in one family was not quite nice. It hung there for years after. Even today when the boys are all grown men, in moments of exasperation I am driven to remind them that there is something not quite nice about their number.

Those were difficult years but I wouldn't wish to have missed being shanty Irish. That careless background is paying dividends in this Nation's Capital. A person up from those ranks knows a truly cosmic elation at seeing the offside of the great and near great. From a shanty the perspective is always slightly comic. And I'm positive that only a person just one generation from the washtub can be properly smitten at having a white marble palace as one's place of business. If I wish in the course of the day's clerkly events to go from one to another floor, I have at my disposal an elevator with aluminum doors, if you please, and an operator whose sole reason for existence at the moment is to take me up. When I casually say "Third, please," I wouldn't half relish it if it were not for the sly nudge from the family tree. "And sure, what is the likes of you doing riding in a fine elevator up two flights of stairs?"

For sheer lordliness there's nothing to top hailing a cruising taxicab on the streets of Washington. I'll always remember it as the city of the ample 20-cent zone and the gracious 40-cent zone. One moment I'm a nondescript member of the mob, but by the power of 20 cents I can perform that elegantly continental act of hailing a cab. I step to the curb, raise my finger in a casual gesture of command, and, behold, a gamin of the mechanical world defies three lanes of traffic, makes a U-turn in front of two angry drivers, and shoots to the curb to lay homage and offer of transportation at my feet. I step in simply reeking with savoir faire. And as I say "To the Library of Congress" I always wish that Aunt Maggie or Uncle Tim could set their startled eyes upon me.

Nor shall I ever cease being overwhelmed at the elan that goes with service by a colored maid. Back in that small town a few families had maids, but they were people out of a book. Of an evening as we passed their homes we looked at their yellow windows as we would regard something between the covers of a book. There was an unlikeliness to having a maid and the possessors thereof were more than mortal. One ultra ultra family returned from the South one spring with a colored maid, so rumor had it, and we hung around the sidewalk that skirted their back yard for days just to get a look at her. And she was out of a book, too.

Even the illusions of memory can give her nothing over the beaming reality of our Harriet who serves my breakfast on the back porch. Harriet's flattery is of comic proportion. "You're not a day over 16," she vowed one morning apropos of nothing at all except that she was in need of an extra quarter. Harriet's words and music are likely to be fairly equivocal, but they make the world a more illusory place.

When she remarks on a Monday morning with a sly giggle, "I prayed for you on my bended knees yesterday," she makes me feel wicked in a dashing kind of way. I don't know how she does it. I don't know whether she knows what she's doing. But I'm grateful to that early background that conditioned me to lap up such choice morsels and rejoice.

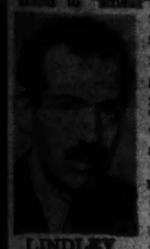
For some curious obscure reason the high point of breakfast comes when I ask for a second cup of coffee. It's a finishing touch kind of moment. If I were home, I'd get up and go pour one out for myself. One of the boys would probably sing out, "While you're up, you might as well bring me one, too." But not in Washington. I just say carelessly, "All right, Harriet, I'm ready for my second cup." I barely look up from my paper. But I'm wishing with all my heart that my family were here to see me. E. O'H.

The Movie Inquiry

By Ernest Lindley

Threats Not Films Swung Opinion

SENATOR CLARK, of Idaho, reports that 75 per cent of the "better known columnists" have tried to "smear" the Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee's investigation of the movie industry. This, he asserts, "smacks of conspiracy."



LINDLEY

Without estimating how much Senator Clark will alter his figures as a result, this column will place itself on record, not with a "smear," but with the citation of a few facts generally agreed upon by hard-headed politicians.

The investigation itself is being conducted without authorization by the Senate. Its avowed aim is to determine whether or not there should be an investigation.

THE SUBCOMMITTEE was packed with isolationists. The one member who has sought to provide balance is Senator McFarland, of Arizona. The searching questions of this hitherto silent new member of the Senate came as a complete surprise to everyone else, so they must have been to the extreme isolationists, who may have been misled in appointing him by his vote against the draft extension bill.

Congressional investigations are not bound by any rules of judicial procedure. Many of them have been conducted in a manner which would outrage any citizen who believes in an objective search for facts. It is doubtful, however, whether any other has ever combined more outright bias with less legal authorization for a public inquiry.

HOWEVER, the movie industry—probably wisely—chose not to defy the tenuous authority of this stacked subcommittee.

The isolationists' complaint against the movie industry is that it has been propagandizing for our entry into the war. In effect, they charge that the movies have indulged in propaganda, partly, perhaps chiefly, because of the racial or religious connections of the principal owners of the industry.

EVERY politician knows that in this Nation of many national origins and religious faiths, citizens are influenced in some degree by their pre-American or ultra-American connections. The more recent their arrival here, the greater the influence of their background is likely to be, although this is not true in every case. This is what used to be called "hyphenism," indicating that people thought as Polish-Americans, Italo-Americans, or what not, instead of as Americans.

None would deny that Americans of Jewish descent were, generally speaking, among the first to realize certain loathsome characteristics of Nazism. This was natural—as natural as that Americans of Irish origin should remember the objectionable characteristics of British imperialism.

WHEN accused of "war-mongering," Americans of Jewish background might claim credit for having been alert to the menace of Nazism. Whether their anxiety arose first from treatment of their co-religionists, or from danger to our national security, it now sums up to the same policy: the destruction of the Nazi regime.

Politicians also realize that other factors affect thinking on foreign policy. Is Anglo-Saxon derivation the chief explanation of the fact that the South has been the backbone of support for the President's foreign policy? Does it explain why Yankee Maine and Vermont seem to go along with him more emphatically than many Middle Western States do? Geography certainly is one of the factors, and there are many others.

WHATEVER the weight of national origin, religion, geography, or what else, the politicians know that a real shock to American opinion came with the fall of France. We felt, most of us, a threat to our security. There have been some since. But it was the threat to security which really swung American opinion, insofar as it could be gauged in Washington.

Since then, the ups and downs of sentiment, as assayed in Washington, have seemed to be closely related to the imminence of the threat to our national security. Believing this, the President has couched most of his utterances of the last year or so chiefly in terms of national security. Recently there is apparent in Washington a crystallization of the feeling that the only sure way to relieve this threat is to destroy it at its source. But it would be difficult, indeed, to trace this crystallization—which may or may not be evident in the country generally—to anything coming out of Hollywood.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

An Inner Empire

I HOPE you can stand a little more treatment of the subject of the Hod-Carriers and Common Laborers Union, because this incredible racket is holding its first convention in 30 years in St. Louis this week and I want to direct attention to this historic event.

I have just been studying the constitution and some of my accumulated notes on the hod-carriers and it is almost impossible to believe that anyone can have the effrontery to describe as a "gain" for American workers the compulsion which has been put upon them by the national Government to become faceless, voiceless serfs in this inner empire of the American republic. It would be utterly impossible so to believe if it were not an admitted fact and if we did not know that countless citizens have been compelled to pay from $12 or $50 to this organization as an initiation fee, failing which they could not get work on defense projects or other tax-supported Government construction and might have to become public charges on relief or WPA.

This union was organized in 1903 and held several conventions up to 1911, when the boys met in Scranton and elected Dominick D'Allessandro, of Quincy, Mass., president. In all the 30 years since then the officers have put their heads together and filled all vacancies in the official governing list known as the executive board. D'Allessandro died in 1926 and the executive board elected Joseph Victor Moreschi president. The board has been self-elective and self-perpetuative all this time and death has been the only cause of vacancies.

THE CONSTITUTION is almost as comic and as terrifying in its brutal contempt for the rights of American citizens as that of Jimmy Petrillo's musicians' union, which contains a clause empowering him to cancel any part of the constitution or all of it and substitute his own will as the governing force. The hod-carriers' constitution entrusts the governing power to the executive board but doesn't even trouble to say who shall compose this board, although in practice it is composed of Moreschi, the president; Achilles Persion, the secretary-treasurer, and six vice presidents.

Persion was elected at the Scranton convention, but he is the only national officer who ever was elected and he has never been re-elected since, because no elections have been held. The constitution provides that the elections shall be held at the conventions, which shall be called every five years; but, of course, if there are no conventions, there are no elections, and the bosses just carry over.

The constitution says the headquarters shall be in Quincy, Mass., "and cannot be removed therefrom only by a general vote of the local union or delegates in convention assembled." Whether that is an error of grammar or an intentional trick I can't say, but, anyway, the national headquarters was removed to Washington in April, 1940.

Every five years Persion is supposed to poll the membership as to whether a convention shall be held, and Persion says he has faithfully done this and that each time the vote against a convention has been overwhelming. This may be so but, according to his own figures, less than 10 per cent of the members voted and, moreover, the vote is taken by the bosses of the local unions, who include some of the most degraded criminals in the United States, and few of whom, criminals or not, would encourage the idea of a convention which might arouse troublesome ideas about democratic procedure and imperil their rule. Then, too, the constitution further guards against the risk a a successful vote by those who might desire a convention by requiring a two-thirds vote of those voting to carry the proposition.

Under the constitution the president may depose the officials of a local "in case a question arises between the officers and the members" and appoint a sub-fuehrer from national headquarters to run the union "until harmony has been restored." This means, and in practice has meant, that if the rank and file demand an accounting of their money Moreschi may send in his own man or appoint as his representative the very local officer that the members are challenging.

WHENEVER he wants to take over a local all he has to do is imagine that "a question" has arisen. He then has constitutional authority to put in his man, who need not call any meetings and he has the right to grab all the books and papers of the local so that the rank and file can't prove anything in court.

Remembering that there has been no convention in 30 years, how do you like this provision of the constitution: That between conventions the self-elected and self-perpetuating executive board shall have entire control of all judicial business, including charges by individuals and quarrels between locals and that "their decisions shall be final unless reversed by the international union in convention assembly"?

By what process it was decided to hold a convention this year I do not know, but I think the weather had something to do with it. I mean the heat. The heat on this shakedown union has been terrific in the last two years, a fact from which these dispatches derive some little satisfaction.

America's War Status

By Mark Sullivan

Defining "Freedom Of The Seas"

THE NEW STATUS of the United States with respect to the war is contained in two speeches—that of Secretary Knox to the American Legion September 15, and President Roosevelt's radio address to the people September 11.

In terms of action the new status is this: Our Navy will, on sight, destroy or capture any Axis submarine or surface raider within certain waters.

SULLIVAN

Within this broad statement are some distinctions. As respects what our Navy will attack, Mr. Roosevelt uses the term "Axis." The term used by Secretary Knox is "Axis-controlled."

Probably no distinction between those two terms is intended. Both terms, if interpreted broadly, would include Germany, Italy and Japan. But no one supposes there is any intention, at this time, to attack Japanese naval vessels. Presumably what is intended is German and Italian vessels—primarily, of course, German ones, since they are the ones practicing widespread aggression.

AGAIN, as to just what we will attack, there is a curious distinction, upon which Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Knox agree. Both say that what we will attack are "submarines or surface raiders." Apparently we do not intend to attack German bombing planes—though these are, in certain waters, as destructive as submarines or surface raiders. One reason for omitting German bombing planes may be that these operate mainly over narrowly restricted waters—that is, waters close to the area of actual war. To include German bombing planes in what we will attack, might raise a question about the precise waters in which our new policy applies.

And this is a really important and delicate question. In just what waters will we attack? As defined by Secretary Knox, the waters are, "between the American continent and the waters adjacent to Iceland." As defined by President Roosevelt, the area is broader—Mr. Roosevelt says, "in the waters which we deem necessary for our defense."

MR. ROOSEVELT'S definition is, obviously, the one with the higher authority. In Mr. Roosevelt's mind, just what are "the waters which we deem necessary for our defense?" Once in an informal conference, Mr. Roosevelt defined the waters we might deem necessary for our defense as anywhere in the seven seas. Probably this is what we mean—or what we will mean and practice as our relation to the war progresses. As we now deem waters around Iceland necessary to our defense, so may we later deem waters around the Azores, or near Dakar in Africa, or practically anywhere in the Pacific—practically anywhere in the world.

Is this new policy of ours justified? The answer is yes.

To try to arrive at the answer by careful argument would be futile. The first requirement for argument is agreement upon the meaning of terms. And about the terms involved in the so-called international law of the present situation, there is no agreement. "Freedom of the seas" means, to Germany, what Germany says it means; it means to us what we say it means. Germany declares a "war zone," which includes the waters about Iceland; we declare a "defense zone" which includes the same waters. The "war zone" of one nation overlaps the "defense zone" of the other. Germany defies "contraband" as one thing, we as another. And so as to blockade and the other technical terms of so-called international law. Indeed, the very term "international law" is itself inexact. Hardly can "international law" be said to exist. For there cannot be law unless there are courts to interpret what the law means—and there are no international courts.

FROM REFINEMENTS about all this sort of thing, we had best get away; we should merely be lost in a fog of words. We can base what we have done upon actions by Germany. One alone, the sinking of the Robin Moor, is sufficient.

The Robin Moor was an American merchant vessel in the South Atlantic, thousands of miles from any war zone. She was sunk by a German submarine, without provision for safety of crew and passengers. We can omit any discussion about whether her cargo was contraband. The manner of the sinking, standing alone, was contrary to everything that has ever passed as international law, and contrary, as Mr. Roosevelt says, to "every principle of humanity." Besides it was, as Mr. Roosevelt says, "in direct violation of international agreements signed by the government of Germany" several years ago.

THE ROBIN MOOR was sunk almost four months ago. Had Germany offered explanation or apology or reparations, we might have assumed the sinking was a mistake. As President Roosevelt says, "it would be unworthy of a great nation to exaggerate an isolated incident." In the absence of explanation by Germany—and in the presence of other sinkings and attacks continuing to this day—we are obliged to assume the sinking of the Robin Moor was part of a general attitude of Germany toward us.

That the most powerful Nation in the world should permit a merchant vessel of its citizens to be sunk as the Robin Moor was, and fail to do what we have now done, would be to forfeit the respect of the world, and forfeit the confidence of its own people.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Private Purkey

Dear Ma: You asked me if I listened to President Roosevelt's speech telling Germany where she got off and I certainly did. I am so interested in trying to get a idea what may happen to me next that I wood not of missed it even if a Brooklyn series had been on the air at the same time.

I guess I am as good as in the war from now on for several reasons. First of all I noticed that he said that his orders to shoot first had been gave both to the Army and Navy so the Army must be in on it two now although I do not know how a Army can shoot at submarines. It has rained awful hard here in camp lately and the grounds we have been training in are so wet that maybe the whole camp comes under the head of "waters of self-defense." It is hard to tell the ocean from some parts of the camp and after the last rainfall I had a idea I was being shadowed by a U-boat myself.

Another reason I think the Army is in on it all is that part of the speech where the President said we got to strike rattlesnakes first. I have seen plenty of snakes around the camps I have been training in and have got so used to them I do not even notice if they are coiled, uncoiled or medium no more. I bet the Navy has no experience with snakes compared to a jeep. Then one other reason why I am sure the President was talking direct to me was that he said in a particular loud voice, "We Americans are keeping our feet on the ground." Remember that part, ma? Well any time anybody talks about keeping feet on the ground he is talking about the Army. That is where he let the dogs out of the bag. My feet has been on the ground for almost a year now and they are in shape for the worst.

I think he was including the Army two when he spoke about piracy. I asked Bixby what piracy was and he said it was robbing you without no notice. Well there are some fellows in my outfit who do that to me and others almost every night in a little game they are always playing witch I will not go into now.

The speech has got all of us talking. The shoot first part almost got me into trouble last night. I was on guard duty. I am always jumpy when out all alone in the middle of the night anyhow and when I heard funny noise I almost pulled the trigger. It is lucky I did not as it turned out to be Sergt. Mooney. It is okay to talk about shooting first in a Navy but in a Army you have got to be careful.

We are starting on a big manoover in a few days and the orders call for every jeep to carry three pairs of shoes. This makes me very nervous. Any hike that is going to take three pairs of shoes is not going to be no picnic unless we are just going to move the army shoe store as part of the operation. The President said it was a time for clear heads and true hearts and I guess he left out strong feet by accident.

Well, I guess I will close now and do not worry about me until you hear I am being chased by a U-boat. Love, OSCAR.

Errol Flynn didn't get to that movie probe in Washington, but John T. did. And John charged that every attempt he had made to get Hollywood to give his side a break met with failure.

Shucks! John in an excitable mood is pretty hard to follow, and it's our hunch that the movie magnates misinterpreted his gestures and thought he was trying to sell 'em another Western.

Bob Moses is to close the New York Aquarium. Where will visitors to New York go now when they want plenty of foul air and a few moments with some turtles?

After Ten Years

By Barnet Nover

A Decade Of Japanese Aggression

TEN YEARS AGO this week there occurred the first of that long series of "incidents" which were to undermine and ultimately to destroy the peace of the world and bring in their wake more misery, desolation and destruction than the long-suffering human race had experienced in many centuries.

NOVER

The incident was Japan's occupation of Mukden, capital of Manchuria, on the night of September 18, 1931.

Even at the time its importance was not minimized, for the action of the Japanese army was in direct violation of an elaborate network of treaties of which Japan was a signatory.

The event was actually to prove the watershed between peace and war, the dividing line between an ordered civilization based on treaty observance and mutual forbearance and the howling international anarchy of these times.

MANCHURIA, in 1931, was, to borrow the self-revealing remark made by Neville Chamberlain regarding Czecho-Slovakia, a far-away land about which few had ever heard. But the events that unfolded on the windswept plains of China's eastern provinces were in due course to affect the lives and fortunes of every living being.

Because the peoples of America and Britain and other nations on the other side of the world failed to realize what was happening in Manchuria was vital to them, because those statesmen who saw the situation clearly and wanted to do something about it, among them our own Secretary of State, Mr. Henry L. Stimson, were hampered by a misguided public opinion no less than by the shortsightedness, timorousness and stupidity of certain of their colleagues, no positive action was taken in 1931 or for years later to restrain Japan. And because Japan was unrestrained at that time she was able to proceed unhampered on the road of aggression. And in due course first Mussolini and later Hitler were to take courage from Japan's successful acts of brigandage and go and do likewise.

IT WOULD have been so easy to restrain Japan in the months following the Mukden incident. Between them the United States and the members of the League of Nations constituted an overwhelmingly formidable agglomeration of economic, military and naval force.

Europe was then at peace. Even Mussolini, for all his swashbuckling, had shown no real desire to take to the warpath. Adolf Hitler was then a cloud no bigger than a man's hand.

The opportunity was missed. The League frittered away the best chance it had ever had to show its strength. Nor, despite the efforts of Secretary Stimson, were our own efforts to curb Japan either heroic or effective.

The American people were not ready to take sanctions against Japan. Great Britain, then as during most of the succeeding decade in the grip of as incompetent a gang of fifth-raters as ever governed that great nation, was even less ready to act than we were. Sir John Simon, the British foreign secretary, was so blind to the realities that at Geneva he proved Japan's advocate far more than her critic. Democracies, it is said, are ungrateful. You cannot prove it by Simon. One of the principal architects of the present world catastrophe, he occupies today, a decade after the Mukden incident, the highly remunerative post of Lord Chancellor. In his case, nothing has succeeded like failure.

THE BRITISH have paid a fearful price for their Simons, Baldwins, Chamberlains and Hoares. And we are paying a stiff price, too, for having so long harbored illusions sedulously fostered by our isolationists.

Fortunately, the American people and Nation have awakened to the realities. We have begun to act with the strength and vision and determination that the situation calls for. The national policy is now firmly fixed. It is to oppose the aggressors. It is a policy which the clamor of the isolationists cannot and will not change.

The facts are now clear that the course which Germany has been pursuing in Europe, which Italy tried to pursue in Africa, Japan has been pursuing in Asia. Manchuria, a region with several times the area of the Japanese islands, did not satisfy the Japanese militarists, any more than Austria and Czecho-Slovakia satisfied Hitler. In each case there is no possible point of satiety until the entire world has been conquered. That is why the aggressors have openly formed a combination against us. That is why we can have no peace until all of them have been crushed.

WE CAN no more appease Japan or come to terms with them on any mutually satisfactory basis than we can appease Hitler or find a common ground of understanding with the Third Reich. For tactical reasons having to do with the weaknesses arising out of four years of undeclared war and the circumstance that she now faces an extremely powerful coalition, Japan may try to buy a respite by offering concessions to us. It is the counsel of wisdom to find out just what it is that Japan is prepared to offer us. But it would be naive to assume that any modus vivendi achieved with Japan at this time could do more than postpone the inevitable showdown.

The record of the island empire during these past ten years is not such as to create any confidence in any promises of good behavior and peace and nonaggression she may make at this time, any settlement she may agree to. That is why any agreement with Japan, that would have the effect of weakening China's will or capacity to resist or ultimately enable Japan to resume aggressions she may find it expedient at this moment to forswear, would be the height of folly on our part.

The Gallup Poll

Belief That America Will Enter War Found More Widespread Here Than in Britain

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J. Sept. 16.—Belief that America will enter the war as a full belligerent is far more widespread here in the United States than it is in Great Britain.

A survey by the British Institute of Public Opinion, affiliate of the American Institute, shows that just prior to President Roosevelt's broadcast last Thursday, only 37 per cent of the British thought the United States would come fully into the war. The last American poll on this same subject showed that 83 per cent of voters in the United States believe the country will enter the war some time before it is over. This does not mean, however, that the country wants to get into war; in fact, more than 80 per cent are opposed to entering an all-out war at this time.

Although the President's declaration that the American Navy will shoot on sight if approached by German war vessels may alter opinion in Britain about whether this country will get into the war, it is noteworthy that between June and September there was a sharp decline in the number of Britons who think we will enter the conflict.

The trend is shown in the following survey results:

"Do you think America will come fully into the war?"

	Today	Last June
Yes	37%	72%
No	23	14
Undecided	20	14

Those who replied affirmatively in the latest survey were then asked when they thought the United States would enter. The date given by the largest group is next summer.

Those saying "yes" to above question.

This year	19%
Next summer	25
By end of next year	13
	57%

The sharp change in British outlook since the poll last June is undoubtedly an aftermath of the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting at sea. It has been widely reported that prior to that meeting, many Britons fully believed that America was on the brink of war, and even thought the Roosevelt-Churchill conference was going to result in an American declaration of war.

When no such declaration came, a feeling of disillusionment apparently set in, bringing about the sharp decline in the number who thought the United States would eventually enter the war.

Another factor in the decline may also be the Russian war. Fewer Britons, it is claimed, would expect America to enter the war so long as the Nazis are pinned down in the east fighting Russia.

However, the majority of British voters say they are satisfied with the amount of help the United States is giving Britain at the present time. This is indicated by a second question in the British Institute survey as follows:

"Are you satisfied or dissatisfied with the amount of help the United States is giving Britain?"

Satisfied	61%
Dissatisfied	25
No Opinion	14

This sentiment is particularly interesting in view of the fact that the London Times has openly criticized the United States for allegedly falling down on the job of aiding Britain, and that Lord Beaverbrook has intimated that American aid is not all that it should be.

U. S. Shuns Peace 'Insuring' 3d World War, Wallace Says

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 16.—Vice President Wallace said tonight that while the American people were "tremendously interested in peace" they would "hate to see this war end prematurely in a way which would insure a third and more horrible war in our generation."

In an address prepared for the Fordham University centenary celebration, the Vice President called for a world organization to establish a "new order built on justice, charity and peace."

"The Hitler house is built upon the sands and the winds are blowing," he said. "I predict that behind the walls, where lie France and Poland, Belgium and Luxembourg, Holland and Norway, Yugoslavia and Greece, the winds are blowing at the foundations of Hitler's house. Force untempered by justice brings the tornado to the house of force itself.

"No one can predict the day of the fall of the house of Hitler, but all men of keen perception know that this house will fall from within through the falsity of the architect—through the refusal of Hitler himself to believe that the human being and his rightful needs are the bricks and mortar of any permanent house of God and government on this earth."

Speaking to an audience made up largely of Catholics, Wallace said that there were many passages in President Roosevelt's messages and speeches which paralleled sentiments expressed in papal encyclicals. He recalled that in 1933 the President had called upon 54 nations to join in disarmament.

"The President's objective was peace but he was not a pacifist," Wallace continued. "Hitler answered President Roosevelt's request with a demand for more guns. Fortunately, Roosevelt was not a pacifist and began building ships, a fact which will ultimately contribute mightily to the outcome of this war in both the Pacific and the Atlantic. . . .

"The way to meet the economic and social challenge of all so-called new orders which deny the sacredness of the human soul in its relationship to God is to present a democratic new order which under God will carry out the four freedoms and the eight peace aims. A free economy and a Christian leadership must remove the fear of war. Only by world organization may this be done."

Japanese Hold Up U. S. Ship at Shanghai

Shanghai, Sept. 16 (INS).—The American freighter Zoella Lykes was held by Japanese authorities today on demand that it unload a cargo of barrelled oil consigned to Manila. The ship had already unloaded a small cargo of flour and some oil for the Standard Oil Co. of New York's agency here.

The American President lines was said to be negotiating with the Japanese officials for release of the vessel.

DakarCommander Arrives in Vichy For Conferences

Vichy, Unoccupied France, Sept. 16 (AP).—The commander of French forces in Dakar, Pierre Boisson, arrived by plane today for one of a series of important conferences which already had brought other French commanders to Vichy.

Almost simultaneously, the Vichy government added 113 million francs ($2,599,000) to a previous appropriation of 150 million francs for extending the Trans-Saharan Railway to Dakar.

Boisson's trip followed those of Gen. Auguste Nogues, commander of Morocco, and Admiral Jean Esteva, resident general of Tunisia.

(Only last week, the Associated Press in New York was advised by competent persons that Vichy, Germany and Spain had entered into a virtual alliance for holding Africa against any British or American effort to obtain bases there.)

Houghton, Former U. S. Envoy To Berlin and London, Dies

Alanson Bigelow Houghton, 77, former Ambassador to Germany and Great Britain, died unexpectedly yesterday of a heart attack at his summer home in South Dartmouth, Mass., the Associated Press reported.

President of the Corning Glass Works previous to his diplomatic services, and a student of economics since undergraduate days at Harvard, Mr. Houghton was known as a "businessman's diplomat." He once said that "diplomatic questions require the application of sound business principles."

He was born in Cambridge, Mass., October 10, 1863. His family were glass manufacturers, but he had no desire to manufacture glass. Rather he wished to become a writer on economics, and prepared to that end at Harvard. He was editor of the Crimson, and class poet.

After graduation in 1886 he studied in Germany for two years until called home by his family to enter the glass manufacturing business.

Started at $1.25 a Day

From a $1.25 a day shipping clerk he moved through various positions to become president of the Corning (N. Y.) Glass Works in 1910. Under his administration the company developed one of the best equipped laboratories in the country.

In 1890 he married Miss Adelaide Wellington, of Corning. She and five children survive him.

New York's Gov. Theodore Roosevelt appointed Mr. Houghton to his first public office on the board of managers of the Willard New York State Asylum. Later he served as a Republican Presidential elector. He resigned from his business position to enter Congress in 1918, serving two terms in that body where he acted on the Committee of Ways and Means and the Committee on Foreign Relations.

President Harding appointed him Ambassador to Germany in 1922. Believing the German postwar problem was a business one rather than political, Mr. Houghton was largely influential in putting the Dawes Plan into operation.

Ran for Senate

In 1925 he resigned from the post to succeed Frank B. Kellogg as Ambassador to Great Britain. He served in this post until 1928. After leaving the ambassadorship, he ran unsuccessfully as Republican candidate for the United States Senate.

Early in 1934, Mr. and Mrs. Houghton moved into a newly constructed home of Georgian design at 3003 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

Harvard conferred a doctor of laws degree on Mr. Houghton in 1927. He maintained an interest in educational affairs as president of the board of religious education of western New York and trustee of Hobart College and Stephens College. He was a past president of the Washington branch of the English Speaking Union, a past chairman justice and goodwill, and of the Committee on International Justice and Goodwill and of the Academy of Political Science.

Mother of 2 Gets Proof She's Old Enough toBuyBeer

Indianapolis, Sept. 16 (INS).—A diminutive young woman, so small she had to stand on tiptoe to see over the counter, demanded a birth certificate of the county clerk's office in Indianapolis today so that she might buy a glass of beer without embarrassment.

"A bartender just refused to sell me a glass of beer because he said I 'didn't appear to be of age,'" she declared indignantly. "Why, I've got two children of my own."

The clerk gave her the application blanks.

Japanese Break Alaska Pact, Wallgren Says

Senator Wallgren (Democrat), of Washington, told Secretary Hull yesterday Japanese fishing boats had violated an agreement not to fish in Alaskan waters and that a Japanese floating cannery had operated there this summer.

Wallgren said it was the first time since the agreement was made two years ago that Japanese boats had fished in those waters. He added in his letter to Hull that "there is a possibility that they were there for some other purpose."

Army to Induct 98 District Selectees Today at Richmond

Ninety-eight white registrants will be inducted into Army service at Richmond today, with another call due tomorrow.

Meanwhile, District Selective Service headquarters announced that efforts were continuing to place men discharged from the Army in civilian jobs. One restaurant will endeavor to place between five and ten men each month, it was said.

Two applicants for positions yesterday were Master Sergt. Bernard Mannheimer, recently released from Walter Reed Hospital after 14 years' service in the Army, and Selectee William H. Bell, 1861 Ingleside Terrace Northwest, discharged from the Army August 12.

Grocer Lists Those Behind in Bills

Monongahela, Pa., Sept. 16 (AP).—Clem Pizzutelli, a grocer, made good today on his threat to post on a big billboard the names of one-time customers who he said failed to pay long-standing accounts.

On a 10x20-foot bill board at the busiest corner in this railroad and mill community 20 miles south of Pittsburgh, Pizzutelli had painted in bold yellow paint on a blue background the names of three persons he claimed had neither paid their bills nor made arrangements to pay them.

It was on the same billboard that Pizzutelli on August 15 posted this notice:

"On this bulletin board 30 days from today will appear the names of all persons who are indebted to me for one year or more and who after repeated requests, refused to pay. Every person whose name will appear here has had 30 days' notice, by registered mail, of my intention to post his name."

Pizzutelli, who lost all but one of a grocery chain of 19 stores in the depression, said more than 150 persons had come in to settle their bills. He said approximately 3000 owed him.

32 Billion Hinted As Budget Figure

By the Associated Press

Harold D. Smith, Budget director, yesterday began the preparation of a record-breaking budget for the next fiscal year and it may cost the Treasury 32 billion dollars.

The exact figure, however, will not be known until President Roosevelt sends it to Congress next January.

A 32 billion dollar budget would mean 10 billion dollars more than is slated to be sent this fiscal year. Smith's task, however, is something more than arriving at a huge total, for financial experts hold that expenditures on such an astronomical scale will be possible only if defense production reaches a tremendous volume.

They explained that, in the last analysis, the size of the new budget will depend, not on Administration wishes, but on the estimated amount of munitions the nation's factories can turn out. The cost of this production plus certain routine Government expenses will write the total.

SPAB Acts to Expand Stock Of Defense-Needed Materials

The newly constituted Supply, Priorities and Allocations Board instructed Donald M. Nelson, its executive director, yesterday to "leave no stone unturned" by any agency of the Government to bring the Nation's basic materials up to maximum defense and civilian needs.

The program calls for an increase in aluminum production of 600 million pounds per year to insure the necessary supplies for increasing plane production. In the case of magnesium, plans call for expansion of production by approximately 304 million pounds per year.

Expansion of copper production was called for through a broad campaign designed both to increase the available supply and to reduce the demand for the metal. It is estimated that between 150,000 and 350,000 tons could be saved annually by cutting down on unnecessary use. SPAB has instructed Nelson to seek to bring that reduction into effect.

A supplementary order providing additional specific regulations over alloy steel, alloy iron and wrought iron was issued yesterday by Nelson, in his capacity as director of priorities in the Office of Production Management. The order stipulates that deliveries of these metals under toll agreements—now in effect or to be entered into—must be specifically authorized by the director.

Alloy steel of all kinds is already subject to priority controls under the term of general preference order M-21, the one which provides full priority control over steel products. However, the present order includes a definition of alloy steel and alloy iron and specifically authorized the director to issue directions to any producers as to deliveries he may make or the kinds of alloys he may produce.

A further announcement by Nelson yesterday had to do with the granting of an A-10 rating to manufacturers of textile machinery for the maintenance nad repair of such machinery.

It was disclosed meanwhile, that the Civilian Supply Division of the Office of Production Management has recommended to the full OPM board a cut of approximately 50 per cent in production of household mechanical refrigerators.

At the same time the SPAB reaffirmed its decision not to grant priorities for steel plate to build the proposed 1500-mile pipeline from Texas to New York, after careful consideration of pleas in its favor made by Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum coordinator. Mr. Davies and Harold L. Ickes, the coordinator, have consistently urged construction of the line to alleviate the alleged gasoline shortage in the Atlantic Seaboard area.

2d Army Continues Push From Red River, Major Clash Expected Within 24 Hours

SPAN COLLAPSES UNDER VEHICLES' WEIGHT—Army maneuvers in Louisiana are responsible for the toll of this bridge. The weight of an Army truck, trailer and caterpillar was too much for the highway bridge at Campti, La. Soldiers escaped with minor injuries
By the Associated Press

Troops of the highly mechanized invading Second Army continued advancing and consolidating positions yesterday as it became evident the first major clash of the Louisiana maneuvers might come within 24 hours.

The sleepless 150,000 soldiers of the invading "Reds" were pushed southward and westward from the Red River toward the Sabine by Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear as scattered skirmishes heralded the approach of a clash with the numerically superior "Blue" forces of the Third Army.

A tank-loaded column of the powerful Second Armored Division, driving southward between the Texas border and the Kisatchie National Forest, was checked by massed antitank battalions of the Thrid Army shortly before arrival of Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, for observations.

After apparently pulling out of a perilous position, the "Blues" were faced with a greater threat when another armored division could not be located. They beat the armored forces to Hornbeck, key to the hard-road network leading directly through the Third Army area, but failure to locate the other division worried the staff of the 330,000-man Third Army.

The Third Army's other divisions pushed on, the First Cavalry advancing toward Shreveport against scattered opposition and divisions on the east advancing on the south side of the Red River from Alexandria. The Second Army was advancing on Leesville on a front between Alexandria and Coushatta on the Red River about 65 miles northwest of Alexandria.

Second Army commanders believed Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger would play a waiting game, permitting the Second Army to strike first and hoping to hurl it back with his superior forces.

"Red" officers said Kreuger's tactics of keeping his force compact and avoiding a big front which they might pierce or outflank had them puzzled. Heavy weather held effectiveness of aerial observation to a minimum.

U.S. Acts to Put Auto Workers On Arms Jobs

Copyright by New York Times

Six statements of policy, designed to cushion the impact of passenger car curtailment orders on the automobile industry's labor force and provide an orderly method of transferring workers from nondefense to defense work, were issued yesterday by Sidney Hillman, OPM associate director general.

Hillman's announcement followed a series of conferences between automobile management and labor representatives with Government spokesmen. Another conference will be held in Detroit Thursday to set up operating machinery for carrying out the policy pronouncements.

"These conferences, and the policies which we are now issuing as a result of the conferences, constitute an outstanding example of the results which can be obtained by utilizing the democratic process in an emergency," Hillman said.

The automobile industry is working under a 26.6 per cent cut for the first four months of the new-model year, and officials were told on Monday that December production would be reduced approximately 48.5 per cent.

Provisions in Hillman's policy declaration included the following:

"Where a man working on nondefense production is laid off and obtains defense employment with another company, and that fact is certified to his former company, he will not have to report back for civilian production work in order to protect his seniority so long as he retains the defense employment to which he was certified. If he shifts from one defense employment to another, there must be a recertification as to his new defense employment . . .

Statement No. 2

"Transfer of employes to defense work shall be by seniority in the following order:

"First, those fully qualified for skilled or semiskilled jobs on the basis of past experience and training.

"Second, those who can qualify within the period normally given to new employes . . .

Statement No. 3

"When hiring new employes for defense work, qualified applicants working on nondefense work with seniority in local industry will be hired before workers coming from other localities. When so hiring, the qualified applicant with the longest seniority record will receive preference.

"The senior employes among those working in plants where employment is decreasing who can be spared, who elect to accept such defense employment, and who are found acceptable will be the first released with full protection of their seniority rights.

"Skilled tradesmen laid off, partially employed, or employed at occupations other than their trade or its equivalent in defense usefulness, will be released upon their request, with protection of their seniority rights, for full-time defense work (40 hours per week) at their trade. The need for these workers in defense employment will be certified to the worker's employer . . .

"An employe loaned or laid off whether unemployed or currently employed on defense or nondefense work, must report back for defense employment to the company with which he holds his original seniority, if and when called, on notice of at least one week. Recall of employes to defense work presupposes, and management will endeavor to provide, full time employment, contingent upon the availability of the essential tools, material and facilities. Skilled tradesmen will be subject to recall for full time defense employment at their trades or the equivalent."

AFL 'Sandhog' Unit Protests 'Steamroller'

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Sept. 6.—Representatives of "Sandhog" Local 147, of New York, today charged leaders of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union were attempting to steam roller the election of officers.

They protested from the floor of the first convention of the A. F. of L. union in 30 years after delegates had approved action of the rules committee in changing the election from Friday to tomorrow and having a roll call vote instead of secret ballot.

The protest was led by Brian Feeney, business agent, and John Clarke. Feeney leaped on a chair and Clarke took a microphone in the center of the convention hall. They were joined by others.

President Joseph V. Moreschi, who has headed the union since 1926, pleaded for observance of rules of order.

Then William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, entered, and the shouting ended.

Green complimented international officers for their cooperation and said that at the October convention of the federation "we shall deal with racketeering in no uncertain way."

One of the 259 resolutions submitted denounces racketeering. The protestors said this resolution required much time for discussion and that moving the election ahead would cut discussion time to a brief morning session.

Morrison Wins Greenbelt Seat; 8 Go Into Runoff

Allen D. Morrison, with a total of 403 votes, was the only one of 14 candidates for the town council of Greenbelt, Md., to win a seat on the council during the election held last night. Four additional council members will be selected at a runoff election next Tuesday.

A majority of the 672 votes cast was necessary for election. The following eight candidates, who were next highest on the list, will participate in the run-off: Charles F. Barker, 292; Frank J. Lastner, 264; George F. Bauer, 234; Sherrod E. East, 230; Marjan P. Staniec, 228; Sam J. Cregger, 222; Thomas B. Ricker, 221, and Edward Walther, 190.

Other candidates and their votes are as follows: James L. Pinckney, 179; A. N. Gawthrop, 141; Sol Z. Shub, 137; Anna W. McNamara, 128, and Lydalu Palmer, 108.

Supplies' Delay Affords Free Play To Abuse the Muse

"What is delaying our order?" wrote a Washington photo shop to a supply firm in Newark, N. J. Came this poetic reply:

"Dear Sirs, we regret
We can't fill your order yet.
We know your shipment's overdue
At least a month—or is it two?—
But bakelite's scarce and rubber's rare,
(We're hardly sure of even air!)
Priorities and OPM,
And troubles even worse than them
Make us rant and rave and fuss,
And stew and sweat, and even cuss.
Still, we'll ship you—don't get sore!—
'Twill take a month or maybe more.
So keep on hoping; don't say die;
We'll fill your order bye and bye."

RFC Loan To Russia May Be Asked

By Turner Catledge
Copyright by New York Times

Responsible officials of this Government are seriously considering asking Congress for authority to extend a munitions-purchase loan of several hundred million dollars to Russia, presumably out of the funds of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

This became known yesterday as the Administration surveyed the problem of increasing aid to Russia and anticipated, meanwhile, the possible political repercussions of attempting to cover the Soviet Union under the benefits of the lease-lend program. Officials approached the problem in a most gingerly fashion, lest undue opposition be provoked for the new lease-lend appropriation which is scheduled recommended to Congress by special presidential message on Thursday.

As President Roosevelt revealed in his second quarterly lease-lend report yesterday, the Soviet government's war purchases here to date have been made with its own funds and through its regular purchasing agency, but officials conversant with the Russian situation say this cannot continue indefinitely, and they look hopefully for a long campaign on the Eastern Front.

Furthermore, and unless the President changes his mind in the next 36 hours, aid to Russia will not be included in the estimates for the new lease-lend appropriation.

Anti-Red Feeling Strong

Regardless of Russia's stand against the Nazi war machine, there still is a strong anti-Communist and anti-Russian felling in Congress, which, linked with the minority isolationist sentiment, might throw formidable obstacles in the way of extension of the lease-lend program, officials fear.

Aid to Russia is, nevertheless, a definite purpose of this Government and the necessity for financial assistance is expected to be apparent very soon. Officials insist that the Soviet government has not yet asked for such help, but these assertions are considered largely technical. Russia's tentative list of munitions requirement from the United States is understood to run well beyond a billion dollars in value and its resources convertible into dollars are said to be limited.

That American assistance to Russia would include financial if necessary was disclosed several weeks ago by Jesse H. Jones, Federal loan administrator, who said that this newest victim of German aggression would be given a line of credit for the purchase of war supplies in the United States if and when she asked for it.

"If it becomes a matter of Administration policy to help Russia, and if she is unable to pay for the things she needs from this country, I imagine some way will be found to help her," Jones said.

Ways and means of extending the aid, if and when asked, has really been under constant consideration ever since. The newest and most seriously considered plan would involve a frank request by the Administration to Congress for authority to grant a huge export loan to the Soviet government, or to a Russian corporation organized in this country.

This would permit the new lease-lend appropriation to be considered without any complications from the 20-year-old debate over the Russian governmental system.

Brewers Yeast, Peanut Butter Urged as Vitamin Pick-Me-Up

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Dr. Tom D. Spies, a leading authority on vitamin deficiencies, suggested a vitamin B sandwich today to help keep the Nation in tip-top health.

"The use of a well-liked and widely distributed food of high nutritional value and low cost should be advocated as a prophylactic guarding against vitamin deficiencies," he said in a paper written for a vitamin symposium at the University of Chicago.

"Such a product, peanut butter, when combined with up to 20 per cent dried brewer's yeast, is a rich source of the natural vitamins of the B complex, and a good source of protein, fat and calories as well.

"'Peeled wheat bread,' produced by the Earle Flotation Process of Manufacture, which removes only 2 per cent of the whole grain, furnishes more proteins, vitamins, and minerals than does white or other so-called whole wheat bread.

"A combination of this bread and yeasted-peanut butter is a most effective preventive or therapeutic agent."

Dr. Spies is professor of medical research at the University of Texas and the University of Alabama and associate professor of medicine at the University of Cincinnati.

First Lady Sends Roses to Parents Of Plane Victims

Hempstead, N. Y., Sept. 16 (AP).—The parents of three children burned to death when an Army plane crashed here two weeks ago received boxes of roses today from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Georgene, 3, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. I. Arthur Kramer, and Jasper, 5, and Pauline, 8, children of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cucio, were the victims.

The roses were placed on the graves of the children. Mrs. Kramer, who had written the First Lady asking for a complete investigation of the tragedy, said "Mrs. Roosevelt is the most considerate and understanding woman."

Woodrum Out of Race For Committee Helm

Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, yesterday eliminated himself from consideration as chairman of the important House Appropriations Committee.

The action assured Representative Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, of moving up to the chairmanship, succeeding the late Representative Taylor (Democrat), of Colorado.

Woodrum and Cannon both entered Congress on March 4, 1923, and became members of the Appropriations Committee at the same time a few years later, giving them equal seniority in service.

ADVENTURE'S END—Jeanette Every, 7, and Arnold Mescato, 10, whose projected world tricycle tour ended at the Children's Aid Society

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 16.—Jeanette Every is only 7 and Arnold Mescato 10, but together they set out to see the world—by tricycle.

Bus Driver Steve O'Connor stopped them on the open road (in Brooklyn) at 5 a. m. today and asked questions.

Their only answer was "We're traveling," with a gesture toward the suitcase strapped to Arnold's tricycle and the brown paper parcel tied to Jeanette's.

O'Connor delivered them, bag, baggage and tricycles to the police. A romantic gleam shone in their eyes as they gave a false address.

First they said they were going to Jeanette's mother's home in Brooklyn. Then they said they were going to California.

"Arnold woke me up early this morning and said we were traveling," Jeanette said. "We found the tricycles yesterday."

Later it was learned the children, unrelated, were wards of the Children's Aid Society and had been placed in a private home.

Bombing of Coast Towns Is Predicted

San Diego, Calif., Sept. 16 (AP).—Seaboard cities may expect sporadic bombing attacks designed to terrorize the people if the United States gets into a "shooting war," Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward told the San Diego Defense Council today.

"We do not expect continuous attacks such as London received," Admiral Woodward said, "but if we get into actual warfare—we are in the war now—coast cities will be more liable to attack than those in central States."

Frear and Co. Cited by SEC In Stock Sales

Frear & Co., Inc., local over-the-counter broker and securities dealers, were summoned yesterday by the Securities and Exchange Commission to a hearing September 24 on whether their registration shall be suspended for alleged violations of the Securities Act of 1933.

The commission declared that it has discovered by investigation that Frear & Co. sold stock in Pinlex, Inc., a firm manufacturing pinless diapers, whereas no such stock was ever registered with the commission, as required by law.

The SEC further stated in ordering the hearing that Frear & Co., in selling Pinlex stock, had "falsely represented" to investors that they would double their money within a year; had promised large dividends when in fact the brokerage firm knew there would be no dividends and that the company was operating at a loss; had told investors that merely by registering the stock with the SEC it would double in value, whereas the brokerage firm knew that was not the case.

The SEC said that its information tended to show that Frear & Co. had violated the "truth in securities" law by misstatements of fact, by using "manipulative, deceptive and other fraudulent devices" to sell Pinlex stock, and by selling the stock without registering it.

Frear & Co. has offices in the Woodward Building. Its president, according to the SEC, is Philip A. Frear.

$500,000 Wasted At OrdnancePlant, Auditor Charges

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 16 (AP).—T. D. Thomas, a former auditor at the Government's $32,278,562 Wolf Creek ordnance plant at Milan, Tenn., told a Congressional subcommittee today he believed a "competent staff of accountants would find at least $500,000 wasted at the plant."

The subcommittee is hearing testimony on whether there have been waste and extravagance at the plant and at the interconnected Milan storage depot. The Army has reported that up to September the two projects had cost $17,005,240 of the $32,278,562 authorization.

Because of "conditions we found at the plant," Thomas said he and three other auditors offered to resign but instead were transferred. He now is in the seventh zone field auditor's office at Omaha, Nebr.

"Misuse" of construction equipment was the main target of Thomas' testimony. He said much of it was permitted to lie idle over long periods although the Government, through the contractor, was paying rent on it all the time.

Girl, 6, Found Dead Locked in Refrigerator

Boston, Sept. 16 (AP).—Six-year-old Mary Ryan was found dead today huddled in a self-locking refrigerator on the rear porch of her grandmother's home.

How she became locked in the small compartment—3½ feet by 2½ feet—was not known and Medical Examiner Timothy Leary was not ready to report a definite cause of death.

She had been visiting her grandmother and when she failed to return to the house the anxious relatives scoured the neighborhood for an hour. Her grandmother found her body in the unused refrigerator.

Man 'Borrows' With Gun To Start Restaurants

Chicago, Sept. 16 (INS).—Ira Rhodes, 32-year-old parolee, had the ambition to open a chain of small restaurants and he went to loan companies chiefly for the financing, but his approach was slightly out of line, police reported tonight.

He went to the loan companies with a toy pistol in hand and demanded all the cash in sight, spurning the customary procedure of signing notes and getting cosigners. He already had collected about $3000 and had paid the first instalment on two eating places when he was captured. Police said he confessed all.

7 Indicted In Cemetery Lot Swindle

A cemetery lot swindle which may total $50,000 was blamed on seven men indicted here yesterday on fraud charges.

The alleged victims were about 100 Washington citizens said to have been promised 100 per cent or more in profits out of a cemetery promotion project which included promises of a memorial carillon, a radio campaign and a drive for cooperation from undertakers and physicians.

The defendants were charged with professing to own 5000 lots in Prince Georges County, when they really had only options.

The defendants were Richard D. Simon, Kenneth B. Martin, H. L. Sarshik, George V. Arlen, Ralph V. Moohr, Al Lavente and J. C. Herman. Their indictment followed an investigation by Assistant District Attorney George E. McNeil.

The charges against those indicted were:

First-degree murder—Harry Brandford, 48, Negro, for the death of Mabel Everett, 16, Negro, whose body on June 29 was found under a mattress in the basement of a Fourteenth Street Northwest apartment house, where he was a janitor.

Manslaughter—Wallace Washington, 33, Negro, for the death of Alfia Semode, 37, who was fatally injured by an automobile in the 2300 block of Bladensburg Road Northeast on July 12.

Pandering—Roy Ford, 37; Ethel G. Martin, 34.

White slavery—Bert McClellen, 36; Ernest L. Gibson.

Possessing obscene pictures—Maje Gray, 22.

Conspiracy, using the mails to defraud and violating Securities Act—Kenneth Martin, Richard D. Simon, H. L. Sarshik, George V. Arlen, Ralph V. Moohr, J. C. Hermann, Al Lavante.

Robbery—Harry Joseph Brown, 20, Negro (ten indictments); George W. Duncan, 33.

Assault with intent to rob—Sherman Waddell, 28, Negro; Alexander Bowie, 27, Negro.

Grand larceny—Raymond J. Pratt, 19, Negro; Robert Anderson, jr., 24, Negro; John Pickett, 20, Negro; Frank Dowdney, 22; Charles L. Bell, 21; Robert W. Dean, 18, Negro; William B. Cash, 20, Negro.

Unauthorized use of automobile—Robert W. Dean, 18, Negro; William B. Cash, 20, Negro; Louis Middleton, 22, Negro; Theodore Foster, 21, Negro; William H. Bullock, 23, Negro; Charles P. Mitchell, 30.

Interstate transport of stolen auto—Roy Lee Glover, 20.

Housebreaking and larceny—Albert Lee, 28, Negro; Russell Shepherd, 16, Negro; John N. Offutt, 69, Negro; William J. Dorsey, 28, Negro; William O. Johnson, 21, Negro; Theodore J. Jolley, 32, Negro; William H. Stiller, 21; Daniel Keith, 18, Negro.

Having untaxed liquor—Frank G. Williams, 38, Negro; James C. Harper, 20, Negro; Thomas W. Kinner, 41, Negro.

Assault with dangerous weapon—John A. Holland, 60, Negro; Lena Johnson, 34, Negro; Lease Cooper, 45, Negro; Ernest Warfield, 25, Negro; Essie H. Williams, 31, Negro; John Thomas, 32, Negro; Holbrook Jennings, 41, Negro.

Robbery—Sylvester Shorter, 23, Negro; Joseph Morton, 22, Negro; John D. Jefferson, 24.

Rape—Joseph Oslosky, 27.

Obtaining money by false pretenses—John D. Watson, 31, Negro.

Grand larceny—Charles R. Smith, 47.

Husband Lied on Pay, Early's Niece Says

New York, Sept. 16 (AP).—Mrs. Mary Catherine Coman, 19, niece of Stephen Early, President Roosevelt's press secretary, yesterday filed suit for annulment of her marriage to Dr. Dana Coman, 48-year-old chemist, explorer and former staff member at Johns Hopkins, Baltimore. They were married a year ago.

Mrs. Coman said in her suit that her husband had told her his income was more than $25,000, but that she had learned it was only $3000.

Gen. C. M. Bundel Dies; Served in 3 Campaigns

Modern School Tots Like Grown-up Clothes

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor.

IT'S OFF to school they go—boys and girls. Some will be first graders, others may be "upper classmen." It is difficult to tell just what grade tots belong to by the clothes they wear these days. Little girls dress like their big sisters and little boys dress like their older brothers.

Except for his short pants (long trousers are still not in vogue for the moppet), a little boy might be mistaken for a midget man, as well as his older brother. Rugby suits with matching shorts or knickers and a center-vented coat—cut just like a man's—are quite the thing. To top off the outfit he wears an Eton cap.

A First-Day Outfit

This costume might be a "first-day" outfit as children like to dress up more than usual on the opening day of school. For every-day school wear the boy's attire is toned down a bit. Cotton corduroy outfits called "oxcord" are what he likes best. They consist of shorts and shirts that button onto the shorts. Slip-on sweaters in striped cotton or the long-sleeved coat styles in wool worn over a sleeveless sweater are the favorites with oxcord. For the junior age boy there are also oxcord longies to match, instead of shorts.

As a warmer jacket, a matching oxcord zipper front version with an elastic waistband in back and all-around button belt, is selling well. It is particularly liked by the tot because the elastic band keeps the wind out. The juvenile mackinaw in the double-breasted style with a longer jacket is also a wrap that boys like.

Tweeduroy, made similar to cotton corduroy, but speckled like real tweed, is made up into outfits similar to those above. It comes in matching knickers, longies and jackets.

Peasant Trimming Rage

The little girl starting to school dresses like her older sister in sweaters and skirts and blouses. Not to be outdone, she likes best the "kilties"—clan plaid skirts just like those the college girls wear. Over her skirts and sweaters she wears double-breasted jackets and blazers.

Peasant trimming is all the rage on cotton blouses and full peasant skirts. These are embroidered in gay colors and are almost as well liked as the kilties. The peasant trend is also seen in one-piece cotton dresses.

Smock styles or princess models, ranging from miniature versions for the tiny tot, to long torso versions for the older girl, are especially popular for the dress-up frock.

Besides blazer jackets, girls like natural fleeces and tweed coats in boxy and reefer styles. Matching hat and leggings are usual accessory pieces. Many girls prefer to wear snow suits of waterproof bird cloth, cotton gabardine and wool in cooler weather.

Not to be outdone by her sister away to college, the girl starting back to school will wear a kiltie skirt, like the one modeled above by Gloria Jean. It is in authentic red and green clan plaid with pleats and fringe trimming.

Dressed in an outfit just like his older brother's (except for his short pants) the little tot above is waiting for the school doors to open. His suit is made of cotton corduroy that is sturdy, water repellent and spot resistant.

New Dramatic Shades of Red Are Featured in Fall Makeup

By Carolyn Abbott.

LATEST news in the cosmetic world is the emphasis on true, clear, red make-up for fall. Rouges and lipsticks no longer are corrupted with garish tints that stand out mask-like on the cheeks and lips. Instead, the shades duplicate the natural lip tones and harmonize with autumn's fashion colors.

Designed for "round the clock beauty," these new true reds accent the blacks, navy blues, greens, wines, purples, browns and the flattering American beauty rose frocks and hats decreed for fall and winter. Varying in depth and intensity of color, the new true red is the most flattering make-up shade put on the market in many years.

"Theater Red" is one of the new dramatic shades that give the features a clear cut, chiseled look. Clear and bright, the lipstick and rouge gives warmth to the face and at the same time blends with a host of the autumn fashion colors. It definitely accents bright green and black.

"Nut Brown Red" is another make-up shade keyed to fashion's dictates. Ensembled and packaged in a walnut shell, it is a rich red with a hint of brown, and was especially created to enliven the beige to brown shades. Also, it gives contrast to timber and mossy greens.

For those who want to change their lipstick for various occasions, there's a new gadget "Quick Change" for quick face-fixing. Inspired by the conductor's change-maker, the tricky gadget holds three shades of lipstick. There's "Nicole Pink," a soft pastel shade for formal flings; "Robinhood Red"—a clear, vivid red for campus capers; and "Indiscrete" a dark smooth color for date duds.

"Sunset"—a dark lumnious lipstick of the true red family is just the right shade for wine colored velvets. "Sunrise"—made by the same manufacturer is a lighter and more vivid shade for daytime wear.

Uncle Sam Gives Some Pointers On Buying Children's Clothes

MOTHERS assembling school wardrobes for their children will try particularly this fall to buy with thrift and wisdom. For such mothers the Bureau of Home Economics and the Children's Bureau offer the following four-point program:

"1. Itemize your needs. Take an inventory and find out what you need or will need during the years. Mend, remodel and clean what you can. Planning ahead enables you to budget for future needs. And you might be able to save money by buying such clothing as stockings and underclothing by the dozen instead of one item at a time. However, remember when buying in quantity that a child may outgrow the clothing before it is worn out.

Please the Child

"2. Remember the child is an individual. Clothing should be chosen for the health, comfort, convenience and pleasure of the child, not because the parents think it is 'cute.' Clothing that the child dislikes may make him shy and self-conscious. Usually a child will take better care of clothes he likes. Clothes that are easily soiled or torn, or are heavy and stiff may prevent the child from joinnig actively in play. In general, the child's clothing should be similar to that worn by other children in the neighborhood.

"3. Be sure of the fit. Try it on the child before buying if possible. If not, buy by the child's body measurement, not his age. Besides the child's height, have measurements for chest, waist, arm and neck. All clothing should be roomy. Plan new garments so they will fit after shrinkage. Or better yet, get preshrunk material. Select clothes with style features adaptable to growth, as hems and seams that can be let out.

Watch the Label

"4. Read the label. Find out about the material. Is it durable? Is it warm or cool? How much will it shrink? Does it wash easily? Will the colors fade? Wool garments must be labeled as 'Wool,' 'Reprocessed Wool' and 'Reused Wool.' Here are some other terms used to describe fabrics: 'Preshrunk' means the fabric will not shrink when washed; 'Sanforized' is a trade name for one preshrinking process; 'Water-repellant' means the fabric is resistant to moisture; 'Waterproof' means that no moisture will go through the cloth; 'Showerproof' means that light showers won't go through, but hard rains will; 'Mothproof' means the fabric will not be damaged by moths."

Design for Youth

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—Printed ensembles are usually a typical matron style but not when the jacket carries a youthful design like one worn by Billie Burke. This semi-fitted jacket, in a soft brown wool, is embroidered with a "tic-tac-toe" in a darker shade of brown. Billie's printed frock is in two shades of brown wool jersey.

To Greet Soldier Husband, Wife Reduces 30 Pounds in 2 Months

By Ida Jean Kain

THIS is the second time my nomination for the "woman with the most courage" goes to a Canadian. The story is that of a slim girl who eloped at the age 17 and who, at the age of 24, weighed 200 pounds and had completely lost her looks.

In the meantime, she had had four children and there is a lot of work connected with bringing up a family, doing all the housework, and keeping a garden. She has some excuse for letting her looks slip!

Her husband is overseas with the Royal Canadian Navy and, of course, he is looking forward to leave, and he keeps telling her to be sure to be right there at the station to meet him. Not long ago she got to picturing the reunion and to wondering whether he would be proud to introduce her to his friends. She was afraid he wouldn't.

Changes Herself

So she has taken herself in hand for a complete making-over. She wrote to me for the balanced menus, the calorie chart, and the specific exercises, and by keeping in mind how nice she wants to look when she goes to the station, she has been able to stick to her rigorous program. In two months she took off 30 pounds. She had her hair cut—she has always worn it in a knot at the nape of her neck—and has a new permanent. And she has even made appointments for a long over-due series of visits to the dentist.

As time goes on, her program is becoming easier to follow. Friends are beginning to say, "How smart you look," an d"Why, you lok 10 years younger!"

Keeps to Program

But, she writes, this is just the beginning. She means to keep right on with her health program until her weight and measurements are right down where they used to be. She wants to take off another 40 pounds, which will make her weight perfect for her height of 5 feet 4 inches. She is still a busy woman, so for part of her exercise she marches with the children and does calisthenics to the radio. She never slips a day of either diet or exercise.

She asks whether she can let us know how she makes out finally. Can she! We're cheering for her. It's like reading a good serial and we can hardly wait for the final installment.

But to give you the full synopsis in reverse order: If she had it to do all over again, she would do exactly the same. She would elope at 17 with the same man, and she would have four children. The only thing she wouldn't do over is get fat.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

'More Propaganda!'

"Un-American love-making" in the movies has roused Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, famous reformer, to another crusade.

Mrs. DeGoofey

The intrepid president of the Do Something About It League yesterday appeared before the Senate Committee for Public Meddling to demand that the Nation's womanhood be protected from what she termed "the false and foreign-inspired love scenes" presented in the films.

"Movie portrayal of 'love-making,'" declared Mrs. DeGoofey in her six-hour, 1200-page statement, "is making Amercian women dissatisfied and even disgusted with their husbands, and is increasing the divorce rate by leaps and bounds. This Latin lover propaganda is back of the whole thing. It is high time we had some good old, simon pure 100 per cent American love-making in the films."

Senator Tweet On the Job

Senator Tweet, Mrs. DeGoofey's long-standing enemy, inquired if the reformer spent her time "hanging around movie theaters."

"I have not seen any of these films personally," replied Mrs. DeGoofey, "but some of my friends' friends tell me they can scarcely bear it when they return home after seeing Clark Gable and Tyrone Power in movie love scenes and are confronted by their husbands sitting in their sock feet and undershirts before the radio."

"I cannot see," declaimed Senator Tweet, "why this august senatorial body should waste its time pulling this busybody's chestnuts out of the fire."

"I have always understood Senator Tweet," said Mrs. DeGoofey, "that you were unalterably opposed to propaganda of all kinds—excepting, of course, your own propaganda."

"My propaganda is NOT propaganda," shouted Senator Tweet. "It is facts!"

Getting Down To Facts

"Cold hard facts, Senator, or plain simple facts?" inquired Mrs. DeGoofey.

"You cannot question a Senator, Mrs. DeGoofey!" shouted Senator Chinn, the committee chairman. "Please proceed with your statement."

"Another evidence of false propaganda in the movies," continued Mrs. DeGoofey, "is the apparel worn by the heroines. Now when a working girl is portrayed—what does she appear in? Why a stunning tailored outfit that would cost at least $98.75 in any exclusive shoppey. Never is she seen in anything you would find on a $14.98 rack. And when they get her in the scene ready for the big clinch—out by the reflecting pool among the magnolias and palms and marble statuary, what does she have on but some seductive little number such as Cleopatra wore on the barge! Now I want to say that a lot of us women could be seductive too if we had Valentina or Orry Kelly to dress us."

Mrs. DeGoofey paused to pose for photographers, then launched into a charge that the movies did not faithfully portray clubwomen, civic leaders and reformers.

No Glamour for Women Reformers

"What do you see when a woman reformer is presented in the movies?" she asked. "Why some old battleaxe that looks like a newspaper cartoon of the 1870's. Now as a matter of fact most reformers are genteel, retiring women like myself. Moreover, I have never seen a clubwoman in the films who wasn't a sea-going dowager.

"I also object to the false portrayals of movie heroines' hair blowing in the wind, to the way they weep, the way they look after they had been out in the rain, to the way they are pursued by handsome rascals. Now this is the sort of thing that gives women inferiority complexes. What is more, it is directly in conflict with the policy laid down by George Washington in his farewell address——"

"This is getting us nowhere," interrupted Senator Prance, "Let's get back to the kissing."

"I was getting ready to enlarge on that," said Mrs. DeGoofey. "Now I understand that in the film, 'Purple Passion,' there is a kiss that breaks all-time records——"

"Before we go any further," broke in Senator Prance, "I move that the committee make a personal investigation of that film."

"Aye," chorused the committee.

Sandwich and Coke Don't Aid Reducer

Hollywood, Calif.—The girl who begins with grim determination to lose several pounds by lunching on a sandwich and a coke in the thought that she's "not eating much" is definitely on the wrong track, Priscilla Lane says. Priscilla knows her calories, keeps a little chart of them handy as a gentle reminder when she's tempted by a chocolate marshmallow sundae. Sandwich and coke contain more calories than a broiled steak and a glass of milk, she repeats, and the combination is much less nourishing and certainly not as good for the complexion.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Mary Haworth is now on vacation. Her column will be resumed September 29. In the meantime, letters addressed to Miss Haworth's attention will be held unopened, to await her consideration upon her return to her desk.

Bustle Ruffles

Hollywood, Calif.—When Elisabeth Fraser welcomed Harry Lewis into the fold of young players being groomed for stardom by the studio, she invited the entire dramatic class to a buffet supper. Elisabeth wore a striking cocktail dress of turquoise crepe with bustle ruffles down the back of the skirt and a deep yoke and cap sleeves of small teardrop beads.

'Sugar and Spice' Should Be Put In Styles, Too

Hollywood, Calif.—The woman who most piques a man's curiosity and interest is the sophisticated one with a dash of naivete or the ingenuous one who shows rare flashes of worldliness. The same is true of clothes, especially of evening gowns, because during the evening hours a woman chooses to turn on her charm full force.

Mary strives for this "sugar and spice" whenever she wears an extremely tailored suit. It may be something as simple as a man's-size lace-edged hankie falling from a pocket, a very elaborate clip in pastel gems and pearls or a blouse all frothy with lace, but Mary is certain to balance the manishness of her sult with something soft and feminine.

Professorial Set Treks To D.C. Aiding Defense

By Dudley Harmon

It's not only engineers, production experts and hopeful grass widows who are flocking to Washington. You who remember the hurly-burly days of the early New Deal may be surprised to know that professors are pouring into town almost as rapidly now as they did then. Many are already here, installed in defense agencies and as hard at work as in the NRA era. Few people seem aware that it's not just financial and production wizards who are taking over the Capital.

Among members of the learned group are several from Harvard, including Donald McWay, who taught modern European history, and John Fairbank, who gave lessons on Chinese history. Both Mrs. McKay and Mrs. Fairbank are as energetic as their husbands. The former did tutoring in English at Radcliffe and Mrs. Fairbanks writes erudite articles on Chines articles.

The McKays have taken a house in Bethesda, where they will settle with their three children. Mr. and Mrs. Fairbank are staying with Mr. and Mrs. William Youngman on Hoban Road before moving into the house at 1306 Thirty-fourth Street in Georgetown, which they have leased for a year.

Formerly Lived In Peking

In Cambridge the Fairbanks own a picturesque old house right in Harvard Yard, which they have rented to William Bolitho, brother of Hector, official biographer of the British royal family. Mr. and Mrs. Fairbank spent their first few years of married life in Peking, where Mr. Fairbank studied and taught and his wife did art research. She made many archeological expeditions and was the first to have the idea of reconstructing, via drawings, ancient buildings of the Han dynasty. Her reconstructions of buildings from only the few scattered stones which remained won her praise from scholars in all lands. She is now completing another article on her findings, taking time out from her typing to draw the many Chinese characters she must use. Mrs. Fairbank recently joined her husband here after doing research in the famous Fogg Museum in Cambridge. Both she and her husband speak Chinese—notwithstanding the fact that there are 20,000 characters in that language. In China the Fairbanks knew that famous scholar and writer, Dr. Hu Shih, now, of course, his country's Ambassador in Washington.

Though she has no connection with professors, another recent arrival in Washington is the daughter of an internationally famous jurist. She is Mrs. Mary Hand Churchill, whose father is Judge Learned Hand, of New York. Mrs. Churchill, small, dark and extremely pretty, has taken a house on Prospect Avenue in Georgetown and is busy moving and getting her young son settled.

Former Husband, Novelist's Son

The newcomer frequently visited Washington last winter and decided the place was so intriguing that it would be fun to see more at close range. Her former husband was Winston Churchill, son of the American novelist who was always being confused with the other Winston. The story goes that the British Winston wrote to the American one asking if he would please do something about his name, as both wrote books, it made for confusion. The native Churchill answered saying that since he was the first to start writing, he'd keep his own name, thank you. The story goes that eventually the two men met in New York and spent an evening together.

The current housing problem seems as much a menace to domestic life as anything else. One young couple have been separated for months, the husband working here, simply because his wife can't find a house. The couple in question are Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Cox of Wayland, Mass. Mrs. Cox has finally, it's reported, found a house and hopes to come here in October. Mr. Cox, who was graduated from Harvard only a few years ago, was on the Law Review and has since been doing legal work in Boston. His wife is the former Phyllis Ames of that city.

HERE AND THERE: Mrs. Loring Christie, widow of the former Canadian Minister, has a job with the Rockefeller Committee on Inter-American Affairs. For several years she was one of the town's outstanding social secretaries . . . The Duke of Windsor, who will pause here on his way to his Canadian ranch, is credited with this quip: "If you pronounce it "rahnch,' it doesn't arn money; if it's plain 'ranch,' you do earn money" . . . Returning to Washington this week for the winter will be Mrs. Cabot Coville, whose husband is in the Japanese division of the State Department, and Mrs. William L. Breese . . . Mrs. Coville has been in Nova Scotia, where her husband joined her for a brief vacation. Mrs. Breese was with her Canadian parents in New Brunswick . . . Mr. and Mrs. Simon Whitney, married last month, are starting their wedded life at Rock Creek Gardens under a slight handicap. Their furniture, sent on from Chicago, has been held up by a trucking strike.

Dr., Mrs. Orr Fete Betrothed Couple

Dr. and Mrs. William Ryan Orr entertained at a dinner party in their home on Cathedral Avenue last evening in honor of Miss Armanda Chittum and her fiance, Dr. Alan Frank Kreglow. Supper was served on the spotlighted terrace overlooking the garden.

The wedding of the honor guests will take place September 27 in the Metropolitan Memorial Church in Wesley Heights.

Luncheon Held For Janet Hartz

At a luncheon at the Army and Navy Country Club yesterday, Mrs. F. McKenzie Davison entertained Miss Janet Hartz, who will be married on October 11 to Walter Edward Gallagher.

Guests included members of the bridal party, Mrs. Harry Duncan, who will serve as a matron of honor for her sister; and bridesmaids Miss Lorraine Goode, Miss Patsy Kelsey, Miss Betty Anne Swagart and Miss Anne Swanson.

Also attending the luncheon were the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Barge L. Hartz, Mrs. Robert Moran, Mrs. John Shugrue, Mrs. Moran Drury, Mrs. Thomas Cajigas, Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Mrs. A. H. Ryan, of Ellicott City; Mrs. Osmun Latrobe, Mrs. Prew Savoy, Mrs. Robert Graham, Mrs. Frederick Richardson, Mrs. Onan Hydrick, Miss Meredith Howard, Mrs. Frank Yates, Mrs. Horace Williams, Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mrs. George Tribble and several others.

Lady Clark Kerr To Spend Winter In New York

Lady Clark Kerr, wife of the British Ambassador to China, has taken an apartment in New York and plans to spend the winter there. The visitor set some sort of a record for outwitting Washington society when she came here in the summer and remained several weeks at a hotel here without anyone, even the British Embassy, hearing of her presence.

Lady Kerr, the former Maria Teresa Diaz Sales, of Santiago, Chile, met her husband there when he was British Ambassador. During her sojourn in Chungking, when the embassy was bombed three times, the titled visitor spent a month of nights in a bomb shelter.

Lady Kerr will remain in this country for the duration and is serving as director of the South American division of Bundles for Britain and United China Relief, Inc.

Luncheon Honors Miss Mary Dyer

Miss Giovanna Stewart, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Paul M. Stewart, entertained at a luncheon yesterday at her home in honor of Miss Mary Dyer, who will marry Ensign David George Bryce at the Blessed Sacrament Church on October 5.

Among the guests were Mrs. Lowell Bradford, Miss Mary Ann Graham, Miss Lucia Kelso, Miss Phyllis Tenney, Miss Ann Keebler, Miss Betty Flather, Miss Mary Gruman and Miss Patsy Kelsey.

Miss Kephart, Dr. Anderson Are Betrothed

Former Chief Justice John W. Kephart of the Pennsylvania State Supreme Court and Mrs. Kephart, of Philadelphia and Ebensburg, Pa., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Henrietta Kephart, to Dr. McDowell Anderson, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Merle H. Anderson, of New York and Eustis, Fla.

Miss Kephart was graduated from the National Cathedral School in Washington and is a member of the Philadelphia Junior League. Dr. Anderson, who was graduated from Princeton University and Harvard University Medical School, is a member of the staff of the New York Orthopedic Hospital of the Haverstraw, N. Y., State Hospital and is on the faculty of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University.

Agnes Magruder Wed in Nevada

Capt. and Mrs. John Holmes Magruder announce the marriage of their daughter, Agnes, to Arshile Gorky of New York in Virginia City, Nev., on September 13.

The bride made her debut in Washington at a tea dance at the Street Club several seasons ago before going to New York to study art. Recently she has been studying in San Francisco with Mme. Jerome Reynald.

Mr. Gorky, who was born in Russia, is well known in New York as a painter and a teacher. He and his bride will return from the West shortly and make their home in New York.

Capt. Magruder is now in Washington on special duty with the Navy Department.

Dinner in Honor Of Col. Flanagan To Be Tonight

Col. James W. Flanagan, of Canada and Texas, will be guest of honor at a dinner to be given this evening by George Williams at the Sulgrave Club.

Arriving in town a few days ago from his home near Toronto, Col. Flanagan is being widely feted. On Monday evening he was honor guest at a dinner given by Mrs. Lionel Atwill at her Georgetown home. A number of other fetes are being planned in his honor. Col. Flanagan is staying at the Shoreham Hotel.

Venezuelan Hero to Pay Visit to D. C.

Starting on a whirlwind five-day official visit in Washington, Gen. E. Lopez Contreras, former President of Venezuela, will be met at the Union Station at noon today by Venezuelan, American and Pan American Union officials. Gen. de Lopez Contreras, who is Venezuela's highest-ranking military official, will be accompanied by his wife, Maj. Alfredo Juarado, his military aide, and Senora de Juarado.

Famous for reestablishing Venezuela as a democracy after the tyrannical rule of Dictator Lopez Gomez, Gen. Lopez Contreras will place a wreath on the grave of the Unknown Soldier as his first official act. From there he will go to the Venezuelan Embassy where the Ambassador and Senora de Escalente will give a reception in his honor this afternoon.

Tomorrow morning, the general will devote to visits of state, with appointments with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull on his schedule. In the afternoon he will help celebrate the Independence Day of his country's sitser republic, Chile, by attending the reception which will be given by the Ambassador from Chile and Senora de Michels. Then on Friday, Sir Gerald Campbell will honor him at a luncheon at the British Embassy and that afternoon between 5:30 and 6:30 Gen. George C. Marshall will entertain at a reception for him. Friday evening the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Adolph Berle will be hosts at a dinner for him and Senora de Lopez Contreras.

Saturday morning the general will visit the Pan American Union and take time off for a little sightseeing around the Capital. In the afternoon, the Ambassador from Colombia, Dr. Gabriel Turbay, will fete him at a reception at the embassy. That night the Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull will give a dinner for him and his wife at their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel. Then, following tradition, Sunday will be a day of rest.

Monday Gen. and Senora de Lopez Contreras will return to New York after an official tour of Annapolis and a visit to the University of Maryland. He and his wife expect to remain in this country until December, spending some time in Saratoga and the rest in New York City at the Savoy-Plaza Hotel.

Here on a special mission that has to do with continental defense, the general expects to make several excursions throughout the country studying American defense plans.

Nassau Visitor Is Staying Here With Mrs. Wilber

Mrs. Edward B. Wilber is entertaining a house guest from Nassau, the Bahamas, Miss Dora Langton-Jones, in her Shoreham apartment. The visitor is the sister of Commander Ronald Langton-Jones. Commander Langton-Jones, who often visits Washington, is in charge of all the lighthouses in the Bahamas. His sister is here for an indefinite stay.

Mrs. Wilber recently returned from New Brunswick, where she spent the summer visiting her father, Dr. Sydney Hinton.

June Coe Wed in St. Alban's To Lieut. John S. Ramsburgh

Before an altar banked with white asters and gladioli, Miss June Ainslie Coe and Lieut. John Stephen Ramsburgh, U. S. N. R., were married at St. Alban's Church last evening. The Rev. Charles T. Warner officiated at the 8 o'clock ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Lowell Street home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence L. Gourley, brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Ramsburgh is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clark Coe, jr., and the granddaughter of the late Col. Henry C. Coe, noted gynecologist of New York City. The bridegroom is the son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Jesse Houck Ramsburgh, of this city.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Arthur Paul Coe, the bride was gowned in white satin, fashioned with a full skirt, fitted bodice, a sweetheart neckline and leg-o'-mutton sleeves. Her veil fell from a Mary-Queen-of-Scots coronet and she carried a prayer book with a spray of white orchids and stephanotis.

Bride Has Three Attendants

Miss Virginia May, the maid of honor, wore a frock of gold faille, made on bouffant lines and set off with a Juliet cap veiled with orchid maline. Her corsage was a cascade of orchid gladioli. Bridesmaids were Miss Thelma Daly and Miss Catherine Cantwell. Their frocks of bouffant orchid faille were worn with gold Juliet caps and accented with cascades of yellow gladioli.

Lawrence L. Gourley was best man, and ushers were Lieut. Roy B. Engle, U. S. N. R.; Lieut. Pierre D. Collins, U. S. N. R.; D. Randall Buckingham and George S. Parker, of Pittsburgh. Only members of the wedding party and relatives attended the reception. Later, Lieut. Ramsburgh and his bride left on a wedding trip to Atlantic City. For traveling Mrs. Ramsburgh had chosen a black frock with a matching hat, trimmed in royal blue coque feathers, and black accessories. The couple will live at 2705 Davenport Street, Rock Creek Forest, Chevy Chase, Md.

On Duty at Navy Department

The former Miss Coe is a direct descendant of John and Priscilla Alden, and she is a granddaughter of the late Sara Werden Coe, widely known author and lecturer. Col. Coe, her grandfather, served as president of the American Gynecology Association in 1913, and later was in charge of the mobile hospital units in France. The former Miss Coe studied at the Drew Seminary at Carmel, N. Y., and the National Cathedral School for Girls.

Lieut. Ramsburgh attended George Washington University, where he was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity. He is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, the Sons of the Revolution and the Army-Navy Country Club. Before being called to naval service last year he was employed at the Riggs National Bank. He is now on active duty in the Bureau of Aeronautics, Navy Department.

Mrs. Barbour Nips Marriage Reports

Mrs. Carrere Barbour, who recently obtained a divorce from Senator Warren Barbour of New Jersey, says it isn't so. In other words, she denies the report that she will be married to Maj. William Duncan Herridge of Canada, formerly Minister to this country.

Instead, Mrs. Barbour will return to Washington soon with her subdebutante daughter, Sharon. They will take a house here for the winter.

Miss Bradford Is Wed to Mr. Davidson

Miss Catherine Anne Bradford became the bride of Wilbur Logan Davidson yesterday afternoon in a candlelight service at Flint Hill, Rappahannock County, Va. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin B. Bradford, of Flint Hill. Mr. Davidson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Davidson, of Oberlin, Ohio.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white mousseline de soie frock edged in a ruffle of embroidered organdy. Her long veil of illusion fell the length of her train and she carried a cascade bouquet of daisies.

Mrs. M. R. Bradford, jr., served as matron of honor. She wore a green marquisette frock with bishop sleeves and carried a garland of marguerite daisies. Miss Lois H. Grant, who was maid of honor, wore a similar ensemble. The remaining attendants were Mrs. Oscar W. B. Reed, jr., Miss Dorothy Dearing, Miss Ruth Abrams and Mrs. John J. Bushka. They wore yellow marquisette frocks and carried marguerite daisies.

Blake Thompson was the best man and ushers were Oscar W. B. Reed, jr., Howard Brinner, Oliver Abel and William S. Wilbur. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Bradford wore a pink chiffon frock with a lace yoke and Mrs. Davidson chose a blue lace ensemble.

When the couple left for Canada the bride wore a brown tailored suit and matching accessories. They will live in Buckingham Village, Va., upon their return. The bride attended Randolph-Macon Women's College and Mary Washington College. Mr. Davidson was graduated from Southeastern University.

Director of OPM Traces Progress Of Defense Effort 'Off the Record'

By Lucia Giddens

William S. Knudsen, director general of the Office of Production Management, traced the progress of the Nation's defense effort in an off-the-record address at the opening fall luncheon of the Women's National Press Club yesterday at the Willard Hotel.

Statistics were liberally interlarded with anecdotes as Mr. Knudsen told how production has been accelerated.

Mrs. Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, new president of the club, who was presiding for the first time, introduced two of the club's own members, who are making news by undertaking adventurous assignments.

Miss Dudley Harmon, society columnist of The Washington Post, is the first American woman to be accepted for work in the Free French capital in Africa, Mrs. Tufty explained.

Miss Harmon told briefly about her preparations for the trip to the colony on the Congo River in French Equatorial Africa. These consist largely of vaccinations.

The time of her going is uncertain, Miss Harmon said, and she divulged little about the nature of her work beyond hinting that it will be partly secretarial.

Miss Sigrid Arne, writer for the Associated Press, told of plans for going away to a new roving assignment. Describing it as "extremely amorphous" at present, Miss Arne said she would spend the first few months on the West Coast.

Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, was among guests at the luncheon served in the small ballroom.

Miss Eloise Davison, assistant director of the Office of Civilian Defense; Countess van Rechteren Limpurg, wife of the counselor of the Netherlands Legation; Mrs. Florence Kerr, assistant commissioner of Works Progress Administration; Mrs. Randolph Coyle, wife of Col. Coyle, commanding officer of the Marines at Charleston, S. C., also were among the guests.

Church Women To Hold Rally

The autumn rally of the Washington Council of Church Women will be held at 8 p. m. October 3 on the theme, "What's Right With Washington?"

Mrs. C. Leslie Glenn, wife of the rector of St. Johns Church, Lafayette Square, will be speaker on the program at First Congregational Church.

The fall and winter program of the council will be set up at the rally, over which Mrs. George A. Ross, president of the council, will preside.

The meeting is for a delegated body of persons responsible for carrying on the programs of the various local churches, and is not a mass meeting, the announcement pointed out.

Plans for the coming season will be based on the area work in which various denominations are concentrating on working out problems cooperatively.

The Council began this type of organization work last fall to bring "leaders and workers from the churches of various denominations in a community together in a common purpose: To learn the needs and resources of the community and to work out plans for meeting its needs," the announcement said.

"Each geographical area or community is the spot in which common problems might arise and solutions be found," it was stressed.

The are chairmen and the key women from the various churches have been making a survey of the communities this summer to discover resources, with reports to be given at the autumn rally.

Petworth Club Starts Making Clothes for Needy

The philanthropic section of the Petworth Woman's Club held its first fall meeting yesterday to start making garments for needy families.

The group met at the home of Mrs. J. E. Cribbs, 4105 Illinois Avenue Northwest, with Mrs. Frank M. Stuart and Mrs. Cornelia Russell as cohostesses.

With Mrs. J. W. Mee as chairman and Mrs. V. T. Brantley as vice chairman, the section meets monthly to make garments for boys and girls. Families in the community who need this assistance, and several of the missions which serve needy families are the outlets for this service. The club appropriates funds for the material, and members of the section do the work.

Ft. Meade Nurse To Tell of Korean Medical Progress

Red Cross work at Fort Meade and medical progress in Korea will be discussed by Miss Betty Alt, a returned medical missionary from Korea, at the first anniversary service and tea of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Foundry Methodist Church at 3:30 p. m. Sunday at the church.

Miss Alt is at present engaged as a reserve nurse under the Red Cross at Fort Meade.

Mrs. Carl Ratliff is general chairman in charge of the tea, with Mrs. Ross Gleason as vocal soloist. The service will commemorate the founding of the society for United Methodist women's work.

OPM Director at Women's Press Club

Underwood & Underwood

William S. Knudsen, director general of the Office of Production Management, was greeted by Mrs. Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, president of the Women's National Press Club, as he arrived to speak at the club's first luncheon of the season yesterday at the Willard Hotel.

Palestine Needs Women's Aid, Mrs. Breslau Tells Hadassah

The people of Palestine need "an army of women to back them, to supply the services they need," Mrs. Isadore Breslau, president of the Washington Chapter of Hadassah, said in an address yesterday opening its season's activities at a meeting at the Jewish Community Center.

Pointing to Palestine as "a real bastion of democracy," Mrs. Breslau stressed the importance of the hospital, welfare and educational services which Hadassah helps to keep functioning there.

"In Palestine they have shown courage in preparing for a struggle because they have hope for the future," Mrs. Breslau said. She pointed out that the Jews of Europe have less hope "because they are not even permitted to defend themselves and must depend on outside aid which we must provide."

Trees in memory of Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, President Roosevelt's mother, will be planted in the national forest in Palestine, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Rachel Kossow, chairman of tree planting.

There are 330 children in Europe who have certificates of entry into Palestine extended to October 1, and the Hadassah organization in the United States is trying to arrange to get them out of Europe by that time, Mrs. Fred S. Gichner, Washington representative of Youth Aliyah, said.

The certificates expired in April, but the extension was arranged in the hope of getting transportation this fall, she explained.

Group to Meet At Mrs. Biron's Home

A sewing and knitting group, to include beginners and newcomers who wish instruction, will meet on the first Monday in every month to make garments to be sent to Palestine, Mrs. Samuel Spintman, chairman of knitting and sewing, announced. The group will gather at the home of Mrs. Max Biron, 1383 Sheridan Street Northwest.

An institute of Jewish studies will be held on Mondays this season at the Jewish Community Center under the sponsorship of Hadassah, Mrs. Samuel Dodek, chairman of education, announced. She called education "a weapon for the future" against the effects of propaganda. The classes will include history of the Jews, the Bible, modern Jewish literature, Jewish music, Zionism today, "What the Jewish mother should tell her child," current events, public speaking and Hebrew.

Mrs. Meyer Bernstein, cochairman of membership, told of the "member-bring-a-member" functions which will be held by Hadassah this season.

Mrs. Kushner Plans Broadcast

Mrs. David Kushner, program chairman, yesterday arranged a current events "broadcast," in which participants gave news from Palentine. Mrs. Lawrence Koenigsberger, Mrs. Albert Platt, Mrs. Howard Katzman, Mrs. Robert Dennison and Mrs. Kushner took part in this feature.

Mrs. Aaron Shalowitz said the opening prayer. Miss Esther Silver played piano solos.

A dessert luncheon preceded the meeting, which was called to order by Mrs. Louis Prawde and Mrs. Herman Becker in blue and white costumes.

Mrs. Coyle Tells of Marine Morale Work

Mrs. Randolph Coyle, wife of Col. Coyle, who is commanding officer of the Marines at Charleston, S. C., on her brief visit to Washington yesterday told how her volunteer work for defense has grown into virtually a full-time job.

Although it's not an official title, her coworkers say she is "in charge of morale" among the men stationed there. She arranges several dances a week, collects magazines and games, sees that men at the hospital get cigarettes.

A frequent visitor to Washington because her estate, Marshalee, is near Baltimore, Mrs. Coyle explained yesterday why her friends in the Capital won't see her so often. The duties of her morale-building job are so numerous that she is taking her station wagon back with her when she returns to Charleston, to simplify the errand-running.

At the luncheon of the Women's Press Club yesterday, she was the guest of Mrs. Helen Fetter Cook. Looking cool in an all-white outfit, Mrs. Coyle was taking only a brief respite from tasks connected with harvest time at the plantation.

Her home there harbors something of a museum. Her son, Pat, 21, started collecting toy soldiers at the age of 2. Gifts have gravitated to him through the years until he now has several thousand specimens. Only recently he was given 75 small soldiers which were made in Munich. The friend who presented them had expected to give them to children, but seeing his fine collection decided to place them where they would be better preserved.

Mrs. Coyle has hung the windows of her son's museum with curtains made from chintz which was printed in anticipation of Edward VIII's coronation. Likenesses of him and symbols of the empire are printed in medallions on the cloth in a color scheme of red, gold and black. The limited amount of this cloth, which was made in England, makes it practically a museum specimen already.

In addition to all her other duties, Mrs. Coyle finds time to sell pins for China war relief. She was wearing one of the large enameled pins yesterday on her white dress.

She and Col. Coyle and their son are returning to Charleston tomorrow.

Mrs. Brooke Injured In Nonquitt Hospital

Girl Scout headquarters here has received word that Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, of 2021 N Street Northwest, honorary vice president of the National Girl Scout Organization and chairman of the national advisory committee, is in St. Luke's Hospital, Nonquitt, Mass., with a bone fracture caused by a fall.

She has been vacationing in Nonquitt at her summer home where she suffered the fall.

Anacostia Students Act for Business Group

A group of students from Anacostia High School presented scenes from a play, "Love in Bloom" at the meeting of the Business Women's Council last night at Covenant-First Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. James Drysdale, a member of the council, led the devotional. The group met for supper, after which committee reports and the program were presented.

Mrs. Nancy S. Williamson, second vice president, presided. Miss Mary Van Houten, hospitality chairman, greeted the guests.

The speaker at the next meeting at 6 p. m. Tuesday will be Mrs. Carolyn Harding Votaw on "Guiding Principles of Life."

Canadian Club To Give Party

Thirty-five singers from the Columbia Light Opera Co., under the direction of Ethyl Manning, will present excerpts from Gilbert and Sullivan's opera, "H. M. S. Pinafore" at the garden party arranged by the Canadian Club at the British Embassy Saturday afternoon.

The cast of this presentation, which will take place at 5 p. m., will wear Seventeenth Century costumes, lent by the A. T. Jones Co. of Baltimore for the British War Relief Fund.

As a finale there will be a tableau, featuring the songs "God Bless America" and "There'll Always Be An England."

Virginia Barry will be solo dancer, and vocal soloists will include Howard Moore, James Magill, Kenneth Kinsella and Vivian Wile.

Other events will include the fashion show by Jelleff's, under the supervision of Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, assisted by Mrs. Ronald MacDonnell, at 4 o'clock; a special program by the Marion Venable pupils and Scotch dances to the music of the bagpipes. Washington I. Cleveland is chairman of entertainment.

The committee on arrangements, headed by Mrs. Edward L. Fay, general chairman, and Dr. G. Victor Simpson, president of the club, is making special provisions for taking care of traffic and parking problems.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Bell, Dr. and Mrs. George C. Ruhland and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Herrick are among the distinguished people who have been added to the list of sponsors.

Tickets may be procured at the gate or at the Mayflower Hotel, the Shoreham and the British War Relief headquarters, 1317 Connecticut Avenue.

Mrs. Alpert Tells Hadassah Of Palestine

The settlement in Palestine has not given up hope for a bright future in spite of present international complications, and its supporters in this country should be strengthened by its example, Mrs. Carl Alpert told the business and professional division of the Washington Chapter of Hadassah last night. At the division's first fall meeting at the Jewish Community Center, Mrs. Alpert gave an account of her first-hand knowledge of the efforts in Palestine for the establishment of a Jewish national home.

Before she was married, the former Natalie Tennenbaum spent a year in Palestine, three years ago, as a scholarship student. She attended the Hebrew gymnasium, as the school is called.

In her talk last night, she stressed the work being done by health centers and hospitals in Palestine.

Mrs. Alpert has been appointed Hadassah's chairman of Young Judea in the District—the Junior Zionist organization for boys and girls, 10 to 18 years old.

She discussed last night the work that Hadassah is doing among the youth of America, describing the Zionist Institute which 50 young men and women attended in New Hampshire for a month this summer. They were selected by Jewish communities in various parts of the country to attend the institute "to gain more knowledge of Zionism and to learn more about living in a cooperative way," she said.

Mrs. Alpert urged her listeners last night to "work so the ideals of the pioneers in Palestine can be translated into the lives of American Jewish youth."

Officers of the business and professional division include Jessie Breier, president; Dorothy Streett and Elise Livingston, vice presidents; Dorothy Berman, recording secretary; Mary Lewis, corresponding secretary, and Rebecca Levitan, treasurer.

Mrs. Tracy Lay and Mrs. G. G. Duty, of Washington, are recent arrivals at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston.

Patriotic Skit To Go on Air

Franklin Bache Huntington, New York architect and descendant of Benjamin Franklin, will speak tomorrow evening on the "Heirs of Liberty" radio program presented by the U. S. Department of Justice in cooperation with the Patriots' Committee of American Revolutionary Societies.

Mrs. Edgar B. Meritt, vice chairman of the radio committee of the District Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, called attention to the fact that the program will be heard by transcription at 10:30 p. m. tomorrow over WMAL, following the original broadcast over WEAF and the National Broadcasting Co.'s red network at 5:30 p. m. (E. S. T.)

Frank Craven, noted actor, will take the role of Franklin in the skit which will be presented on the program.

The patriots' committee is headed by Mrs. William H. Pouch, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Copies of the radio skits, which are being broadcast at this same time each week, with dramatic incidents from the lives of American patriots, may be obtained from the national headquarters of the D. A. R. here, Mrs. Meritt said.

Dr. W. M. Gewehr, director of the history department, University of Maryland, will repeat his D. A. R. Constitution Day address over Station WOL at 10:15 tonight, after delivering it at the D. A. R. program at the District Chapter House at 8 p. m. He will speak on "Constitutional Crisis in 1789 and 1941." Mrs. Meritt will introduce him on the radio program.

Alpha Delta to Give Party at Wyatts' Home

Alpha Delta Pi Sorority of George Washington University will entertain at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wyatt, 1702 Kalmia Road Northwest, at 8 p. m. tomorrow.

Assisting will be Miss Laura Belle Wyatt, Mrs. William Clarke, Miss Beverly Marshall, Miss Gloria Grosvenor, Mrs. Willard La Rosa, Miss Mannevillette Sullivan and Mrs. Norman Hearne.

Mrs. Ellett Going To National P.-T. A. Parley in Chicago

Mrs. P. C. Ellett, president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, will attend the fall meeting of the board of managers of the National Congress in Chicago this week.

Accompanying her on the trip was Mrs. C. D. Lowe, junior past president of the District P.-T. A., who will continue on to Seattle to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Berger.

Miss Blair Jordan, daughter of Mrs. Lucian Jordan, fifth vice president of the District P.-T. A., will leave Sunday for Fredericksburg, Va., where she will be a student at Mary Washington College.

Man Gives Life In Vain Effort To Save Hiker

By the Associated Press

Diablo Dam, Wash., Sept. 16.—Pack horses brought the bodies of two men down steep-sloped Sourdough Mountain last night from the spot where they died of exposure as one of them attempted to rescue his companion, injured in a fall.

The victims of the hiking tragedy were Conrad P. Opitz, jr., 29, and Clarence E. Hale, 39, both of Seattle.

Hale sacrificed his life in leaving the shelter of Lookout Cabin, which he had reached safely with his wife, to return to the aid of Mr. and Mrs. Opitz.

The grief-stricken widows said the two couples became separated late Saturday in rain, snow and fog that enveloped them half way up the steep 5-mile hike to the summit of the 5500-foot peak.

The Hales reached the top safely. After an hour of worry, Hale set out from the shelter in the darkness. He heard faint cries about a quarter of a mile down the trail, and found the Opitzes, hysterical, about 50 yards off the trail. Opitz was caught in a tree after a fall.

Opitz lost consciousness after Hale freed him. After putting him in a sleeping bag, Hale and Mrs. Opitz started out again, drenched, cold and near exhaustion. Hale collapsed before they reached the trail, so they rolled into blankets for the rest of the night.

At dawn yesterday, Mrs. Opitz had to shake Hale to awaken him. He seemed out of his head, so she hiked on alone to the lookout cabin, to find Mrs. Hale frantic with fear.

Mrs. Hale, unable to find the men, hiked down the montain to the Seattle Municipal Power plant, where she had to break a window to attract attention above the whir of the dynamos.

"I thought I would find them and bring them in if they were half alive," Mrs. Hale said wearily. "But I couldn't see them from the trail, or locate them. I knew if I tried to leave the trail there might be three dead instead of two."

Both couples had climbed the mountain previously.

Man Arrested In $10,000 Demand Upon Maj. Bowes

New York, Sept. 16 (AP).—A telegram received by Maj. Edward Bowes, radio impresario, demanding $10,000 in cash be delivered to an appointed place led today to the arrest of a 28-year-old New Jersey man.

The telegram designated the Edison Hotel as the spot for delivery of the cash. Detectives said a man giving the name of Francis E. Keith, of Upper Montclair, N. J., walked into the lobby at the appointed time and asked if any messages had been left.

Police said Keith told them he was a former patient in Essex County Hospital, at Cedar Grove, N. J. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital for observation.

Jews to Observe New Year 5702 Sundown Sunday

Rosh Hashanah—the Jewish New Year 5702—will be ushered in Sunday at sundown with the traditional Maariv services in local synagogues and temples.

The services, marked by meditations and sermons, will initiate a 10-day period of penitence, to be climaxed by Yom Kippur—Day of Atonement—a 24-hour period of fasting. The date of the new year is calculated from the world's creation, according to Hebrew legend.

On Monday the shofar (ram's horn) will be blown, symbolically calling Judaism to reflection and repentance.

Escaped Convicts Slain Trying to Rob Bank

Topeka, Kans., Sept. 16 (AP).—Two escaped Kansas prison convicts were shot dead today at Macksville by State Bureau of Investigation agents while attempting to rob a bank.

State's Attorney General Parker said the convicts, George Hight and Frank Wutherick, refused to put up their hands and instead reached for their guns.

Officer Beats Bride With Saber, Kills Self

By the Associated Press

Pensacola, Fla., Sept. 16.—A quarrel believed to have developed over small tips given hotel employes was blamed by officers today for the bizarre acts of a Naval medical reserve lieutenant who beat his bride of three days with a sword and fatally wounded himself with the weapon.

Sheriff Howard Mayes said Lieut. Edward K. Harrison plunged the sword tip five inches into his chest just below the heart after inflicting lacerations about his wife's head and seeing her leap from a second floor balcony of their apartment to escape him.

Harrison died in a hospital last night shortly after the deed. Mrs. Harrison, who suffered bruises in the leap, was under medical care at a Pensacola Hospital. No other details of her injuries were available but it was said she was not seriously hurt.

Quarrel Over Tipping

Sheriff Mayes and Coroner L. B. Morgan held no inquest was necessary since Harrison's death "obviously was a case of suicide." Mayes said he was satisfied the lieutenant killed himself because he thought he had slain his bride and became panicky at the idea of standing trial.

The officers concurred in their belief the quarrel over tipping led to the tragedy and no other motives were advanced. Mrs. Harrison told Mayes that she and her husband quarreled on their wedding night last Saturday in a hotel room at Point Clear, Fla., over his "lean tipping" and the argument continued until last night at dinner in a hotel here.

Harrison hit his wife several times while in the dining room, the sheriff said he was told, after she had called him a "cheap skate." She claimed he struck her again outside when she tipped a parking lot attendant. The quarrel was resumed at the apartment.

Heard Bride Scream

W. M. McClellan, owner of the apartments, told the sheriff he heard the newlyweds arguing last night and went to investigate when the bride screamed, "My God, he's killing me." On reaching the door, he said, Harrison called to him to "go to Mary, she's jumped from the porch."

McClellan found Mrs. Harrison on the front lawn and on returning discovered Harrison wounded on a bed. Officers said the sword was broken in three pieces. They did not know whether it was part of Harrison's official equipment but assumed so. A Naval board of inquiry met today but adjourned without an announcement.

Harrison was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Christopher Harrison, of Elizabeth, N. J. Mrs. Harrison is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Hoban, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Capt. McMahon Again Offers Resignation

By Marshall Andrews

Post Staff Writer

Capt. Edward A. McMahon, of 2213 First Street Northwest, has asked to be relieved from active duty with the Twenty-Ninth Division, the second District officer of the National Guard to seek return to civil life since the War Department's decision to remove from field duty all Army officers above specified ages in grade.

Col. Walter W. Burns, formerly commanding the 260th Coast Artillery, resigned his commission last week. He is now at his home at Franklin Park, Va., on a month's leave.

Capt. McMahon, who is 54, has been a member of the National Guard for 35 years and was inducted last February 3 as commander of Headquarters and Service Company, 121st Engineers. May 19 he was transferred to the 111th Field Artillery in a shakeup of officers of the Engineer regiment and at that time unsuccessfully tried to resign.

After several days with the 111th, he was assigned to the post target range and last week was made personnel officer of the Twenty-ninth Division Antitank Battalion. In civil life he is an attorney with the Government Accounting Office.

The division, concentrated Monday night at A. P. Hill Military Reservation, Va., moved out in two columns early yesterday 42 miles southward where it bivouacked last night. Today it will constitute a Blue army advancing against its own 115th Combat Team, representing a Red army intrenched to defend a line in the reservation.

14 Eire Army Men Killed in Explosion

Dublin, Sept. 16 (AP).—Authorities announced that four officers and 10 men of the Eire Army were killed and 17 men injured today by an accidental explosion during army exercises at Glen Imaal, County Wicklow. Details of the explosion were not immediately available.

Nazis to Seize Property Owned By Dutch Royalty

The Hague, Sept. 16 (AP).—German authorities today ordered confiscation of all property within the German-occupied Netherlands belonging to living members of the House of Orange and Nassau, headed by Queen Wilhelmina, now in exile in Britain.

Queen Wilhelmina has palaces at The Hague, a summer residence called Het Loo at Apeldoorn, and a palace at Amsterdam. Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard have a palace at Soestdyk, where their children were born. In addition they have a number of farms and other property, the value of which is not at present estimated.

Where occupation authorities do not need the seized properties they will be used for "purposes of general benefit," the confiscating order stated.

[The Germans' confiscation of royalty-owned property in the Netherlands "served only to strengthen the opposition of the people . . . to their German oppressors," Dr. Alexander Loudon, Netherlands Minister to the United States, declared here yesterday.

[Reasons given for the act, he said, "are such as to arouse the maximum resentment among any segment of the Dutch people."]

Threat to Hedy Lamarr Laid to Dope Cigarettes

Los Angeles, Sept. 16 (AP).—Declaring he had smoked two narcotic cigarettes and "don't know just what happened," Sidney McDonald Buchanan, 22, of Baltimore, pleaded guilty in Federal Court today to a charge of sending two extortion letters to Film Actress Hedy Lamarr, demanding $500.

Judge Paul J. McCormick reserved sentence until October 21. He was arrested in Baltimore August 5 after leaving a job in an aircraft factory here.

OPM Orders Probe Of Bread Distribution

The Federal Trade Commission is investigating the marketing and distribution of bread at the request of the Office of Price Administration, it was announced last night, "to the end that the price of bread be kept to a minimum."

Leon Henderson, price administrator, recently expressed the view that bread prices were too high. The commission's investigation, which will take about a month, is designed to gather facts on practices of the baking industry for any action Henderson may decide to take.

Nazi Embassy Prepares For Break, Paper Says

Providence, R. I., Sept. 16 (U.P.).—The Providence Evening Bulletin's Washington correspondent reported today that the German Embassy is preparing for a final break in German-American diplomatic relations.

According to the bulletin, the embassy's records are being sorted to segregate those papers that would be destroyed before the staff's departure. The paper adds that secret arrangements have been made to have Swiss diplomatic and consular representatives assume direction of German interests in this country.

Necessary to Enter War, College Head Tells U. S.

San Francisco, Sept. 16 (INS).—One of America's foremost educators, Dr. Rufus B. von Kleinsmid, president of the University of Southern California, declared today that "it is necessary" for the United States to enter the war.

Addressing the Pacific Coast trade conference at San Francisco, the university president asserted that Americans are a war-like people and that mankind has failed to advance to the point where it can settle international problems in a reasonable manner through diplomatic conferences.

'V' for Victory

Private Henry Freedman got quite a shock when he came across a card at Fort Belvoir, Va., listing the name of a soldier as "King George V." He called associates into the office and a conference straightened the thing out. It was just a matter of punctuation which the army has dropped. It should have been "King, George V."

Auditors Feeling Impact of Defense

The defense impact is just striking the General Accounting Office in the form of billions of dollars' worth of defense contracts that must be audited. The full effect won't be felt for at least another year, and to meet it, GAO will blossom into one of the largest Federal agencies here. It's estimated that GAO will be compelled to hire between 3500 and 4000 new employes to handle the job. The agency now has 6000 employes but defense work will push the number up to approximately 10,000.

GAO officials are worried over filling the jobs. The agency now has about 700 vacancies on its staff. Most of its jobs are in the low salaried brackets and people outside of Washington are simply refusing to come here at $1200 and $1440 salaries. GAO needs about 250 junior clerks. It's planned to train these clerks and promote them to junior and assistant auditors at $1620 and $1800 respectively. Nearly 1000 Civil Service eligibles were asked if they were available to accept the jobs and only 50, or 5 per cent, have accepted.

GAO needs transportation rate clerks, comptometer and sorting machine operators. Applicants must either have Civil Service status or they must have applied for and have taken a Civil Service test for the position . . . Nelson Rockefeller is moving the communication offices of his Division of Inter-American Affairs from New York to Washington . . . Clint Mosher has quit columning for McClure Syndicate to join the Maritime Commission.

HOLC Moving

Home Owners Loan Corporation, a victim of the defense boom, closes most of its offices here today. It will open most of them in New York City Monday. It was originally intended to move the board itself and each of the 1150 employes. Now the board will remain here and about 860 employes are being moved.

Some 280 employes have declined to make the transfer and they have been given other Federal jobs here. The Civil Service Commission set up a division to help the employes find jobs in other agencies. All the 280 jobs won't be filled. HOLC is a liquidating agency and it will stretch out its work for those employes who are going to New York by filling as few vacancies as possible.

Uncle Sam is paying for the transfer of each employe's household belongings to New York. The employes have been given time off to make the trip and they won't report to their New York offices until Monday. Each employe and his dependents are being given transportation to New York by the Government. First to be moved were the treasurer's, controller's, and auditor's offices. These offices will be operating Monday to insure the employes being given their pay checks on time. The employes have been promised that they'll be moved back here when the emergency ends, but most of them have their doubts.

Lessing Rosenwald will be appointed conservation director of the Office of Production Management. He's an official of Sears-Roebuck and he was brought here by SPAB Chief Donald Nelson, who is an official of the same concern . . . War Department will be moved into the offices that HOLC is vacating . . . Mayor LaGuardia, Civilian Defense director, has written Federal officials to announce that he's to be boss of all Government-sponsored radio programs. He has told the officials that William B. Lewis, former Columbia Broadcasting Co. vice president, will handle all Government programs in the future. The "Little Flower" has invited a fight.

The President has extended for a year the appointment of William D. Terrell, chief of the engineering field division of FCC. Terrell was to have retired on September 1. He's one of the country's outstanding experts on radio and FCC contends that he can't be adequately replaced.

Male Help Gone With the Draft, Gas Station Hires Two Girls

SUE ALMOND
29 Randle Circle

DORIS SULLIVAN
1333 Valley Place

If twin pink elephants, wearing lavender fingernail polish and ballet skirts, had loped up and gone into a rhumba the two young men would not have been more surprised.

It happened yesterday. Driving into an upper Connecticut Avenue filling station for gasoline, the fellows gaped as a pair of pretty girls came a-running and began working on the windshield.

"They'll be pumping gas and air-checking tires in a few days, after they've gotten used to the new job," explained their boss, Leo Rocca.

Washington's first gasoline girls are Doris Sullivan, 19 and blonde, and Sue Almond, 18 and brunette. At $18 a week (plus a bonus) and with natty red, white and blue uniforms and plenty of fresh air, the girls are tickled with their petrol portfolios in the Rocca cabinet.

The innovation is the result, said their employer, of an acute shortage of male help due to conscription and competition from higher paying jobs.

"This is no gag," he insisted. "We were stumped for help, advertised and everything, until we hit on the idea of hiring young women. They are doing fine, too, though they just started at 11 this morning. No heavy work for them, you understand, just cleaning windshields and serving gasoline."

The Misses Sullivan and Almond live at 29 Randle Circle Southeast and 1333 Valley Place Southeast, respectively. The former is a senior at Anacostia High and her friend a junior at Eastern.

Returning to classes next week, they expect to continue working at gasoline lassies at least part time.

"I'll be on the morning shift, from 8 to 12, so that will give me all afternoon to work," said Doris.

Their uniform consists of white rubber-soled moccasins, red socks, pleated wool blue crepe skirt, white middy blouse with blue collar and red tie.

"Isn't it solid, though!" exclaimed Sue.

They agreed that the most prevalent expression as customers drove up yesterday was: "Well, what's all this about?"

Plaints Reach House Probers Of Hospital

More than a score of complaints from Washington parents reached the House District Committee yesterday in the wake of announcement by Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, the committee chairman, of a preliminary investigation of a recent outbreak of infant dysentery in Sibley Hospital.

Fully 25 persons called the committee to report cases of dysentery and other diseases, committee attaches disclosed. In several instances, the complainants were asked to file affidavits with the committee.

Meantime, District health officials emphasized that the dysentery outbreak has been halted and that expectant mothers and parents of new babies have no cause for alarm.

Conditions at Sibley have been thoroughly investigated by Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, the Health Department's director of maternal and infant welfare, who yesterday made a verbal report to Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer.

Dr. Oppenheimer emphasized that authorities at Sibley are "going the whole way" in completely reorganizing the hospital's maternity wards and nursery. Dr. Oppenheimer expressed confidence that steps now being taken at the hospital will preclude future outbreaks. Meanwhile, she pointed out, wards and nursery are closed.

Dr. Ruhland declined to comment until he had an opportunity to study Dr. Oppenheimer's report.

Randolph is awaiting replies from Dr. Ruhland and from authorities at Sibley and Children's Hospitals to his request for a full report on infant sicknesses for the last two years. The nature of the replies, the legislator said, will determine whether the Public Health subcommittee will be asked to make an investigation.

Smith Means To Learn How District Is Run

Lawrence H. Smith, a solemn lawyer from Racine, Wis., came to Washington yesterday and occupied the House seat and the place on the District Committee formerly held by the late Representative Stephen Bolles.

Representative Smith, whose successful race in the special election last month in Wisconsin's first district was his maiden political effort, confessed to reporters that he has little notion of how the District is run. But, he said, he means to learn.

"Whatever job I am assigned here, I am going to work at," he said. "It ought to be interesting to see what makes the wheels go 'round in a big city.

"I don't want to do any talking on anything. I want to sit here and learn."

Smith, a native of Racine, interrupted his law studies at Marquette University long enough to spend 17 months in France with the Thirty-second Division during the World War. One of his three children, John L. Smith, is with a National Guard organization now on maneuvers in Louisiana.

Smith came to Washington on a "no-war" plank, but he believes the voters of Racine also liked him because he had never before been in politics.

Forty-nine years old Monday, Representtaive Smith has practiced law in Racine for 18 years. He is a past department commander of the American Legion and has just completed a term as national chairman of the legion's child welfare committee.

In addition to the District Committee, Smith was assigned to the committees on Executive Expenditures and Invalid Pensions, of which Mr. Bolles also was a member. He has moved into Mr. Bolles' office in the old House Office Building. His secretary is Mrs. Josephine McCuen, who also served Mr. Bolles.

D. C. Heads Asked For Priority Lists On '43 Projects

The Commissioners yesterday requested municipal department heads to draft priority lists on projects contemplated under 1942-43 budget estimates.

The lists will be submitted this week to Budget Officer Walter Fowler, it was announced. It is expected that projects either essential to the local defense program or classed as "immediate" community needs will be given preference.

At one-day public hearings Monday on the 65 million dollar budget, citizen spokesmen protested violently against any increase in taxes to meet municipal bills and asked that only urgently needed programs be considered.

Commissioner John Russell Young said the task of trimming the departmental estimates would be completed next week and the final bill would be transmitted to the Bureau of the Budget for approval.

Utility Head to Speak

W. E. Wood, president of the Virginia Public Service Co., will be the guest speaker at the first fall meeting of the Fairfax County (Va.) Federation of Citizens' Associations, to be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, in the Fairfax courthouse. Thomas P. Martin, of Dunn Loring, will preside.

Woman Found Dead in Bathtub Of Apartment

Clad in a slip, Mrs. Zora Collins, about 60, was found dead shortly after 10 p. m. yesterday in the bathtub of her apartment at 42 Independence Avenue Southwest.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said Mrs. Collins, a retired employe of the General Accounting Office, apparently had suffered a heart attack as she washed clothes in the tub and had fallen into the water.

An autopsy is scheduled for today to determine the cause of death—whether it was a heart attack, drowning, scalding or a combination. Her head was beneath the surface and the hot water was running.

The body was discovered by Mrs. Marjorie Brown, resident manager of the apartment house, and Frank Butcher, occupant of an adjacent apartment, after tenants on a lower floor complained of water leaking through the ceiling.

Foul play was at first suspected, and Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty, chief of the homicide squad, was called out of bed to head the investigation. Dr. MacDonald said Mrs. Collins had been dead about four hours.

Homicide And Burglary Squads Grow

Mansfield Reveals Detectives Will Be Added as Result Of Centralization

An enlarged homicide squad and an 18-man burglary squad will begin operating tomorow as a result of centralization of Detective Bureau personnel by Inspector Richard H. Mansfield, chief of detectives.

Two detective sergeants were added to the homicide squad. This will bring the number of homicide investigators to ten.

The new burglary squad, composed mostly of detective sergeants formerly assigned to precincts, is the largest single unit ever organized in the history of the Detective Bureau. Its duties will be the investigation of every housebreaking and grand larceny in the city.

Other changes brought about by bringing into headquarters 22 men formerly in precincts are the addition of two man to the pickup squad, one man to the check and fraud squad and three men to the robbery squad.

To Widen Experience

Under the centralization plan, Inspector Mansfield said, the men will receive their assignment from headquarters and will be called upon to work in all sections rathen than in particular areas.

Principal object of the change, Mansfield explained, was to widen the experience of all men and to prevent the tendency of the men to "specialize."

"There is a definite need of specialists," the detective chief asserted, "but what we are after now is a good all-around bureau of men capable of handling any type of investigation anywhere."

The enlarged homicide squad, with Detective Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty in charge, will consist of Detective Sergts. John Wise, Aubrey Tolson, Richard Felber, Charles Carver, Reuben Nichols, Precinct Detectives Samuel Scott and Horace Caranfa and two new detective sergeants, E. E. Scott and Waldo Perry, of the Ninth Precinct and the fugitive squad, respectively.

Taking the place of the old clothing squad, the new burglary squad will be made up of Detective Sergts. Frank Ashley, J. G. Austin, John Caton, E. L. Dalstrom, M. J. Dowd, W. G. Fawcett, D. G. Fletcher, A. D. Lambert, M. J. Mahoney, O. W. Mansfield, T. M. McVearry, M. B. Moore, H. E. Ogle, G. L. Saunders, T. J. Sullivan, G. E. Thornton, F. M. White and L. M. Wilson.

Sergeants Added

Detective Sergt. K. H. Davis, Seventh Precinct, was added to the check squad, and Sergts. George Cook, Sixth Precinct, and M. O. Myers, First Precinct, were added to the fugitive squad.

The robbery squad was enlarged to include Detective Sergts. William V. Christian and R. E. Talbott, Third Precinct, and J. E. Ennis, Thirteenth Precinct.

Inspector Mansfield did not order any changes made in the assignments of nine men on an office duty detail. He said he was contemplating transferring the men and establishing a new office duty system.

Under the new plan, Assistant Chief of Detective Robert J. Barrett will supervise activities of all men assigned to the homicide, check and public relations squads.

Capt. George Little, former chief of the vice squad, was designated third in command of the Detective Bureau and supervising officer of the automobile, narcotic, bicycle and fugitive squads.

Rev. E. A. Le Moine Resigns as Rector At St. Columba's

The Rev. Emanuel A. Le Moine has resigned as rector of St. Columba's Episcopal Church, Forty-second and Albemarle Streets Northwest, and is retiring from the active ministry, it was announced yesterday. He served there more than 10 years. He preached his farewell sermon last Sunday.

The Rev. and Mrs. Le Moine are expected to leave tomorrow for the West to visit their son, Roy, a Navy chaplain, and formerly rector of Esther Memorial Episcopal Church in Congress Heights.

Upon returning here in the late fall, the pastor expects to make his home with a son, George, at 6113 Thirty-second Street Northwest.

Petworth Citizens Felicitate Truscott On Naval Post

The Petworth Citizens' Association, meeting in the Petworth Library last night, adopted a resolution congratulating Police Capt. Floyd Truscott on his new position in the Navy. It also adopted a second resolution asking the District Commissioners to appoint Lieut. John T. Wittstatt in Truscott's place.

Other resolutions protested the use of placards advertising alcoholic beverages, protested the rise of water rent in the District, approved the continuation of police supervision over school safety patrols and suggested that citizen groups nominate members to positions on the Public Utilities Commission. George W. Potter presided.

Neighbors Welcome New Father of Twins With Baby 'Wardrobe' and-er-Beverages

60-Day Term Is Appealed By Woman

Ethel Clawens, of Newark, yesterday asked the District Court to prevent Police Judge Hobart Newman from enforcing a 60-day jail sentence he imposed on her March 28, 1940, for selling second hand goods without a license.

Miss Clawens filed affidavits to the effect that Newman discussed court business with his Negro chauffeur, that he said he was determined to convict Miss Clawens and that he engaged M. Edward Buckley as his emissary in a controversy over Miss Clawens' appeal.

Miss Clawens charged in her complaint that Newman was unfair during her trial, which dragged out 10 days because Newman heard evidence only a few minutes a day.

Dismissed "Without Prejudice"

After Newman found her guilty, Miss Clawens asked a review by the United States Court of Appeals here, submitting a dozen sworn statements. The court declined to treat these as part of the record and dismissed her appeal, "without prejudice to any of her rights" to attack the conviction in a proper court.

The affidavits attached to Miss Clawens' complaint purported to be copies of those in the Court of Appeals record. In one, dated February 28, 1941, James Arthur Lewis, 48, Negro, said he had known Newman and his parents for 25 years, and that Newman "many times discussed with him his professional and judicial actions."

Lewis related in this statement that Newman said he was going to convict Miss Clawens to get a pass from the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. Lewis said Newman handed him a bill of exceptions filed by Miss Clawens without reading it.

The file included Judge Newman's affidavit denying all Lewis said. This was dated March 10.

A second statement by Lewis, dated March 6, a few days before Newman's affidavit, repudiated his first statement. In the second statement, Lewis said he was drunk when he signed it and did not know its contents until March 5. A statement by Milton Jacobs, of Newark, said Lewis was sober when he signed the first statement.

Makes Third Statement

The third statement by Lewis was dated March 22, 1941, and was made under questioning in the office of District Attorney Edward M. Curran. In this, Lewis reaffirmed most of the first statement and said he gave the second one because Buckley came to New York and threatened him with action by Department of Justice agents. Lewis said Attorney Ralph Bosch and Frank Clayborne, whom he called a "runner" for Buckley, were with Buckley.

Buckley and the others, in other statements, denied making any threats.

When questioned by Curran's staff, Lewis said he still has the court papers which he had claimed Newman gave him. His employer, J. Irving Kaplan, North Arlington, N. J., said in an affidavit that he looked for the papers and found them where Lewis said they were hidden in his drugstore. Kaplan said he did this when Lewis telephoned him from Curran's office while giving his statement there.

Rummage Sale Today

The Junior Women's Auxiliary of the Falls Episcopal Church, Falls Church, Va., will sponsor a benefit rummage sale tomorrow, in the Parish House, beginning at 10 a. m.

Windom Place Home Gay as Dad Returns From Hospital

The neighbors last night welcomed home Karl Keller after one of those days that are the privilege of few men. His wife bore him twin girls yesterday at Doctors Hospital.

Keller lives at 4521 Windom Place Northwest, but his doorstep last night included the whole of the 4500 block of the street.

Shortly after nightfall a neighbor turned the light on the Keller porch, and everybody gathered round. A sign meanwhile was painted in someone's cellar: "Congratulations 'Pop' from the neighbors."

On a wire was strung a couple of pairs of diapers, some kewpie dolls, clothes pins and safety pins. A couple of the more thoughtful neighbors placed a bottle of rye and a bottle of rum on the steps.

Then everyone went back to his own front porch and waited.

The clock went around, passing 9 p. m., the closing hour at Doctors Hospital. Someone shouted how could a guy be expected to come right home on the night of such a great event.

Someone else said, "Karl's a sober boy."

Finally a neighbor called his mother's home, where he was supposed to be. He was told to come home because his dog was barking and keeping all the neighbors awake. Keller apologized and raced home.

When he stepped out of his auto everyone applauded.

His statement: "The doctor said two girls are better than one boy any day."

Army Promotes Chevy Chase Youth To Lieutenancy

From corporal to second lieutenant in one jump is the record of Robert D. Marsden, of Chevy Chase, Md.

MARSDEN

Lieut. Marsden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger D. Marsden, 6302 Broad Branch Road, was selected February 10 and promoted to corporal June 13 at Fort Story, Va. He was awarded a commission in the Signal Corps September 4 and has reported for duty at Fort Monmouth, N. J., it was announced yesterday.

The 23-year-old officer is an honor graduate of Lehigh University, where he took two years of R. O. T. C. and received a bachelor's degree in engineering.

Prowler Escapes After Struggle

Called by a resident to investigate noises on the roof of 1442 Somerset Place Northwest, Bernard West, the janitor, discovered a 20-year-old prowler there. When West seized the youth, the latter drew a knife and West hit him over the head with a baseball bat. The wounded prowler, however, managed to escape.

Wastepaper Drive Opens In Capital

Between 70 and 80 calls were received yesterday by the OPM-sponsored "waste paper for defense" collection agency on the first day of its campaign here.

Householders have been requested to save papers until lots of 100 pounds or more have been collected for eventual use in defense packing. Collections will be made during the coming weeks by scrap dealers and charity agencies.

"Defense packing" covers many things, it was pointed out. For instance, a piece of paper the size of an envelope is sufficient to pack one bullet. Every piece of machinery sent abroad must be wrapped in corrugated boxes which are manufactured from wastepaper.

Persons calling the collection headquarters at Republic 2131 are given the choice of donating paper to a given organization such as the Salvation Army or Goodwill Industries or of selling it outright to a dealer. Both dealers and charities will in turn sell the paper to accredited firms where it will be converted into defense uses.

While there is no set price on waste paper in the District, prices vary with the grade of paper from 30 to 50 cents a hundred pounds.

Similar campaigns already have been instituted in large cities throughout the country. Officials said yesterday that the interest aroused here on the campaign's initial day compares favorably to early interest in other cities where the campaign has been successful.

Chest to Start New Radio Series

Inaugurating a new series of Community Chest-sponsored radio programs, a group of civic leaders will appear in a program titled "Who's Who and What They Do," to be aired for the first time this evening from 7:30 to 7:45 on Station WWDC.

Heard on the program will be E. K. Morris, chairman of residential solicitation under the Metropolitan Unit for the approaching campaign; Mrs. Edward W. Sturdevant, chairman of Area III, and Mrs. James L. Karrick, chairman of the Dupont Circle Division, in the same unit.

Old Airport Is Purchased By the Army

146-Acre Field Will Be Taken Over Soon, Somervell Reveals; Now Privately Leased

Washington Airport, at the south end of Highway Bridge, which was one of the world's leading air terminals before opening of the National Airport at Gravelly Point, will be taken over soon by the War Department.

The 146-acre air field, formed by the merger of Washington and Hoover airports in 1930, has been purchased by the War Department under a million-dollar appropriation voted by Congress in June. The deed will be recorded in the Arlington Courthouse within the next several days, it was learned yesterday.

When the War Department requested the appropriation, it was planned to use the airport as a drill field in connection with the Arlington Cantonment. But since the President's decision to locate the new War Department Building on an 80-acre tract adjacent to the airport, these plans have been revamped.

Plans to Be Ready Soon

Brig. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, chief of the construction division of the Quartermaster General's office, said last night the new plans would be ready shortly.

Before being superseded by the airport at Gravelly Point, the Washington Airport was handling 150 airline arrivals and departures a day. In addition, there were between 2,200 and 2,300 private and nonscheduled trips operating weekly out of the airport. This volume of operations surpassed that of the 28-million-dollar LaGuardia Field in New York.

Leased to Charter Service

Since the new airport was opened in June, the Washington Airport has been leased to the Washington Air Charter Service, which has operated a private flying field.

The Washington Airport was the subject of several bitter controversies, most important of which was the battle over the closing of Military Road, which ran through the field and constituted a hazard for planes attempting to land.

The Military Road controversy raged from 1933 to 1938, when Federal legislation closed the roadway, providing for payment of $25,000 by the airport to Arlington County to finance construction of a bypass.

Pickett to Speak

Wilbur Pickett, special assistant to the Attorney General, will discuss "Recent Development in Civil Service Laws" at the weekly luncheon of the Federal Bar Association at 12:30 p. m. today in the Harrington Hotel.

Suits of Armor Foreseen Again As Armies Protect Their Men

By the Associated Press

Fighting men the world over have revised their opinions as to what constitutes a sissy since the World War.

Back in the days of the Lafayette Escadrille, fliers who used parachutes were considered definitely pantywaists, and those who walked away from a crackup were few and far between.

In naval services, there was a similar apparent disregard for lives of gun crews and other deck personnel. Except for the heaviest guns, their crews frequently were entirely without protection from enemy gunfire.

The emphasis now is on giving the fighting man as much protection as possible. There even is talk of a return to some form of suits of armor.

In all major air forces, not only fighter pilots but the entire crews of the big bombers wear parachutes when on combat duty and they don't hesitate to use them.

Provision of bullet-proof seats and windshields for fighting planes is, of course, an old story now.

Another example of the change in attitude is to be found in the fact that the United States Navy is spending 500 million dollars to provide splinter protection for the deck and gun crews of its older combat ships. This consists chiefly of armor-plated enclosures around the pom-poms and heavier anti-aircraft guns and removal of all possible projecting surfaces which might be likely to splinter if hit by bombs or shells.

The German army, once prodigal with its manpower, has, in addition to putting its striking forces in heavily armored vehicles, adopted open formation fighting tactics for its infantry, in contrast to the shoulder-to-shoulder mass attacks it used in 1914-18.

Cold-blooded practicality, not humanitarianism, is chiefly responsible for the change.

As the weapons of moderen warfare became more and more destructive, they also became more complex and it took longer to train men to use them. Thus, in requiring the R. A. F. fighter pilots to wear parachutes, Britain had first in mind the fact that it takes a minimum of seven months to train a good combat pilot, whereas mass production methods can turn out a fighter plane in a few weeks.

Whenever Britain loses a plane but the pilot parachutes safely to earth behind his own lines, that means that in a few hours he may be in the air again fighting the Nazis.

Until the current Russo-German conflict, the present war had killed many more civilians than soldiers.

Broadway's White-Tie Workman Dies

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 16.—He wore overalls by day, faultless evening clothes by night. His name was John Vozzie, but Broadway called him Chief Jack Hamilton, or just "The Chief."

Last night he died and Broadway mourned the passing of its workingman playboy.

For 20 years the Chief, who worked as a photo-engraver by day, was a familiar figure among New York's night life celebrities. He was the pal of big shots and good Samaritan to Broadway folk down on their luck.

Many of those big shots came to see him while he was ill at a hospital, many sent telegrams.

The Chief held to a daily routine. He worked from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m., went home to eat at 5 p. m., then went to bed. He would get up at about 10:30 p. m., dress in evening clothes, then sally forth to Broadway. He would get home about 5 or 6 a. m.—and be in his overalls at his job by 8.

The family, planning funeral arrangements, said they thought the Chief would have liked his funeral at St. Malachy's, Broadway's church.

At the photo-engraving plant where the 44-year-old Chief worked his friends said he made "good money" and might have had some investments to finance his nocturnal pleasures.

HI HAT HOLDS DIZZY CONCERT. While the Hi Hat's Four M's were in Atlantic City, they did more than lie on the sand. They perfected eight new specialty numbers, all on the nutsey side. This evening they will present the whole bunch for the first time. The event promises to be one of the wackiest concerts ever, will provide Hi Hat customers with a solid evening of laughs. Jimmy Summerville, leader of the Four M's, says the top numbers of the program will be "Paddy Callahan," just composed by Dawson and Donez; "Twenty-One Dollars a Day Once a Month," "Phil the Phluter's Ball," "The Reluctant Dragon," "Who Threw the Overalls in Mrs. Murphy's Chowder?" a burlesque of "Dark Eyes" with all Four M's dressed as Russians, a trick arrangement of "You Are My Sunshine" and a "Gay Nineties Medley."

Casino Royal will celebrate its "Fall Opening Week," beginning next Monday. There'll be an all new fiesta revue with big doings every night, a press party (oops!) on Wednesday.

A SINGING MODEL is beautiful Mary Byrnes, who will carol with Paul Kain's Five, opening in Mayfair next Monday. Mary hails from Dallas, Tex., modeled with Linda Darnell and Georgia Carroll, now of Hollywood, in the big Southwest style shows staged in that lively city. From modeling she graduated into singing for college orchestras and leading Western night spots . . . She is the daughter of Henry Edward Byrnes, who played a prominent part in the founding of the League of Nations.

VINCENT LIBERACE, dynamic young pianist, who will make his bow in the Neptune Room on Saturday

THE METRONOME ROOM will open on Friday, September 26 (which seems to bear out our prophesy that they'd splash into the picture during the third week of September). This should be good news to those youngsters who are always asking plaintively, "When is Metronome going to open?" More news later about the band.

IT'S "STUNT WEEK" at the Lotus. Denny Dennis, of the new "Novelty Revue," rides a unicycle so high that he has to mount it via a ladder. Denny juggles Indian clubs and balls, also spins a rope while he's spinning on the unicycle. He's a handsome blonde gossoon, which doesn't hurt the act a bit . . . Other star stunters are Les Hunt and Juliet who turn cigarette smoke into confetti, the confetti into scarfs and the scarfs into flowers.

The Shoreham Blue Room is due for its formal opening around October 1. Meantime, the bandstand will be done over in eye-popping red and white stripes and a new amplification system will be installed.

ARTIE SHAW, THE ONE AND ONLY, will be at Riverside Stadium tomorrow evening. He has a new 32-piece orchestra with no less than 15 strings. It's said to produce absolutely new effects in modern dance rhythm. Among the stars of the new Shaw band are Singer Bonnie Lake, a sister of Anne Sothern; "Hot Lips" Page, trumpeter, and Tenor Saxist George Auld.

CIGARETTEUSE WANTED. Anne Patricia, Madrillon's statuesque ciggie lass, is soon leaving for Florida. So Peter Borras is looking for a new cigarette girl, preferably a combination of Ann Sheridan, Helen of Troy and Lana Turner.

RAMBLING CAMERA. Cosmos Room. Blondely beauteous Mrs. Rob Rodenberg (former Ann Keiss, of the Stork Club), with her husband, Hank Gibbons and "Ozzie" Roberts, of the Mayflower. Svelte Ruth Dove. Patsy Bride looking debutante-ish in white chiffon . . . Troika. Senator Arthur Capper dropping in just in time to take part in the Troika broadcast . . . King Cole Room. Ross Filion, NBC exec, listening to Eve Knight's temperature raising version of "Body and Soul," opining analytically, "I think WRC brings out Eve's overtones slightly better than the public address system.

A big "V" in flashing electric lights that constantly go on and off, is now decorating the fireplace at River Bend. Below the big "V" are the dot and dash symbols of "V" for Victory," also in lights.

PRIZE TUNEAGE. "Time Was" as played by Pete Macias' orchestra at the Lounge Riviera. It's what musicians call "out of the world" . . . "Te Importe Saber," the new Bing Crosby tune, is being done in the manner captivating by Don Carper's Four in Cafe Caprice. The title means "You Don't Care to Know" . . . "Make It Another Old Fashioned, Please," is more fun when warbled by Eileen O'Neill in Burt's Trans-Lux. Eileen gives the number that Ethel Merman bang.

CLOCK IN THE STEEPLE. When the Plymouth's new murals are finished they'll include a painted clock in a painted steeple. But the clock will really keep time. "When the clock in the steeple strikes "two," it'll be time to go home.

VACATION RECOLLECTIONS. Teddy, suave greeter in the Mayflower Lounge, spent the summer at Miami Beach, declares it wasn't hot at all, just balmy. He's already made reservations for next summer . . . Matt Windsor, of the Anchor Room is tanned heavily from his vacation, but his forehead remains ivory white because he always wore a topi. (Go ahead and make it "toupee," Mr. Printer.)

HAY FEVER and ASTHMA

Science has not yet found a preparation which will give relief to all hay fever and asthma sufferers. This is understandable when one realizes that both of these conditions can be caused by many things, such as pollens from flowers, weeds, perfumes, animal hairs, improper diet, etc. However, science has discovered that many cases of hay fever and asthma get amazing relief from the administration of a certain vital food element. Allo-tan, a rich source of this important element, gives relief to thousands of sufferers year in and year out. Allo-tan is put up in inexpensive, easy-to-take tablets.

Reds Beat Dodgers in 11th; Cards, Giants Tie

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Just to keep the record straight, it ought to be mentioned that the state of affairs in Brooklyn is of recent date. What has been happening in the borough on the Gowanus is evolution. Brooklyn fans and the Dodgers have switched identities. Time was, under Uncle Wilbert Robinson, when the Brooklyn ball players were the zanies.

POVICH

The crimes the Dodgers used to commit in the name of baseball are historic. Babe Herman's feats of stealing second with the bases full were never quite appreciated by the Brooklyn customers who yearned for sound baseball but maintained a certain dignity through it all. The Dodgers' traffic jams on the bases drew laughs from the stands but no violence.

In recent years the Dodgers have reformed and have been giving the customers sound baseball. Certainly they didn't reach their present high estate by any such antics as their predecessors of the Robinson era. But a change, too, has come over Brooklyn fans. Strong on the scent of a pennant, the Flatbush citizens have blown their toppers. Their antics are making more news than the Dodgers. On the field, Brooklyn plays fine baseball. In the stands, Brooklyn qualifies for the violent ward.

Strange Sort of Fidelity

Mild amusement that used to prevail in the stands when the Dodgers were discovering new ways to toss off ball games has given way to rabid resentment. The out-of-town observer at a Brooklyn ball game might well wonder if Dodger fans eat their young. With the Brooklyn citizens, their Dodgers are alternately heroes and bums. They blow hot and cold. A couple of years ago a Brooklyn fan pulled a gun and shot dead a couple of men who ridiculed the Dodgers.

Its a strange sort of fidelity that has grabbed Brooklyn fans. They can call the Dodgers bums and use the word as a term of affection. We were within earshot of one illuminating sequence in the Brooklyn stands earlier in the summer. Dolf Camilli, most important of all the Brooklyn bums this season, was at bat in the tenth inning of a game with the Giants.

Up to that point, Camilli had virtually kept the Dodgers in the ball game. He singled in his first time at bat to drive in two runs. In his second time up he crashed a double against the right field fence that drove in another run. In the eighth inning he banged a home run that tied the score for Brooklyn. In the tenth, Camilli struck out. Whereupon a shirt-sleeved and highly disgusted Brooklyn customer leaped to his feet, cupped his hands in the direction of Manager Leo Durocher, and roared:

"Take that bum out!"

Dinty Moore, the New York restaurant man, was telling of the day, earlier in the season, when he accompanied a party of friends to a Giants-Dodgers game at Brooklyn. "We were Giant rooters but we were taking care not to be loud about it," related Moore. "We were just sitting there in the stands watching the ball game and rooting kind of silently for the Giants when it happened.

"One of the men in our party felt the need of stretching and rose from his seat. A Brooklyn fan sitting behind us didn't ask any questions. He just reached over and banged my standing friend right in the mouth. It didn't dawn on me until then that he had made the mistake of standing up in the Giants' half of the seventh inning."

Brooklyn Creates New Slang

Brooklyn baseball fans have given a new slang to American speech. They've made "bum" a fairly respectable word applicable even to heroes. There are progressive stages of Brooklyn vernacular. When a Brooklyn fan shouts "Hit da road, ya bum," he is only mildly expletive. But when he emphasizes it with "hit the road, ya bum, ya," he's probably sore as hell.

There was the game this season when three successive Brooklyn batters went out by taking a third strike. A hard-bitten Brooklyn fan was moved to philosophize:

"Them bums can't get none of them basehits by keeping them bats on them shoulders, them bums!"

If the Dodgers miss the pennant by a game or a half game, incidentally, it will be quite clear as to the day when they actually lost it. That would be the day a couple of weeks ago when they were playing the Giants in New York. The score was tied in the ninth inning, two were out, a Giant was on third base and Mel Ott was at bat.

Catcher Mickey Owen looked to the bench for the sign by Durocher to order Ott purposely passed. The sign Owen got he apparently didn't believe. Durocher was ordering the Brooklyn pitcher to pitch to Ott. Owen called time, jogged to the bench to learn if there wasn't some misunderstanding. There wasn't. Durocher wanted Ott pitched to. That's what happened and Ott broke up the ball game with a hit. Brooklyn fans will remember that strategy if the Dodgers, the bums, miss out by a game at the finish.

Brooklyn Brews a Fine Storm

New York, Sept. 16.—Chances are that about the worst thing that could happen to the Brooklyn Dodgers—as a business institution—would be to win the pennant. If they win, and let's hope they do because we'd like to see such old bums as Wyatt, Walker, Fitz and a few others get a hunk of that series money, there will be the dag-dangest ticket row in the history of baseball.

CONSIDINE

When Larry MacPhail gets through taking care of his friends, Brooklyn's "must" politicians and their friends and a few other favored cliques, there are going to be precious few tickets for Moe and Joe, Brooklyn's typical fans, and their 100,000 counterparts. They are going to be turned away at the door, and they are not going to be able to afford to buy tickets from the specs who, we think, will get an all-time racketeering price for pasteboards, if Brooklyn wins. Brooklyn specs, for reasons never fully explained, always seem to be able to get tickets, even when the regular Dodger fanatics and good providers can't get them. We guess that their price for a strip of tickets ($16.50) for the Brooklyn end of the series, if any, will be at least $75. Probably more.

By the time the favored few are taken care of by MacPhail, and by the heirs of Ebbets and McKeever and the controlling bank, there will be so few tickets left then only a tiny percentage of the faithful horde which congregated for Dodger games to the extent of almost a million and a quarter this season will be able to squeeze into the park. This inevitably, will lead to the most rabid kind of squawking. The groundwork is already there. There is a dormant malcontent with the way MacPhail has jiggled ticket prices this season. So far it has been comparatively hushed by the enthusiasm for the team itself. But in the event of a World Series at Ebbets Field it would be bound to break out with an ear-splitting belly-ache, which would carry over into next season.

—Then the Squawks Start

This really won't be MacPhail's fault, or at least fully his fault, for, after all, he is simply an employe, however officious, and must do right by the "important" people. But in a sense a series will be his despair, for it will turn a good proportion of the average Brooklyn fans against him. It will be a reasonless beef, because, after all, you can't squeeze 2,500,000 Brooklynites into a park that seats about 35,000. But the beef will be there, nonetheless, and there where it hurts. There will be a lot of Brooklynites in good seats for the series (again, if any) who didn't see a half a dozen games all season, but who happen to know MacPhail or are related to the umpteen stockholders of the club, or can afford to be robbed by the omnipresent Brooklyn specs, whereas the regular customers, who suffered through those long hot days against the Phillies, Giants and other teams, will have the fire hoses turned on them when they start banging on the locked gates.

These regular fans are going to remember the treatment they will inevitably get at what looks like Brooklyn's first World Series appearance since 1920. Thus we say that one of the worst things that could happen to the Dodgers, as a business proposition, would be to reach the heights of the team's ambition—which is to give Brooklyn a series, a series that Brooklynites won't be able to see in Brooklyn.

Nags Get 'Muscular Control'

Race track people are still buzzing about the strange antics of Prof. Mark Grain, of Columbia University, who showed up early the other morning at Aqueduct to test his theories on "muscular control." He arranged to borrow a thoroughbred from the stables of Mrs. Dodge Sloan and by means of an elaborate signalling system to the horse's jockey put it through a series of unique tests. The tests have to do with proper rest and proper expenditure of energy, and Prof. Grain thinks he can improve a race horse as much as 10 per cent—which means that a nag who listened to his tutelage would be able to run a mile in about 1:23—which would beat the best Man O' War ever did by so many lengths that Man O' War would appear to be first in the next race.

The early morning clockers and hangers-on look upon Prof. Grain with much the same fish eye that the hardy combers of Jacobs Beach regard Lou Nova and his Yoga, cosmic punch and dynamic posture. Some of them wanted to give odds that the horse the professor was using, for his experiment, wasn't a Sloan oat-muncher, but it turned out to be just that.

Run That May Have Won Flag for Cards Is Cut Off at Plate

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Terry Moore, Cardinal outfielder, is narrowly out at the plate trying to score from second on Estel Crabtree's blow to right which drove in Johnny Hopp with St. Louis' first and only run of the game yesterday with the Giants. Darkness halted the contest at the end of the tenth with the score deadlocked at 1-1. Since it has been ruled that the game will not be replayed, the Cards lost a chance to gain a half-game on the league-leading Dodgers, who lost yesterday. As the hot fight for the pennant continues, the Cards may have good reason to remember how close Moore came to scoring. Giants' catcher is Hartnett, the umpire, George Barr

St. Louis Gains Half Game in N.L. Struggle

Flocks Valiant 9th-Inning Rally Futile; Werber's Hit Is Clincher

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Sept. 16.—The Brooklyn Dodgers and Cincinnati's former world champions developed a reasonable facsimile today of their dinner-at-eight affair yesterday—but there was one important variation.

The Reds won, 4 to 3, in 11 innings, instead of the Dodgers, to salvage one victory out of their three-game series. Since St. Louis finished in a tie with the New York Giants, this was not a particularly punishing blow.

Otherwise the game went extra innings; it was full of beautiful pitching and also full of flubdub; and it finally ended—in daylight, at that.

Werber's Single Is Clincher

The end came when Bill Werber came to bat in the eleventh with two out and Eddie Joost roosting on second after getting a single.

Werber, who had knocked in every one of the Reds' other runs—one with a single in the first and two more with a double in the seventh—this time lined a cracking single into leftfield and Joost alid home despite a Herculean throw by Joe Medwick. That gave Rookie Ray Starr, Cincinnati's third pitcher, his first victory since arriving here from Indianapolis two weeks ago.

Elmer Riddle, the Reds' silent young phenomenon from Georgia, supplied practically all the beautiful pitching in an effort to win his eighteenth game of the year. Not an earned run was scored off him in the nine innings he labored. Support that would cause wagging heads in a class D league cost him one run in the second and two more in the ninth.

Then, as a crowning blow to a young fellow trying to make good, this happened: He hit a timely double for himself in the Reds' half of the ninth and Ernie Koy went in to run for him.

Koy Caught Off Second

Joost was passed intentionally and while Jimmy Gleeson was at bat, preparing to bunt, Catcher Herman Franks called for a pitchout and snapped Koy off second by 3 feet.

Among the other incomprehensible doings of the afternoon, the Dodgers filled the bases with none out in the tenth on a walk and a couple of bunts on which everybody was safe with the help of a slow throw and then an error by Joe Beggs, who relieved Riddle.

Starr then came in and fanned Dolph Camilli. Riggs tried to bunt and the ball went up instead of down. Ernie Lombardi caught it and whipped to third, where Werber tagged Dixie Walker 5 feet off base.

Mike McCormick opened the Reds' tenth with a whistling double to the right field corner. Manager Bill

Giants Aid Brooks (Wow) by Tying Up Contest in Ninth; No Playoff Possible

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Sept. 16.—Darkness fell like a heavy blanket on the championship chances of the St. Louis Cardinals today, smothering out their final clash with the New York Giants in a 1-to-1 tie at the end of ten innings.

It was a cloudy, foreboding day in St. Louis, brightened for a while in Sportsman's Park by a magnificent pitching duel between Ernie White and Hal Schumacher—and the scoreboard's tidings that Brooklyn had lost an extra-inning struggle at Cincinnati, cutting the Dodgers' National League lead to 1½ games.

The Cardinals chalked up a run in the first inning on a single by Johnny Hopp, a base on balls to Terry Moore and a one-baser by old Estel Crabtree and for a long time this loomed big.

Old Man Trouble Bobs Up

"Prince Hal" Schumacher never gave the Redbirds another run, but White, the superb young southpaw who was making his third quest for victory No. 18, appeared even more overpowering in hurling shutout ball on four hits for eight innings.

Then in the early twilight of the ninth inning trouble crept out of the shadows. Babe Young was an easy out, but Morrie Arnovich singled and Billy Jurges doubled to put runners on first and third.

Lean Lon Warneke was rushed to the mound to rescue White, but instead gave another single to Mickey Witek to let in the tying run. After purposely passing Joe Moore, who pinch-hit for Schumacker, Warneke snuffed out the rally.

This left the Cardinals still with a chance to take full advantage of the loss of Brooklyn's National League leaders; but when neither team scored again and the umpires called the game, it was blacked out of the books forever.

The Cards have a double-header with Boston tomorrow and the Giants left town tonight. The tie cannot be played off and it will mean that St. Louis will have only 153 games for the season compared to Brooklyn's 154.

"Just a Bad Break"

(President Ford Frick of the National League in New York said: "The tie was just one of those bad breaks as far as the Cardinals are concerned. There's no way to have the game played over.")

This is the same as half a game in the Dogers' favor and to a great extent canceled the half game which the Cardinals gained on Brooklyn today.

Bob Carpenter worked the last two rounds for the Giants and effectively supressed the Cards, although touched for successive singles by Walker Cooper and Frank Crespi in the ninth. Altogether, the

Rams Score In 2d Period, BeatCards,10-6

Chicago, Sept. 16 (AP).—The Cleveland Rams scored a touchdown, converted the point and added a field goal in the second period tonight to defeat the Chicago Cardinals, 10 to 6, in a National League professional football game in Comiskey Park.

A crowd of 15,000 saw the Cardinals, who finished last in the 1940 race, score their touchdown in the third period on a 40-yard march. The Cardinals threatened seriously again in the final period, making a 57-yard advance which ended when the Rams' Johnny Drake intercepted a pass on his own goal line and ran it out 54 yards.

Leading the League

The victory was Cleveland's second of the current season. The Rams defeated Pittsburgh 10 days ago in their opening game.

The Rams went to work after a listless first quarter in which neither team made a first down, starting an 81-yard march just after the second period got under way.

Taking the ball on their own 19, the Rams made two quick first downs on an end-around play by Babe Patt and a 12-yard pass, Owen Goodnight to Patt, on the Rams' 42. Goodnight tossed a long aerial to Johnny Wilson, who grabbed the ball on the Cards' 25 and raced on across the goal line. Boyd Clay's kick was good for the extra point.

Later in the same period the Cardinals had possession on their 28, but the pass from center was fumbled as two Chicago players ran together and Patt recovered for Cleveland on the 15. Two running plays and a pass failed to advance the ball and Clay kicked a field goal from the 20-yard stripe at a sharp angle.

The Rams didn't threaten again, crossing the middeld point only once thereafter, a gain to the 43 early in the fourth.

The Cards, however, unleashed a third-period drive sparked by Bob

Tigers Turn on Nats, Newsom Star in Relief

Buck Gets Rowe Out of Trouble After Griffs Have Tying Run on Base; Rookie Layne Hits

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

The Tigers turned yesterday. They turned on their tormentors—the Nats—and won a ball game. Licked 15 times in 21 previous games with the Nats this season, Detroit grabbed off a 4-2 victory in the final game between the two clubs.

Schoolboy Rowe was the winning pitcher, but Buck Newsom rendered a powerful assist. Newsom was hurriedly called from the bull pen in the eighth inning to put down the Nats, who suddenly became obstreperous, knocked Rowe out of the box and had the tying run on base with one out. Buck put a stop to all the excitement by luring Cecil Travis into a pop-up, and sort of striking out Mickey Vernon.

The Nats outhit the Tigers, 8 to 5, but one rough inning in which the Tigers clustered three of their blows, ruined Ken Chase. He walked two batters in that inning as an added incentive to the Tigers, and they crashed through with three important runs. Chase left the premises in the middle of matters.

Rookie Good and Bad

Rookie Hillis Layne, up from Chattanooga where he had been a ball of fire with his .350 batting average in the Southern Association, played third base for the Nats in his maiden start in the big leagues and earned himself a tie with himself. He played a ragged game at third base that inspired a couple of Detroit runs, but he drove in both of the Nats' runs with a single at a time when the bases were filled in the eighth. He also crashed a long two-bagger earlier in the game in a demonstration that he is a pretty good hitter.

It was a scoreless deadlock for three innings between Chase and Rowe but with one out in the fourth, McCosky beat out a bunt to Rookie Layne, who was a bit slovenly on the ball, and the Tigers were off on a three-run spree. Chase put himself in deep trouble at that point by filling the bases with walks to York and Higgins.

Meyer hit a slow grounder between third and short, and Rookie Layne succeeded in spoiling what would have been an easy play for Travis. The ball went as an infield hit and a run scored. Birdie Tebbetts then banged a single to left and two more runs were home. Walter Masterson finally got the side out without further damage.

Masterson Bears Down

Masterson did a tolerable job thereafter. He gave up a run in the fifth when Perry led off with a double past Rookie Layne and was ultimately wild-pitched home from third base with two out, but Masterson permitted no more runs until

No Hope Held Of Kimbrough Joining 'Skins

By Walter Haight

Post Staff Writer

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 16. There is as much chance of the Redskins obtaining the services of John Kimbrough, all-America back from Texas A. and M., as there is of the Nats getting Joe DiMaggio President George P. Marshall made that statement today. Kimbrough worked out with the Redskins at Los Angeles last week and later was quoted by Everett Crosby, brother of Bing, as saying he would like to play for the Redskins. This led to a rumor that the fullback would be signed.

Investigations into his status with the Chicago Cardinals as well as his various contracts with Douglas Hertz have revealed that there is little or no chance of the Washington team obtaining the player. Today's workout brought one serious and one minor injury. "Truck" Tornell, rookie guard, suffered either a badly torn ligament or a broken arm and was taken to the local hospital for X-rays. Fred Davis, the giant rookie tackle, sprained his ankle, but not seriously.

Public Hearing On D.C. Boxing To Be Ordered

The District Commissioners yesterday announced they would "shortly" order public hearings on the local boxing situation, while revealing that Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech had drafted a bill calling for the following developments:

1. That nonsalaried members of the District Boxing Commission be paid $3,000 annually and that the salary of the commission secretary be increased from its present figure to $3,000 yearly.

2. That Police Lieut. John Agnew be replaced on the Boxing Commission by a civilian.

3. That wrestling be placed under the supervision of the Boxing Commission, and also all college, amateur and exhibition boxing.

4. That the boxing Commission be made self-sustaining by being guaranteed so much from the ticket sales of each fight card, with any surplus being deposited in the United States Treasury to the credit of the District of Columbia, and

5. That the weight of gloves for professional bouts be reduced from their present 8 ounces to 6.

The Boxing Commission declined yesterday to comment on the proposal—made at its behest—that wrestling be placed under its supervision. Likewise there was no official explanation of why it was desired that Lieut. Agnew, only recently appointed to the commission, be replaced with a civilian.

However, it is recalled that at the time of Agnew's appointment there were loud complaints heard on Capitol Hill that all police officers were needed more for law enforcement than for work in boxing.

Frick Acts to Curb 'Stalling;' Umpires Given Broad Powers

N. L. President Tells Men in Blue to Order Game Forfeited in Event of Illegal Tactics

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 16.—From now on, the head man is going to crack right down on any more burlesque like that with which the Cincinnati Reds and Brooklyn Dodgers wound up their 17-inning marathon Monday.

After waiting for the final full reports, National League President Ford Frick gave the managers of both clubs a good going over by wire today and then warned the entire league, as well as his staff of umpires, that from here on any such farce is going to mean the guilty party forfeits the game immediately.

"And in case you've forgotten," Frick told Reds' Boss Bill McKechnie and Brooklyn's Leo the Lip Durocher, 'that means $1000 fine for the guilty club and $100 for the manager."

Ford's chief beef was over what he called attempts at shortening the game by the Dodgers, and the stalling tactics employed by the Reds, who are trying for third place.

He did not point a finger at the more guilty of the two except to say Brooklyn's loud Lip might have had some excuse "in view of the tightness of the race and what is at stake." While "there can be no excuse whatsoever for the Cincinnati manager."

Reiser Homers

You remember the setup—all the boys had for their troubles after 16 full innings were a couple of strings of goose eggs. The umpires held a huddle at that point and decided another inning could be played before it got too dark.

Then Pete Reiser led off the Dodgers' seventeenth with a homer. With that one-run edge, the Lip was all for his boys hurrying to end their half of the frame right quick so that the Reds could have their bat and the game could beat out the darkness. But the Brooks kept right on going and piled up five runs before Billy Herman "struck himself out," as one baseball writer put it.

The Reds tried to slow things down in their half. McKechnie even suggested to Umpire Larry Goetz the moon wouldn't be up for hours. They scored a run, but finally went out, shortly after 7 p. m.

"The final inning," Frick wired the two manager, "was a farce that reflected not only on the two clubs, but the National League as well. According to the umpires, both teams were guilty of unsportsmanlike tactics. . . . The play demonstrated an utter lack of sportsmanship and fairness.

Umps Get Word

"National League umpires today are instructed that in accordance with rule 24, they will in all cases hereafter warn the guilty manager, and, if such tactics are persisted in, they will forfeit the game."

Prexy Frick then wired every umpire in the league instructions to call a forfeit for such actions in future.

Just to show that he wasn't try-

Worsham, Bogart Narrowly Escape Loss in Grosner Play

Down, 2 & 3, Choices Win On Last Hole

Meet Shorey and Ault Today; Spencer and Rippy, Gibson and Overton Also Score

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Lewis Worsham, jr., the Burning Tree pro and Ralph Bogart, three-time District Amateur champion, supplied the first and second round fireworks in the Grosner Match Play Pro-Amateur Championship yesterday at Manor Country Club.

The young stars entered the semi-finals along with their today's opponents, the slightly surprise combination of Mel Shorey and Eddie Ault from Indian Spring, while the other match today will pit the favored combination of Cliff Spencer and Claude Rippy against Baltimore's last remaining hopes, Andy Gibson ad Spencer Overton, the crack pro-am duo from the Monumental City.

Worsham and Bogart were apparently condemned to the sidelines in their morning match against the Kenwood team of George Diffenbaugh and Maury Fitzgerald, as they trailed, two down and three to go. Diffenbaugh's birdies on the tenth, fourteenth and fifteenth holes of the back nine accounted for the lead. Worsham holed a birdie on the sixteenth, just missed an ace on the seventeenth for a sure deuce and another win to square the match and then won the last hole with a par.

Take Big Lead

In the afternoon the 1939 champions built a 4-up lead over Leo Walper and Harry Haverstick, the Lancaster, Pa., amateur, in six holes, but four straight birdies by the latter team, three of them Walper's, whittled the margin to one at the eleventh. Worsham holed a 20-footer for a birdie on the twelfth and Walper missed a two-footer to end the comeback of the loser and pave the way for the Worsham-Bogart victory.

Shorey and Ault accounted for the day's only upset in the morning, beating Medalists Al Houghton and Charles Malone, 3 and 2, principally because Ault knocked in four consecutive birdies, from the thirteenth through the sixteenth holes. In the afternoon the Indian Spring team lost three of the first four holes to Rut Goffey and Erford Barnes, but they regained their stride to even the match at the twelfth hole, went one up on the seventeenth with Ault's par three and won the eighteenth for a 2 up victory. Shorey and Ault had a best ball 69 in the afternoon.

Gibson Opens Up

Gibson and Overton had two fairly close matches, hanging to a two up margin to beat Al Jamison and George Miller in the morning on the seventeenth green and then in the afternoon Gibson went to work alone and carved out a 2 under par 68 on his own ball to personally account for a like triumph over Levi Yoder and Ken Lafferty.

Spencer and Rippy, last year's finalists, had a breeze. They coasted to a 6 and 5 victory in the first round over the Baltimore combination of Carroll McMasters and Bill Cole, with a 2 under part best ball, and in the afternoon were up at the ninth on Reg Kirkwood, the Philadelphia pro, and Merrell Whittlesey when Kirkwood walked off the course and has not been seen since. He and Otto Greiner won the tournament last year when Greiner played five remarkable rounds of golf and almost single handed took home the Grosner Trophy.

The finals today will start at 1 p. m.

First-Round scores—Mel Shorey and Ed Ault (Indian Spring) defeated Al Houghton (Beaver Dam) and Charles Malone (Indian Spring), 3 and 2; Rut Coffer (Hagerstown) and Erford Barnes (Rolling Road) defeated Johnny Bass (Clifton Park) and Eddie Johnston (Country Club of Maryland), 2 and 1; Cliff Spencer (East Potomac) and Claude Rippy (Indian Spring) defeated Carroll McMasters (Woodholme) and Bill Cole (Mount Pleasant), 6 and 5; Andy Gibson (Bonnie View) and Spencer Overton (Rolling Road) defeated Al Jamison (Bradley Hills) and George F. Miller (Columbia), 2 and 1; Leo Walper (unattached) and Harry Haverstick (Lancaster, Pa.) defeated W. A. Stackhouse (Sequin, Tex.) and Leland Abrams (Rock Creek), 3 and 2; Levi Yoder (Annapolis Roads) and Ken Lafferty (Manor) defeated Al Treder and Harry Pitt (Manor), 5 and 4; Reg Kirkwood (Philadelphia) and Merril Whittlesey (Manor) defeated John Flattery and S. H. Palmer (Country Club of Maryland) by default; Lew Worsham (Burning Tree) and Ralph Bogart (Chevy Chase) defeated Maury Fitzgerald and George Diffenbaugh (Kenwood), 1 up.

Quarterfinals—Shorey and Ault defeated Coffey and Barnes, 2 up; Spencer and Rippy defeated Kirkwood and Whittlesey, 4 up at ninth (Kirkwood quit); Worsham and Bogart defeated Walper and Haverstick, 2 and 1; Gibson and Overton defeated Yoder and Lafferty, 2 and 1.

Pairings—9, Shorey and Ault vs. Spencer and Rippy; 9:07, Worsham and Bogart vs. Gibson and Overton.

Large Bass Wins Struggle for Life But Later Drowns

By the Associated Press

Harrisburg, Ill., Sept. 16.—For several minutes, Wilson Pankey had fought the five-pound bass on the end of his line.

In one desperate plunge, the fish swerved under Pankey's boat. The line fouled on the boat—and broke.

Dejected, Pankey headed for the dock. Then he saw his bass floating nearby, dead.

The artificial bait had hooked both the upper and lower jaws, holding the bass' mouth open. It had drowned.

Miami Angler Sets New Tuna Record

Wedgeport, Nova Scotia, Sept. 16 (U.P.).—Jack Carpenter, of the Miami Beach Rod and Gun Club, set a world tuna record for 24-thread line off this port Sunday with a catch of 880 pounds.

Carpenter needed 2 hours 45 minutes to make the catch. His guide was Tommy Gifford, of Miami, and he used a 16-ounce tip and a Finor reel. The former record for 24-thread line was 706 pounds, set in September 1939, by J. D. Peeler, of California.

Fishing with JACK BELL

Local hunters have noted with interest a movement in Canada to honor Jack Miner, of Kingsville, Ontario, who has banded 50,000 ducks since 1909 and 23,000 Canada geese since 1915, adding much to the world's knowledge of waterfowl migrations. Jack Miner has a curious custom of printing a verse from Scripture on one side of each band. Last season a hunter brought down one of the banded geese far from Ontario and read on the band, "He careth for you—My Pet." The hunter wrote Jack, "I am sorry I shot your first pet."

JACK BELL

Most people look upon Jack Miner's tagging system of ducks and geese as a hobby, when the fact of the matter is its value can't be estimated in dollars and cents by the various provinces of Canada and the United States. It gives the authorities knowledge of where birds are each season of the year, which State and province kills the most and where they are killed in any huge number.

An illustration shows up in North Carolina, where at one time more waterfowl was killed than any ten States. Jack Miner gave this information to the proper authorities, with the result several sanctuaries were established in that locality. It is there the birds get a breathing spell between shots. Had it not been for Miner's tagging system the authorities would not have realized what a percentage was being killed.

They Come Back

The sanctuary has proved that birds will come back to the same place for food and protection. Only this spring a goose was caught wearing two tags, one on each leg. One had been put on in the fall of 1924, while the tag on the other leg was placed on in the fall of 1928. Last winter one was killed in North Carolina that had been tagged in 1918.

The tagging system proves that birds go from one place of safety to another. Thus while there are chains of sanctuaries throughout America, birds can't become exterminated and the hunter still has good shooting between these places of refuge.

Millions of dollars have been spent in the United States and Canada for museums where only stuffed specimens can be seen. Jack Miner asks is it not just and sane to maintain sanctuaries where specimens can be seen alive and saved from extermination?

A Lot of Shooting

A survey recently released by the Fish, Game and Oyster Commission of Texas reveals that Texas hunters last season fired 10,705 shells in bagging 2205 ducks, and fired 1199 times to bring down 124 geese for an average of 4.4 shells per duck and 9.6 shells per goose.

Here are some interesting figures on game this year in Virginia. More than 4000 quail were raised last year by the commission, and in addition 4777 quail purchased and released. Nearly 2000 quail eggs, produced at the State game farm, were distributed to 4-H clubs and F. F. A. members participating in the quail rearing project. Wild turkeys raised by the commission totaled 1021. The commission also released 356 deer, purchased mainly from Northern States, and turned loose 21 raccoons.

Women's Lowest Net Scores Of Year Feature Golf Here

Mrs. Franklin's 71 Takes Class A Honors; Mrs. Welch Cards 69 for First in Class B

The two lowest net-score rounds of the women's competitive golf season crowned Mrs. Lafayette Franklin, Washington, and Mrs. W. E. Welch, Bannockburn, as Times-Herald Class A and B cup winners, respectively, in the semiwindup event on the D. C. W. G. A. card yesterday. The low handicapped play was at Congressional and the Class B at Kenwood.

Mrs. Franklin, who only two months ago won low gross in the Duffer's and then graduated into Class A in time to finish well up in The Post Cup, surprised with the second lowest score of the day at Congressional, a 45, 40—85, to win easily with 85—14—71. It was the best round of her golfing career. Mrs. Franklin had six men's pars on the back nine.

Mrs. Welch trooped around Kenwood with nines of 49 and 53 for a 102 and deducted 33 handicap strokes for a net 69, at that low by only three strokes.

Low gross in the Class A play again went to Mrs. Betty Meckley, of Kenwood, who was in form with a 44, 39—83, to win over such performers as Mrs. Myron Davy, with an 86, Mrs. W. R. Stokes, an 88 and Mrs. L. G. Pray, 89.

Class B gross scores were led by the 92 of Mrs. F. L. Williams, of Argyle; who was four strokes better than Mrs. G. M. Jani, the C. B. S. Cup winner from Congressional, with 96.

Other prize winners in class A were: Mrs. Wilda Martin, Washington, 87—10—77; Mrs. C. L. Vaile, Kenwood, 96—14—82; Mrs. Don Hess, Argyle, 99—17—82; Mrs. Kurtz Hanson, Chevy Chase, 94—12—82; Mrs. Fred Evans, Kenwood, 92—9—83; Mrs. Woodlief Thomas, Kenwood, 93—10—83; Mrs. Norman Frost, Columbia, 96—13—83, and Mrs. H. J. Simons, Manor, 95—11—84, who won out in a five-way tie for the last net prize.

Second low net in class B went to Mrs. John Barron, Kenwood, with 100—28—82, followed by Mrs. W. E. Barkdull, Columbia, 103—29—84; Mrs. Jani, 96—19—77; Mrs. E. Ricem, Washington, 101—22—79; Mrs. H. H. Goodman, Washington, 103—24—79; Dr. Elizabeth Chickering, Kenwood, 99—19—80; Mrs. E. Duffies, Kenwood, 101—21—80; Mrs. Frank Mirth, Indian Spring, 99—19—80; Mrs. Allen Laing, Bannockburn, 104—24—80, and Mrs. C. A. Olmstead, Washington, 111—31—80.

Yanks Set Record Selling Reserved Seats for Series

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 16. — Setting what may be a new record for advance sales, the Yankees announced today that all reserved and box seats for the three World Series games at Yankee Stadium are sold out.

The first and second games of the series are slated for the stadium October 1 and 2. The sixth game, if necessary, also will be played in the Yanks' ball park.

Announcing that the 41,000 reserved and box seats were gone, Yankee officials said they do not recall a year in which the sellout sign had been hung out so early—two weeks before the series opened.

The club pointed out that 14,000 unreserved grandstand seats and 14,000 bleacher seats would be placed on sale at the stadium the morning of each game.

Captain Gets Berth

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 16 (AP).—Jack Stephenson, captain of Ohio State University's 1941 football squad, moved into a first spring berth today for the first time since Coach Paul Brown assembled his gridders for practice six days ago.

Laab's Second Homer Wins For Browns, 9-8

Philadelphia, Sept. 16.—Chet Laabs' twelfth-inning home run, his second of the game, gave the St. Louis Browns a 9-to-8 victory over the Athletics here today. It gave them a sweep of the four-game series and their second extra-inning conquest in two days.

Laabs batted in five runs, capping a five-run assault in the first inning by hitting for the circuit with two aboard.

Elmer Valo, rookie up from Wilmington, Del., smashed his first major league homer with two on base to tie the score for the A's in the ninth. The Browns went ahead when Johnny Berardino singled home a run in the tenth, but Crash Davis and Al Brancato responded with doubles to knot the score again.

Smithson Tops Elks Opening With 138 Score

With a blare of music from the Elks Band and the well wishes of hundreds of interested spectators, the Elks League got off to an auspicious start last night at New Recreation. Charles Smithson, Treasurers, was best in the singles with a 138 count, while Tom Connelly, Tilers, had near high game of 131 and high set of 364. Esquires, Tilers, Fidelity and Entertainment won all three from Justice, Treasurers, Dance and Trustees, respectively.

In the women's division, high game and set went to Miss Ellis, Orioles, with 107-300, with the Canaries taking team highs with 450 and 1332. The Bluebirds, Eagles and Orioles won all three from opponents.

ICE PALACE

The Office Appliance League at the Ice Palace was led by Ed Lohmar, Royal, with 156 high single and Jim (Shoes) Boteler, IBM No. 2, whose set of 436 earned his team high game of 589. The Underwood-Elliott-Fisher lads were best for the set with a 1670 count and took three straight from opponents. Procurement also won all three.

BETHESDA

Jack Perrell, coming star in the Men's District League, was best man last night in the Bethesda Duckpin League's play at Henry Riser's alleys, winning individual honors with a 154 game and 412 set. Perrell's team, Martin's Delicatessen, took team highs with a 617 game and 1800 set, winning all three from opponents as did the Lozupone boys.

QUEEN PIN

One of George Harbin's Catholic Leagues got under way last night at Queen Pin when the Section "B" lads took to the drives. Eddie Langley, St. Peter's, was high individual with his 128 game and 342 set which helped take three straight from St. Dominic's No. 1. St. Aloysius took the team highs with 557 and 1588. In the Section "C" meet at the same alleys, Gerard Giordano, St. Joseph's No. 1, took the lead with a 128 single and 350 set although McMahon, St. Dominic's No. 2, tied him for the single. St. Joseph's No. 1 was the best team with 543 and 1522.

ICE PALACE

Joe Pricci, recently elected secretary of the Washington City Duckpin Association, apparently was inspired last night at the opening of the Building & Loan League at the Ice Palace for he took both individual highs for his Washington Permanent team with a 149 game and 399 set. Last year's champs, American No. 1, took all three games from their opponents.

CLARENDON

Diminutive Kitty Rice, Monroe Pharmacy, led the first play of the Clarendon Ladies League with a fine 143 game and 354 set which enabled her team to win highs after pinfalls of 571 and 1592. Kitty's sister, Martha Heflin, was only one pin shy in her set count, totaling 353, which aided the Emma Lee Beauty Salon lasses to win three from C & C Clerks. Monroe won all three from Arlington Bootery while Rite-Way Contractors scored a sweep over Glebe Court Beauty Salon.

BROOKLAND

The Diamond Cab boys at Brookland Recreation found Elmer Wesley, Service Station, and Deuterman, Ray Steelers, best for the play with 132-379 and 153-361, respectively, with the former's totals enabling his team in taking highs after pinfalls of 614 and 1704. Service Station also won all three from Taxi-Go-Round.

Detroit Sportsmen Plan Celebration For Heroic Dog

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Sept. 16.—The American Sportsmen and Hunting Dogs Association hopes to hold a ceremony tomorrow night honoring Lady, an old and blind dog, but plans for the ceremony depend upon whether Lady lives or dies.

Last Friday Lady plodded back and forth from the rural home of her mistress, Mrs. Meta Dion, to the house of a neighbor, Mrs. Rachel De Rosia, persisting until Mrs. De Rosia followed the dog to the Dion home and found Mrs. Dion—alone because her husband lies gravely ill in a hospital—bound and gagged, the victim of thugs.

The thugs also beat Lady so severely she is given slight chance of recovery, but Fred Miller, president of the American Sportsmen Association, said Lady's heroism will be recognized regardless of her fate.

All Favorites Win in Publinx Golf Tourney

The first two rounds of the District Public Links Championship developed into a favorite's paradise yesterday at East Potomac as Defending Champion Leroy Smith led a quartet of choice performers into the semi-final round.

Smith was joined by W. W. Seay, the Anacostia medalist, and his opponent today, R. A. "Dick" Jennings, the 1940 finalist and Bill Leapley, the Rock Creek medalist, who are also round of four foes this morning. Semi-finals will start at 9 o'clock and the finals at 1 p. m., at 18 holes.

Smith, the lanky ex-Southerner who is attempting to equal Claude Rippy's and Andy Oliveri's records of two straight victories, pulled one out of the fire in the morning round. He was three down with five to play against Frank Nivert but finished with two birdies and three pars to come out on top on the eighteenth green. In the afternoon he was up against Ted Burrows, a veteran money campaigner, and won on the seventeenth with a better brand of golf, 2 and 1.

Seay, playing some of the best golf of his long publinks career, turned both Jack Crook and Tom Cook in by 4-and-3 margins and he looms as definite obstacle for Smith to get by today.

Jennings, the East Potomac medalist, and Leapley, apparently evenly matched for the semifinals, played similar golf. Both were around 74 in the first round and 76 in the second as they won with holes to spare, Jennings six up for the day and Leapley nine.

Morning Rounds

Dick Jennings defeated Melvin Skaggs, 3 and 2; Don Stone defeated Joe LaSalle, 4 and 3; Joe Lockwood defeated Tom Wherrity, 1 up; Bill Leapley defeated R. Marks, 4 and 3; Roy Smith defeated Frank Nivert, 1 up; Ted Burrows defeated Matt Ratzer, 6 and 4; W. W. Seay defeated Jack Crook, 4 and 3; Tom Cook defeated William Bailey, 2 and 1.

Afternoon Rounds

Jennings defeated Stone, 3 and 2; Leapley defeated Lockwood, 5 and 4; Smith defeated Burrows, 2 and 1; Seay defeated Cook, 4 and 3.

Braves Slug To Beat Cubs In Finale, 8-5

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 16.—The Boston Braves unloosed a 13-hit attack today to defeat the Chicago Cubs, 8 to 5, in the final meeting of the two teams this season. The Cubs got 12 hits off Al Javery, but he kept them well scattered.

The Braves pummeled Claude Passeau for five runs in the first five innings and kept the lead thereafter, Henry Gornicki, Wimpy Quinn and Ken Raffensberger, rookies, finished up for the Cubs.

Bud Ward Beats Goodman, Wins Over Omaha Gallery

Once Hostile Fans Applaud Spokane Star's Victory in Charity Exhibition; Both Card 73s

By the Associated Press

Omaha, Sept. 16.—Marvin H. (Bud) Ward scored a two-way triumph on Omaha's field club fairways today, beating Omaha's favorite son, Johnny Goodman, one-up in an 18-hole charity exhibition and putting a gallery of once-hostile Omaha fans on the Spokane swinger's bandwagon in the process.

Wooing much the same gallery that was accused of undue animosity toward Ward while he was winning his second amateur title on the same course last month proved the easier job.

From gallery reaction, it looked like both were favorite sons. A crowd that swelled to more than 1000 before the match's end cheered lustily for every exceptional shot—whether Ward's or Goodman's—and the applause on the eighteenth green when Ward cinched the win should have wiped away any unpleasant memories the jut-jawed champion carried back to Spokane after his championship appearance.

The match itself was more spectacular than significant. Both carded 73's, one over par.

From the outset Ward showed the effects of a cold and influenza that had kept him under a doctor's care much of the time since his arrival Sunday. He dropped the par 5 third to a birdie for the Omahan, former National and Open champion.

Ward's second shot found trouble on the next and he conceded to go two down. Johnny dropped the sixth when his tee shot went out of bounds, but won it back on the eighth with a 20-foot putt for a birdie 2 to Ward's bogey.

After losing the tenth when his tee shot strayed, Bud came back with a birdie 2 on the short twelfth and shaved the lead to one hole with a 16-foot putt good for a birdie 2 on the fifteenth.

The sixteenth was halved and Goodman bogeyed the final two holes, giving Ward victory on two pars.

Proceeds went to Father Flanagan's Boys Town, already the recipient of a $1000 check from the Spokane Athletic Round Table, of which Ward is secretary.

Gonzaga Romps Over N. T. S., 22-0, in Schoolboy Grid Opener

Bill McKay Scores Two 6-Pointers

Elmer Raba's Passes Account for 13 Points; Waldron Tallies Fumbles Mar Play

Infringing somewhat on the baseball, swimming and tennis seasson, Gonzaga High and National Training School elevens launched the 1941 schoolboy football scramble yesterday, with the former taking a convincing 23-0 victory at Eastern High Stadium.

Gonzaga was never in serious danger after the first period, despite innumerable fumbles caused by either the heat and resultant perspiration or the use of a new system. Switching from last year's Warner style to a modified "T" taught by their new coach, "Bo" Richards, the Eye-Streaters tallied in every quarter but the third.

The first 6-pointer resulted from an N. T. S. fumble. Taking possession on their foes' 45, the Purple moved up to the 30 on two line smashes by Elmer Raba, triple-threat back. Then Raba faded and passed to lanky Bill McKay for a touchdown. Another Raba pass, to Quarterback "Reds" Murphy, added the extra point.

Raba Has a Busy Day

All together young Maba enjoyed quite a day, though he played only half the game. He was on the throwing end of the second touchdown just before the half, and McKay was the received again. One good toss was muffed by Al Lauck before McKay stepped in. Raba's aerial to Lauck for the second extra point was wide.

Fumble followed fumble on the part of both clubs in the third quarter. Finally Bernie Nolan, Purple halfback, intercepted George Lofty's throw and raced to the N. T. S. 30 near the end of the period. A first down brought the ball to the 8, from which point Ronney Waldron scurried around left end to score in the fourth period. Murphy made a desperate dive at Lauck's pass for the conversion.

Gonzaga quickly moved back into enemy territory to the 9-yard stripe on an exchange of fumbles, but there Les Daly dropped the ball again. The Trainers recovered, but when O'Brien tried to kick out of danger the effort was blocked and Clayborne recovered for a safety.

Millers Beat Colonels, 9-3; Retain Chance

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, Sept. 16.—The Minneapolis Millers kept alive the flickering flame of their play-off hopes by scoring seven runs in the fifth inning to defeat Louisville, 9 to 3, here this afternoon.

It was the first victory for Minneapolis in the semifinal series after the Colonels had rattled off three straight triumphs and the fourth game had been postponed three consecutive days because of rain.

The sudden splurge of Miller scoring drove Emerson Dickman to the showers, charged with a defeat, and continued at the expense of Owen Scheetz and Bill Butland.

The seven runs broke a 2-to-2 tie and enabled Mickey Haefner to coast to the decision. Haefner struck out seven men and so adroitly spaced his effectiveness that ten Colonels were left stranded on the bags.

Tony Lupien homered for Louisville in the second and batted in all three Colonel runs. Ab Wright climaxed the Miller's big inning by hitting a home run with two aboard. Otto Denning paced the 12-hit Miller attack with a perfect four-for-four.

The series now continues Wednesday afternoon with Oscar Judd the likely Louisville pitcher and Chief Hogsett the Miller moundsman.

Bears and Royals In Play-Off Tonight

Newark, N. J., Sept. 16 (AP).—The Newark Bears will resume tomorrow the pleasantly repetitious task of battling for the Governor's Cup in the International League's and the honor of carrying the loop's colors in the little world series.

The Montreal Royals crushed the Buffalo Bisons last night to gain the doubtful honor of meeting the Yankee Farm team in a best-of-seven series.

Lions Trade Ishmael For Phillies' Bryant

Tilson Quits W. & L. for Job In Drug Co.

By the Associated Press

Lexington, Va., Sept. 16.—The resignation of Coach Warren E. (Tex) Tilson of the Washington and Lee football coaching staff was announced today by the university's committee on intercollegiate athletics.

His severance from his ten-year connection with W. and L. athletics will become official on December 1, when he takes a post as general manager of a large drug company in Lexington.

Tilson, the only one of Virginia's Big Six coaches to capture the Southern Conference championship, was succeeded last spring as head football coach by his assistant, Riley Smith. In turn, he was appointed line coach by Smith and was priming the Generals' forward wall for the 1941 season when announcement of his resignation was made.

Tilson came to Washington and Lee's coaching staff in 1931 as an assistant to the late Head Coach Jimmy Dehart. He became head coach in 1933 and that year brought to life the new coach's dream—capture of the State and conference titles.

Terrors' Grid Line-up Nearly Set After Drill

By the Associated Press

Westminster, Md., Sept. 16.—Coach Charlie Havens sent his Western Maryland College gridders through a hard scrimmage today that gave some indication of what the Green Terrors' starting line-up will look like.

Operating in the backfield, Manny Kaplan, Irving Bissi, Wane Bills and Art O'Keefe displayed some fancy ball toting and Kaplan's punting was particularly effective.

Assistant Coach Rip Engle alternated the linesmen frequently but this appears likely to be the first-string forward wall: Suffern and Gugesky, ends; Natalizi and Jensen, tackles; Kittner and Souprake, guards, and Phillips, center.

New plays from various formations were stressed in the scrimmage.

Spiders Polish Passes

Richmond, Va., Sept. 16 (AP).—The University of Richmond football squad polished up its passing attack today against the freshmen with pleasing results.

Most of the aerials were thrown by the midget tailback, Walter "Sonny" Wholey, of Fredericksburg, and Lem Fitzgerald, of Covington.

They repeatedly hit the target in passes to Ends Vincent Collins, U. S. "Doc" Savage and Young Mac Pitt, jr. The passing drill was preceded by long workouts in fundamentals.

Illini Sophs Shine

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 16 (AP).—Sophomore Halfbacks Don Griffin and Maurie Gould held the spotlight today as Bob Zuppke sent his Illinois football squad through the longest scrimmage session of the season. Griffin and Quarterback Johnny Worban scored touchdowns for the regulars against a second team during the three-hour afternoon session.

Star Husker Passer

Lincoln, Nebr., Sept. 16 (AP).—Howard Debus, the big blond Nebraska sophomore heralded as the closest approach to departed Pass Specialist Paul Christman in the Big Six this year, hit his targets accurately and accounted for long gains in a 20-minute scrimmage today. He passed to Gerald Kathol, end, and Wayne Sindt, halfback, for touchdowns. Dale Bradley and Wayne Blue gained consistently. Regular Backs Vike Francis and Allen Zikmund didn't participate.

Crisler Worried

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 16 (AP).—One week of practice, in the opinion of Coach H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, of Michigan, hasn't solved any of his replacement headaches.

With the opener with Michigan State's veteran team less than two weeks away, Crisler said he still was combing the squad for halfbacks who can pass and punt as well as run and for ends. Just who will fill the post vacated by Tom Harmon is a question mark.

For Once Pounds Is Stopped

Pieces of Haight:

Dear Boss: The conversation turned to big game hunting. Tell the truth, Boss, I don't know if it was premeditated, but they stopped me. I had been going good up to that moment. I had airplaned them, Kentucky Derbyed them and Little Potatoed them for several hours, always taking my best hold, as I generally do. But I never hunted anything bigger than a dice that rolled under a radiator and I always thought an African Safari was something Dorothy Lamour were in one of those South Seas pictures.

Despite my lack of knowledge of the subject, I shall always maintain that Doc Mauro, the popular trainer of the Redskins, used unfair tactics to get the floor. Thrown completely off stride by his move I tried one rather weak "That reminds me of one time—" and surrendered.

"I killed this cat just after dawn," related Mauro proudly. Coach Flaherty nodded and Turk Edwards piped up with, "That's the best time to get them."

I was amazed, Boss. I knew that Doc talked rather rough and tough to football players but I didn't think he was the kind who would speak nonchalantly about a tiger or a jackall as a "cat," a la Frank Buck.

"I had been looking for this cat for some time. He was a cagey animal, too. It was just luck that I was able to put the bead on him. I really let him have it and he jumped in the air, landed in a heap and lay still."

Well, Boss, I could almost picture the natives running up, tying the animal on a pole and carrying him back to the camp. But just then Doc went on with, "I thought that Mrs. McWiggins, who lived next door, would never forgive me."

Well, Boss, we just sat around and stared at that Redskin trainer. I put him down as a cad—any guy who would deliberately shoot a lady's pet cat. Furthermore, I have my opinion of anybody who would bring up such an incident when big game hunting was the subject of conversation.

Doc seemed to sense what we were thinking for he continued, "Now don't get me wrong fellows, I didn't know it was Mrs. McWiggins' cat and I was only trying to protect my goldfish."

Doc went on to explain that he had gone to great pains to build a small lake in his back yard at home. He had rocks all around the sides and flowers planted. When the job was complete, he, though it would be a good thing to have some fish in the pond, so he bought some trout from a nearby hatchery. The man who sold him the trout tossed in a huge fellow of about 14 inches for good measure.

The smaller trout did not transfer well and the only survivor was this big one. Because he darted here and there and jumped up in the water, Doc named him "Excitement." Every day, the trainer used to go out to the pond and watch the trout perform. He finally decided that some goldfish would look nice in the lake and also would be company for "Excitement."

So Doc went down to the pet store, purchased a dozen goldfish and put them in the pond. "They certainly looked pretty, too," said Doc, "That big trout swimming around and the goldfish in a school, really was an intriguing sight."

The next day, Doc went out to see his aquarium and the goldfish were gone. Now Doc had noticed a cat hanging around the pond so decided that he would erase the goldfish thief.

He bought a half-dozen goldfish, placed them in the pond, put his rifle on the window sill and waited.

Well, he waited until sunrise the next morning and then made the kill. Satisfied the cat was no more, Doc went over to the pond to count the damage. There was only one goldfish left. This one was swimming in the middle of the pool. Then something strange happened.

"I was looking at that goldfish and all of a sudden there was a swish in the water and the goldfish was gone. But I had seen enough," said Doc. "Why that goldfish went right down the mouth of Excitement, my big trout. That bugger had been feeding on my goldfish."

Well, Doc didn't put any more goldfish in there for Excitement to eat but he decided to feed him live food. Doc began digging angle worms and tossing them into the pond and Excitement began making fancy catches.

Doc had a letter from home the other day and he says that Excitement hasn't been so active recently. "Why don't you know, I believe that trout misses me," said Doc.

"That's not the reason," drawled Turk Edwards. "He don't miss you. He's just sore because you took him off the gold standard."

POUNDS HAIGHT.

P. S.—Speaking of goldfish, Boss, send more money, I'm teaching Ki Aldrich how to shoot pool.

30 Candidates Seek Colonial Frosh Berths

Seven local players were among the 30 candidates who reported to Coach Ray Hanken yesterday for George Washington's first freshman football practice.

Roosevelt High, with two boys, contributes the most players among the local schools. The two former Riders are Bernie Kolker and Marvin Kogod. The others are Dick Hathaway, St. John's; Vance Vaniglio, Eastern; Francis Vincent, Gonzaga, and Hal King and Hal Brown, of St. Joseph's of Baltimore.

Assisting Hanken as freshman coach will be Kermit (Zu Zu) Stewart, former Colonial lineman star and a member of the coaching staff for several years.

As for the G. W. varsity, Coach Bill Reinhart decided to forego scrimmage yesterday, concentrating on defense. He sent the squad through a long signal drill and promised hard work for today.

Coach Reinhart declared himself pleased with the work of Ted Hapanowicz, sophomore center who is being converted into a blocking back. Since the lack of blockers seems to be Reinhart's most pressing problem at the moment, Hapanowicz' play is doubly welcome.

The Colonials announced yesterday that the injury Tackle Dan Snyder suffered in Saturday's scrimmage with Maryland wasn't near as serious as first believed. Snyder is expected to be back at practice in several days, instead of being sidelined for about three weeks, as feared Saturday.

Tidball, Ex-Net Star, Marries Californian

Las Vegas, Nev., Sept. 16 (INS).—The marriage of Jack Tidball, 29, once a ranking amateur tennis player, and Helen Selleck, 23, both of Los Angeles, was revealed today as they left for a honeymoon in Yosemite National Park. They were married in Los Vegas Sunday evening.

Terps Line-up For Opener Taking Shape

With it's opening football game with Hampden-Sydney at home September 27 still 11 days off, Maryland appears to have its tentative starting line-up pretty well settled, it was announced yesterday.

A things stand now, the regular line will include only one sophomore—End Bob James—but the backfield fight between veterans and rookies promised to be hot and heavy.

James will start at the flanks together with Jack Gilmore, a letterman. At tackles will be Seniors Ralph Burlin and Reggie Vincent; at guards, John Morton and Frank Heyer have the inside track. George Jarmoska is expected to start at center, but will have to beat back the strong bid of Jim (Pop) Wharton to retain his berth.

Coming to the backfield, it appears now that the No. 1 quartet will be composed of Sophomore Tommy Mont, quarterback; Senior Bernie Ulman and Junior Elmer Rigby at halfbacks, and Sophomore Jack Wright at fullback.

The No. 2 backfield numbers Jack Brenner, John Croyack, George Barnes and Kack Mier. And a third quartet being tried together includes Mearle DuVall, Bill Helbock, Lou Chacos and Joe Hoopengardner. Besides Ulman and Rigby, the lettermen among this group are Chacos, Hoopengardner and Mier. All others are sophomores.

The Maryland first team, according to its coaches, will be fast but light, with only two players in the line and one in the backfield scaling as much as 198. Burlin and Morton each weigh 198, and Fullback Wright scales 206.

Aknusti Four Enters Finals Of Polo Meet

By the Associated Press

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Three Gerry brothers and Pete Bostwick, teaming as Aknusti, which won the title last year, rode into the finals of the National Open Polo Championship at the Meadow Brook Club today, whipping the Pelicans, 9 to 7. Only one of this year's players was on the winning side last summer. Aknusti now will meet Mike Phipps' Gulf Stream quartet in the final Sunday.

The game today was not a good one, mainly because of the burning sun, under which the ponies seemed to wilt and the players to slow up. The mallet work was sloppy, particularly in the first half, and it wasn't until the last two chukkers that the losers woke up enough to start the crowd hollering.

The Gerry brothers, the twins Eddie and Henry, and Ebby, chairman of the New York State harness racing commission, and Bostwick rode well. Bostwick, abandoning steeplechase riding for the afternoon, scored four goals, with Eddie and Ebby each chalking up two and Henry one. For the Pelicans, Laddie Sanford and Winston Guest each had three goals and George Oliver one, with Cocie Rathborne scoreless but devoting his time to checking the rushes of the winners, if possible.

Aknusti.	Position.	Pelicans.
E. H. Gerry	No. 1	S. Sanford
O. H. Bostwick	No. 2	W. P. C. Guest
E. T. Gerry	No. 3	George Oliver

Aknusti	2	1	1	2	3 0—9
Pelicans	1	0	2	0	2 2—7

Goals: Aknusti—E. H. Gerry (2), O. H. Bostwick (4), E. T. Gerry (2), H. A. Gerry; Pelicans—Sanford (3), Guest (3), Oliver.

G. U. Gets Test Today In Navy Scrimmage

By Jack Munhall

Six seniors and five juniors comprise Georgetown's probable starting line-up for this afternoon's scrimmage with Navy at Annapolis, Hoya coaches declared yesterday.

The Hilltop squad will leave by bus at 1 p. m. for Annapolis and the scrimmage, barred to the public, is scheduled to get underway at 4 o'clock.

In the absence of Head Coach Jack Hagerty, who was home recovering from a stomach disorder but who will be back today, Assistants "Mush" Dubofsky and George Murtagh gave out the following tentative G. U. starting line-up.

This team will average, approximately, 187 in the backfield and 198 in the line, making it as big as the Georgetown elevens of recent years, though it undoubtedly is weaker in reserves.

With four dependables on the casualty list and definitely out of today's scrimmage—and probably the one Monday, also with Navy—the Hoyas have enough men for a second team, but there the material ends. As of yesterday, the Hilltop squad numbered less than 30.

No. 2 G. U. Squad

Missing from the Georgetown line-up today, owing to slight injuries, will be Bill McLaughlin, triple-threat junior halfback, and Walter O'Connell, also a junior back, and Tackle Oliver Oja and Tackle Russ Sorce. McLaughlin, O'Connell and Sorce are troubled by their legs; Oja is recovering from a dislocated shoulder. McLaughlin appears the only one of the four likely to get in Monday's scrimmage.

With Navy accounted one of the East's best elevens and having the advantage of two recent scrimmages against strong Penn, Georgetown expects today and Monday to determine to some extent just how capable the 1942 Hoya eleven will be. These early workouts, while being far from conclusive, will, nonetheless, indicate whether Georgetown's undermanned squad can stand up against opponents, like Navy, who can throw in three or four complete teams.

Hoyas Expected to Pass

If past Georgetown practices can be accepted as a criterion of Hoya strategy, then the Hoyas can be expected to pass in wholesale fashion against the heavier and more numerous Middies.

In the starting Georgetown backfield every man save Barrett is being used on throwing plays, with Dornfield bearing the brunt of the aerial attack, as well as the ground offensive: In the No. 2 backfield the same situation prevails. Doolan and Reiges are both dependable passers—Reiges being the team's best—and Gyrogedak and Sikorski also can heave the pigskin acceptably.

Mountain Grid Body May Lift Ban on Frosh

By the Associated Press

Denver, Sept. 16.—Severe losses to the draft and defense jobs may force the Rocky Mountain Conference to permit freshmen to play varsity football this season.

Faculty representatives of the five-college circuit will meet tomorrow night to decide whether theirs will be the first conference in the Nation this year to take this step, only three days ahead of the season's first game.

Every school but Colorado Mines, whose engineering students are deferred from Selective Service, lost important first-string players to the draft. The hardest hit were Western State at Gunnison, Colo., and Greeley (Colo.) State.

Coach Paul Wright of Western State said bluntly it would be "impossible to have a team unless we use freshmen." John Hancock, Greely State pilot, commented that he is "in the same boat. We are in favor of playing freshmen."

The conference was whittled from 12 to 5 members three years ago when the larger schools in Utah, Colorado and Wyoming bolted to form the Big Seven circuit.

Metro Nines Resume Play at Ballston

The Metropolitan Baseball Tournament winds up second-round play tonight at Ballston Stadium where the forces of Jacobsen Florists and Palace A. C., and Athison Keller and H. J. Construction tangle in a double bill starting at 7:30 p. m.

In last night's games Riverdale, behind Johnny Murnane's 2-hit hurling, downed Village Motors, 2-0, and the Vienna Cards nosed out G. A. O. by 5-4. Pitcher Jack Kemper struck out the last G. A. O. batter in the last inning with the bases loaded.

Carroll Comes Back to Win Stretch Duel in Pinehurst Purse

Gondalina Runs Second In Feature

Challomine Is Third After Exciting Race In Front of Stands; Victor Pays $6.70

By Clocker Mike

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 16.—Mrs. W. W. Vaughn's Carroll, never worse than second in his brief racing career, came back after being runner-up in a sprint earlier in the week, to account for top money in the Pinehurst Purse, better known as the fifth race at this plant. The 3-year-old son of Catalan came from behind to win in going-away fashion by a length and a half over G. R. Watkin's Gondalina. W. L. Brann's Challomine, after cutting out most of the early running, wound up in the show hole.

As has been the case in most of his starts, Canroll lacked speed in the early stages but this was not the case with Ball Player and Challomine. These two battled all down the backstretch for the top spot and finally it was Ball Player who had to "chuck" it. When this occurred, it appeared that Challomine had found new life, for the Brann racer opened a length-and-a-half lead. However, on the turn they all began to charge. Canroll, on the extreme outside, and Gondaline trying to sneak through on the rail.

In the closing eighth, the 7500 fans witnessed one of the best stretch duels of the meeting. Canroll drew off in the last sixteenth in a fashion that should make him a real factor in Saturday's $10,000 Potomac Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth. Far back was E. G. Hackney's Sir Alfred, another candidate for the Potomac. After the race, it was the consensus of opinion that Sir Alfred could be looked on as an unlikely starter in the weekend fixture.

The race, which was run over the mile and a sixteenth route, was run in the fair time of 1:46 4-5, and Red Howell was still booting his mount at the end to hang up his time. Canroll was equal choice in the wagering with Ball Player and he returned $6.70.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—INDIAN SUN, $6.40, $4.10, $2.70; VALDINA ZEST, $6.90, $3.80; WITNESS STAND, $2.70.

INDIAN SUN moved past the leader when asked after a half, drew out and was kept under hustling tactics to the end. VALDINA ZEST improved her position gradually, but could not seriously threaten the winner. WITNESS STAND had good speed for a half and then began to tire. ISLE DE PINE came from far back off the pace and showed a very good effort.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs (chute). Purse, $1000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:35. Off at 2:36. Winner, Mrs. R. B. Archer's b. m. (5), by Happy Argo—My Dear. Trained by R. B. Archer. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:13⅗.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS HAPPY, $9.00, $4.50, $3.10; CROISSANT, $3.20, $3.20; WAKE, $3.10.

MISS HAPPY widened her lead gradually after getting to the front early and was never threatened. CROISSANT was slow to settle into his best stride, came around the entire field, but could never get close to the winner. WAKE was closest to the leader most of the way, but tired in the final sixteenth. DULIE lost ground while moving to the leaders and then tired.

Daily Double, INDIAN SUN and MISS HAPPY, Paid $41.10

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs (chute). Purse, $1200; special weights. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:06. Off at 3:06½. Winner, R. S. Clark's br. c. (3), by Balladier—Ephyre. Trained by V. Mara. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14⅘.

BASILEUS was allowed to settle into his best stride, went around the leader while running easily and was in hand through the final eighth. YELLOW DRAGON had speed to set the pace, but was no match for the winner. CORN CAKES raced in a contending position throughout and was all out at the end. PILATE SUN came well in the final quarter after showing little in the early stages.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1100; allowances. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good. Won ridden out; place same. Went to post at 3:37. Off at 3:37. Winner, W. Kirkley's gr. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAR D'ESPRIT, $40.80, $11.70, $7.80; ON THE LEVEL, $2.80, $2.40; SWEET ZACA, $8.70.

MAR D'ESPRIT outran ON THE LEVEL down the backstretch, held away throughout and was drawing away at the end. ON THE LEVEL chased the winner from the start, but was no match. SWEET ZACA was in contention from the start, but was weakening at the end. HEDDA GAB closed well after being in close quarters early.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1500; allowances. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 4:06. Off at 4:07. Winner, Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANROLL, $6.70, $4.30, $3.60; GONDALINA, $9.90, $6.60; CHALLOMINE, $5.00.

CANROLL was allowed to settle into his best stride, moved around the field when called on in the final quarter, took command nearing the eighth pole and drew out in the final eighth. GONDALINA was bumped at the first turn, began to come in the final quarter and found room on the rail and closed willingly. CHALLOMINE dispossed of BALL PLAYER to take command and held on gamely until the closing sixteenth. BALL PLAYER weakened when headed.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:36. Off at 4:36½. Winner, H. G. Bedwell's br. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GINOCA, $8.90, $4.40, $3.20; PANORASCOPE, $3.40, $2.70; TIME SHEET, $3.00.

GINOCA, confidently handled, moved to the front on the stretch turn and drew out to be an easy winner. PANORASCOPE went around the entire field to reach contention, but was not good enough. TIME SHEET was hemmed in on the rail early and came well when clear. THE SCOUNDREL moved closest to the leader while racing on the outside at the stretch turn and then tired.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1000. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:05. Off at 5:05½. Winner, Mrs. M. McNey's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUTCHER BOY, $56.20, $12.30, $5.60; SPARROW CHIRP, $5.50, $4.20; LANTE, $4.20.

ESCOLAR moved around the leaders to take a slight lead at the quarter pole, appeared a sure winner, but just lasted when BUTCHER BOY came again. He was disqualified for bothering BUTCHER BOY in the closing eighth. BUTCHER BOY disposed of RUNNING LIGHTS in the first half, opened a daylight lead and fought it out after a half and then hung. LANTE was shuffled back at the first turn.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-half miles. Purse, $1200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:37. Off at 5:37½. Winner, L. W. Ulmer's ch. g. At The Post

Dear Al:

Yesterday morning at 4:30 a. m. we were all asleep, or should have been, but around the stable of Mrs. Albert Sabath's runners they were busy loading Alsab on a van for shipment to Belmont Park. Due to his being a very good shipper, it was not necessary for another horse to accompany him. As you all know by now, Alsab is due to perform in a match race on September 23 against Ben Whitaker's Requested. The purse will be $10,000, winner take all, and each owner will put up a forfeit of $2300. Directly after the match he will be returned to Maryland and will probably start in the Richard Johson at Laurel, according to Trainer Sarge Swenke. I was talking to our old friend Floyd Smock, one time rider at Charles Town and now trainer for H. H. Price. He told me that the old grey gelding, Kievex, has been permanently retired to his boss's Ridgeway Farm. Walmac Farm's Bushwhacker, one of the leading contenders for the Potomac Handicap, was given an easy mile trial here yesterday morning. The son of Chance Shot, who was recently second to Big Pebble, went the half in 0.52 and the three-quarters in 1:19. The time for the mile was 1:44. Another clever workout by a Potomac candidate was turned in by Sun Eager, a scheduled starter today. He went an easy three-eighths in 0:36. R. Sterling Clarks Abbe Pierre, a stablemate to the good 2-year-old Colchis, is shipping to New York today to fulfill his engagement in the $10,000 added Manhattan Handicap. One of the visitors yesterday was Jockey Johnny Gilbert. Gilbert is still in a steel race, due to a spill in New York. He suffered a broken vertebrae. There was a lot of noise around the secretary's office yesterday morning when Charlie McLennan posted the following message: "When the purse is $1000 or more the groom of every winning horse will receive a fee of $10. This fee shall be charged to the owner of the winning horse." The owners are expected to start a petition to protest this arrangement. They contend that they should not be told how to get rid of their own money. That's one trouble I never have. Freddie Burton, race secretary at Charles Town, wired that he had increased the minimum purses at Pascoag, R. I., to $500. That should go well with horsemen.

—BILL.

First race—PROC has a good race here going three-quarters and has shown that he wants a distance of ground. I'm making him the best bet of the day. MAROC is the speed horse if started and may be a tough one to beat. CARTEL is a half-miler but showed a good race over this strip.

Second race—TOUR has been going well around the New York circuit and deserves the call in this field of youngsters. TRIPOD is another from New York that performed well. SWEEPING LEE has not started since Delaware Park and ran some good races there.

Third race—ELDER was last in the Eastern Shore Handicap but was away over his head with that kind. Is dropping down for this and it appears a good spot. MISCHIEF AFOOT was a winner on opening day but didn't have a whole lot behind him. CAPT. CAUTIOUS could take it all off his best races.

Fourth race—IRISH MOON was sent a distance last out but has always preferred a sprint. Does not have much early speed but will be catching horses in the final quarter. FOGOSO is the class of the race but has gone back a little. DOMKIN is a fair sort and would be tough if mud came up.

Fifth race—SUN EAGER is here for Saturday's stake and has breezed very well since his arrival here. Needs only the right handling in a field like this. HIGH COMMAND has some very good races in New York and must be given a chance. WEATHERITE appears to be placed a little high but has always liked this course.

Sixth race—REGENT seems to have it on this kind when right and works say that condition prevails at present. Is in good hands but will have a tough time beating NAVY. The latter went three-quarters last out and was going well at the end. WAUGH POP will be dangerous and may be the public choice.

Seventh race—I'm going back to the half-milers again here and take ROUGH GOING to lick this cheap field. In his last start he was second to SHAILLEEN and she should beat this bunch. RED MARS is strictly the one to beat. RESIDUE has been going bad lately but has a chance off best races.

Eighth race—STAR CHANCE was a consistent sort around New England and may upset the cart here and beat the highly fancied BOSTON PAL. The latter has a win since reaching here but there wasn't much behind him. PREDICATE could be a threat.

Best bet—PROC.

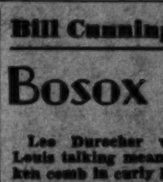
Bill Cunningham:

Bosox Make Their Critics Eat Crow

Lee Durocher went into St. Louis talking meaner than a broken comb in curly hair. "I'll play shortstop myself in the Card series," he said.



Cunningham

"I'm afraid they might bulldoze a kid like Reese, but I'll match 'em a spike for spike." Then he played Reese . . . For all the talk about "the disappointing Red Sox," when was second place considered the equivalent of terrible? . . .

If the entire affair hadn't been so utterly filthy, the case history of the Los Angeles baseball crisis wherein Third Baseman Eddie Mayo accidentally or deliberately drowned Umpire R. W. Snyder with a mouthful of tobacco juice at the height of an argument on July 13 would be very funny. For anointing the rugged countenance of the embattled arbiter with what looked like a shot of varnish fired from a grease gun, the ball player was suspended for a year. The case was appealed over the heads of the president of the Coast League, and the president of the National Association of Minor Leagues, and a full and plenary session of trustees and executive members sat in solemn fanfare in the metropolis of Cincinnati to decide the moot question of whether the ball player deliberately fired or accidentally lost control . . .

His defense plea was that he inadvertently "sputtered" and when they got the mug under oath, he proved unable to show the exact line where a splutter stops and that horrid word starts. All he could state was the net result, concerning which there was no question. So the ball player was given the benefit of the doubt, returned to duty and the fans received him like a martyr and a hero. I've often wanted to write for those energetic talkers who stand too close and give spray like a rock-bound coast . . .

Two terrific football games, involving possible "national championships" and possible nominations for both Rose and Sugar Bowl honors will blow loose September 27, or five days before the World Series even starts. These are Minnesota vs. Washington in Seattle and Boston College vs. Tulane in New Orleans. The possibility is that Minnesota will down the rugged Washingtonians, who will then, nevertheless, go ahead to win the Pacific Coast Conference honors and the Rose Bowl defense assignment on New Year's Day. The same thing could happen in the case of Tulane, although it is by no means any cinch that B. C. will take 'em this time . . .

One of the best Army gags, and one that will strike a responsive chord in the heart of many a motorist, concerns the former chauffeur who, after seven or eight months in the Army, was given the job of driving an army tank. He had it out on the road bolting along at 40 or so, when up ahead, coming his way, a big officers' looking truck deliberately pulled out of line and came rolling head on and well over in his half of the road. Joyously, he yelled back over his shoulder to the rest of the crew, "Brace yourselves, boys, here comes the opportunity I've been waiting for for ten years! . . .

There will be a terrific buildup for Lou Nova hitting the sports pages any time now. Mike Jacobs has moved the most experienced of his press staff, the veteran Walter St. Denis, to the Nova camp personally to handle the ballyhoo of the young disciple of Yogi. The chances are, however, that Joe Louis will have him looking as helpless as an armless wonder in a bowling tournament. Maybe not. But Brother Louis, with things all fixed up at home

August Sales Of D. C. Stores Increase 32%

Sales of seven Washington department stores in August were 32 per cent ahead of sales in the like month a year ago, according to the Fifth Federal Reserve District Bank.

Sales of area department stores last month were 34 per cent larger than sales in August, 1940, the bank reported.

The business of the Washington stores for the first eight months of the year was 23 per cent ahead of sales during the corresponding period a year ago, while for the entire district sales were up 22 per cent.

The largest gain in the district last month was shown in Charleston, S. C., where sales were up 67 per cent.

Thirteen stores in Maryland reported sales increases of 36 per cent for August; 16 in Virginia reported a gain of 36 per cent, and 15 in West Virginia reported a business advance of 42 per cent.

Quality of Loans Better

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation said yesterday "the banking situation had improved considerably over the past seven years and the loans and securities of the banks were probably of higher average quality than ever before in our history."

The statement was made in the agency's annual report to Congress. However, the corporation said it needed additional supervisory authority over insured banks to deal with the few banks which did not meet high standards.

Defense Stamp Sales Heavy

The Treasury announced that sale of stamps in denominations from 10 cents to $5 totaled $4,453,748 in August, compared with $3,288,283 in July and $3,475,970 in May, which was the first month of the sales.

Policy Sales Leap

New life insurance written in August was 11.8 per cent more than in the like month a year ago, the Association of Life Insurance Presidents reported yesterday.

The total for the month was $646,769,000 against $578,515,000 a year ago. The report covered companies having 82 per cent of all business outstanding in United States legal reserve companies.

D. C. Gas Sales Gain

Washington Gas Light Co. yesterday reported August sales of 743,004 m. c. f. (thousands of cubic feet), as compared with 643,655 in the same month last year. In the first eight months gas sales totaled 9,980,297 m. c. f. against 9,449,653 in the same 1940 period.

Comparative figures follow (in m. c. f.):

Defense Bond Questionnaire

Q. Why were the Nations retail stores asked to sell Defense Savings Stamps?

A. American retailers were not asked—they volunteered through their national organizations to undertake the sale of Defense Savings Stamps on a vast scale, starting during Retailers-for-Defense Week, September 15 to 20.

Q. What is the slogan for Retailers-for-Defense Week?

A. "When you buy anything, any time, at any store—buy Defense Savings Stamps, too!"

Note—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest postoffice, bank or savings and loan association, or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also Stamps are now on sale at most retail stores.

Air Express Shipments Exceed Million Pounds

New York, Sept. 16 (AP).—Air express shipments in July crossed the million-pound mark for the first month since the service started in 1927, Railway Express Agency reported today.

Gross revenues for the month were 50 per cent ahead of July, 1940, on aggregate shipments of 1,073,644 pounds, the agency said. The weight of shipments was 68 per cent ahead of the comparable month last year.

The number of shipments also increased, reaching 102,467, or 25.7 per cent more than in July, 1940.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 16 (AP).—Sharp breaks in soybean futures which at times extended to as much as 6¼ cents a bushel tumbled prices in all grain pits lower today.

Weakness of soybeans was associated with downturns in cotton, cottonseed oil and lard futures. Demand was indifferent and a cautious buying attitude was promoted as the trade awaited developments in the international situation and pending legislative action in Washington.

At the close wheat was ⅝ to ⅞ cents under yesterday's final figures, September, 1.18⅛@1.18⅛; December, 1.21⅞@1.21⅝; corn was ⅝ to 1⅛ off; September, 77¼; December, 83⅞@83½; oats declined ⅛ to 1 cent; rye, ⅛ to 1¼ cent; soybeans lost 4½ to 5⅝ cents and lard was off 5 to 10 cents a hundred pounds.

Defense Program Declared Opening Jobs for Women

A. I. B. Section Hears Federal Labor Aide At Dinner Here

MISS MARY ANDERSON

Women no longer have to beseech, cajole and plead with industry to make room for them, because for the first time in many years, industry is looking for women workers, Miss Mary Anderson, director of the Women's Bureau, Department of Labor, told the women's committee of the Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, last night.

More than 200 attended the committee's annual dinner at the Mayflower Hotel.

Speaking of women in banking, Miss Anderson said "You have been real pioneers creating new markets and new functions for banks and humanizing banking services by bringing them closer to the family and the home and by meeting investment needs and problems of women.

"Moreover, a number from your ranks do work of commanding importance in financial institutions and have, by so clearly demonstrating their ability, provided an entering wedge which in the near future may very well throw open increasingly the highest banking positions to women."

Training Is Essential

Referring to the problem of training women for defense industries, Miss Anderson said, "With the exception of the World War there have been no other periods in our history where the opportunities for the employment of women in such large numbers and in a variety of occupations have been so great.

"Defense industry has to a great extent passed through the tooling up stage, and large quantities of goods are rolling from assembly lines. Plant managers are looking for employes to take over jobs of all kinds. In many areas an actual or anticipated shortage of male labor has led many employers to think in terms of women workers for a number of manufacturing processes.

"It is this development which is fraught with so many possibilities. . . . However, there is one catch to it all. There is no doubt that with certain exceptions training for most of these processes is essential.

This has come to light, Miss Anderson said, during the course of the Women's Bureau investigations of factories working on defense contracts.

Miss Anderson urged that the institute committee through its nationwide membership, reach into communities where new defense factories are being built or where industrial activity is reaching a new high and insist that advisory councils on training include women to promote the training of women wherever possible.

Other speakers at the dinner were John M. Christie, president of the Washington Chapter, and Kenneth Birgfield, first vice president.

Among the guests were A. Scott Offutt, vice president of the City Bank and second vice president of the District Bankers Association, and Ralph Endicott, assistant treasurer of the Washington Loan & Trust Co.

Assisting Miss Leona Dreager, chairman of the women's committee, in making plans for the dinner were:

Mrs. Frances Werner Redman, of the Hamilton National Bank, vice-chairman; Miss Dorothy Werner, Hamilton National Bank; Miss Rose Royce, Washington Loan & Trust Co.; Miss Katharine McCalmont, National Metropolitan Bank; Miss Eleanor Dankmeyer, Security Savings & Commercial Bank; Miss Helen Freeman, Union Trust Co.; Miss Sophia Karydakis, Second National Bank; Mrs. Lou Swain, Second National Bank; Miss Miriam Fort, Riggs National Bank; Miss Elizabeth Lee Morford, Riggs National Bank; Miss Donna Mulloy, National Savings & Trust Co.; Miss Margaret Allison, National Savings & Trust Co.; Mrs. Irene McNally, Lincoln National Bank; Miss Helen Hogan, Bank of Commerce & Savings; Miss Ann Crawford, McLachlen Banking Corporation; Mrs. Elizabeth Rowzee, Hamilton National Bank; Miss Jeanne Le Gendre, Liberty National Bank; Mrs. Gertrude Wick, Liberty National Bank; Miss Margarite Detterer, American Security & Trust Co.; and Miss Elizabeth A. Davidson, American Security & Trust Co.

Business Highlights

By Standard & Poor's Corp.

British Policy Adopted

Long before the war broke out, the Munitions Board listed close to 12,000 plants for the production of military equipment in the event of war. For more than a year the defense program has been in operation; yet only 6800 of these companies have defense contracts. Close to 75 per cent of the contracts have gone to 56 corporations, and six of these have obtained 30 per cent of the orders. All this is about to be changed. For the dual purpose of speeding up defense output and preventing distress in civilian industries, we are about to adopt the British program of producing by "bits and pieces." It appears that the real defense drive is finally here.

Outlook for Farmers

It has been said for years that the only things certain are death and taxes, but we can now add a third to this maxim—we can regard as certain the continuing prosperity of American farmers. Farmers now have a clear go-ahead signal on production expansion, low ceilings cannot be placed on their prices by Mr. Henderson's agency, crop loans and direct cash payments are to continue, and they will be able to obtain all the machinery they need because of the high preference ratings given by the Priorities Division to agricultural implement makers. Thus farmers are in a position to "get theirs" during the defense boom and are in the unique position of being protected against the aftermath of the emergency.

Scarce Buying a Factor

During the past two months, the rate of gain in retail sales over 1940 has accelerated rapidly. The abrupt rise in sales at a time when business is ordinarily slow was, of course, due largely to the contra-seasonal expansion in factory employment and pay rolls. However, realization on the part of the public that supplies of many lines of merchandise—particularly durable goods—would soon be greatly reduced is playing an important role in boosting volume. The recent rush for silk stockings is an excellent example of scare buying. This sort of thing has a tendency to spread from one line of merchandise to another, often without any logical justification. It will undoubtedly continue an important factor during coming months.

Rail Earnings Outlook

Railroad earnings in July were highly favorable. Combined revenues in the month rose 32½ per cent on a 20.9 per cent increase in loadings, and more than 41 per cent of the revenues gain was translated into operating net. In the 12 months through July total net income of class 1 roads came to 432 million dollars. August net probably approximated that of July, which would bring the figure for the 12 months through August to about 470 million dollars. There seems little doubt, but that combined full-year net will exceed 500 million dollars, which would be the highest, with the possible exception of 1930 net of $523,000,000 since 1929. The total last year was 191 million dollars.

Earnings Reports

By the Associated Press

Motor Wheel Corp. reported net profit for the fiscal year ended June 30 of $2,284,3366, or $2.70 a share, compared with $2,311,479, or $2.74 a share, in the preceding 12 months.

Interstate Department Stores, Inc., and subsidiaries reported net profit for the six months ended July 31 of $403,531, or $1.10 a common share after provision for preferred dividends, compared with $7,441, or 35 cents a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock, in the like 1940 period.

Rails Will Meet Car Demand, Official Says

St. Louis, Sept. 16 (AP).—An executive of the Association of American Railroads predicted today the railroads will be able to meet all the freight car supply requirements of the national defense program.

L. B. Bettis, manager of the car service division of the A. A. R., estimated the demand would reach a peak in mid-October with weekly loadings totaling between 950,000 and 960,000 cars.

Because of priorities restrictions, Betts said, the number of serviceable cars on the tracks today is some 20,000 short of the anticipated number for this date, but he stated 1,600,000 cars should be in operation by October 1.

Defense Costs Put at 20% of U. S. Income

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Sept. 16.—Despite a 24 per cent increase in total industrial output in 11 months, the United States' armament expenditures total not more than 20 per cent of the national income, C. Oliver Wellington, of New York, president of the American Institute of Accountants, told the group's fifty-fourth annual meeting here today.

Such expenditures in Great Britain, he said, account for "about 50 per cent of its annual income, and in Germany at least 60 per cent."

Wellington said that "the general public and some parts of the business public do not yet seem to grasp the gravity of the situation."

He suggested the Government May find it necessary to adopt some plan on compulsory saving to support the defense effort, "but compulsory saving should not be put into effect until after the plan for deduction of normal tax at the source has been made effective and its results have been observed."

Two groups meeting in connection with the institute elected officers for 1941-42 yesterday. The advisory council of State society presidents of the institute elected Abner J. Starr, Cincinnati, chairman; and L. C. J. Yeager, Louisville, Ky., secretary.

Prof. Robert P. Briggs, of the University of Michigan was elected president of the Association of Certified Public Accountant Examiners. Dick D. Quin, Jackson, Miss., was named vice president; Brooks Geoghegan, Atlanta, Ga., secretary, and Fred J. Peterson, Des Moines, Iowa, treasurer.

Home Appliance Standardization Appears Nearer

New York, Sept. 16 (AP).—Predictions that fewer styles of home appliances would be available in coming months because of the defense shortage were a step nearer realization today.

The American Standards Association announced it had received requests from Federal officials forr suggestions covering mechanical refrigerators, washing machines and electric flatirons.

The purpose of standardization, the letter from the Office of Price Administration was quoted as saying, is to "bring about important economies in production and distribution, and thereby mitigate the effect of the shortage of strategic materials, and result in better service to consumers than would otherwise be possible."

The association said its study of flatirons would include minimum performance and construction requirements "in the face of raw materials shortages and other incentives to cut quality."

For washing machines, the Office of Price Administration suggested that new standards provide for a limited number of sizes, method of size rating, a way for comparing effectiveness, minimum performance and minimum construction.

Machine Tools Reported En Route to Russia

New York, Sept. 16 (AP).—American Machinist, a trade journal, said today the United States was shipping to Russia machine tools built for the Soviet government but held in this country for months by export controls.

Export of the tools was prohibited while Germany and Russia were apparent allies. Now that they are enemies, the magazine said, several million dollars' worth of machinery has been released and is en route by way of Vladivostok.

The magazine estimated present machine tool production at above 60 million dollars a month and said that for 1940 and 1941 production probably would total $1,200,000,000, or more than the entire preceding ten years.

Steel Furnace Finished Ahead of Schedule

Chicago, Sept. 16 (AP).—A 160-ton open hearth furnace, first to be constructed in the Chicago District since the start of the national defense program, was placed in operation today at the Wisconsin Steel Works.

The furnace, finished 45 days ahead of schedule, was one of two open hearths being added to the nine already at the plant. The second will be blown in within two weeks.

Company officials said that the new furnaces would boost the annual capacity of the Chicago steel district by approximately 160,000 tons.

Byron's Son Improves After Appendectomy

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 16 (AP).—The condition of William D. Byron, Jr., 16, who underwent an appendicitis operation Sunday, was described as favorable and not serious at Washington County Hospital today.

Young Byron, son of Rep. Katharine E. Byron, who succeeded her late husband in Congress, accidentally shot himself Sept. 1. Complications resulting from the wound necessitated the appendectomy.

Brick Shipments Gain

Reports to the Commerce Department from 502 manufacturers of structural clay show that May shipments amounted to 363,663,000 bricks valued at $4,527,922, compared with shipments of 353,878,000 bricks worth $4,345,466 during April.

Stocks at the end of May totaled 748,256,000 bricks, a decline of 33,678,000 during the month.

Week's Oil Output Gains

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 16 (AP).—Daily crude oil production in the United States increased 232,745 barrels, to 4,027,650, for the week ended September 13, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

Norwegian, Danish Bonds Lead Upturn

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 16 (AP).—A group of foreign government bonds, headed by Danish and Norwegian issues, forged ahead today, leading the market higher in sporadic trading.

Coupled with the Scandinavians on the rise were issues of Brazil, Canada, Peru, Panama, Cuba and Uruguay. Rumors of peace possibilities in the Pacific gave Japanese bonds a late, but sharp, lift.

The Associated Press average of 10 foreign government dollar loans advanced .6 of a point to 51.1, a new high for the year.

Transfer for the complete session totaled $5,897,050, face value, compared with $4,282,700 yesterday, which was the smallest weekday session since June 2.

Although a few variations in U. S. Government prices were recorded in stock exchange dealings, the more active dealer market closed with quotations about unchanged.

Higher in the irregular corporate list were Alleghany income 5s of '50 at 62½, American Telephone 3s at 112⅜, Laclede Gas 5½s at 85½, Pacific Gas 3¾s at 110⅛ and Texas Corp. 3s of '65 at 106½.

Marked lower were Walworth 4s at 84⅞, Santa Fe 4s of '95 at 108½, International Telephone 5s at 50⅞, Nickel Plate 5½s at 70 and International Hydro Electric 6s at 32¼.

August Revenues Of 87 Railroads Near 400 Millions

By the Associated Press

Eighty-seven Class 1 railroads had estimated operating revenues of $399,934,906 in August, compared with $310,035,346 in August, 1940, and 381,239,580 in August, 1930, the Association of American Railroads reported today.

The association said the reporting carriers represented 81.3 per cent of total operating revenues of all Class 1 railroads.

Freight revenues amounted to $332,173,833 in August compared with 251,090,579 in August, 1940, and $291,204,876 in August, 1930.

Crude Rubber Consumption Dips

New York, Sept. 16 (AP).—A drop of 19.4 per cent from July to August in the consumption of crude rubber was reported today by the Rubber Manufacturers Association, Inc. Domestic rubber manufacturers used 55,365 long tons in August. This figure was 3.9 per cent above the consumption in August, 1940.

At the end of August, the association said, total domestic stocks, including Government reserves, were 444,890 long tons, 12.8 per cent above July 31 and 128.4 per cent above August 31, 1940. The Government reserves on August 31 were 228,551 tons, an increase of 4.4 per cent over July 31.

Stocks on the way by ship to the United State on August 31 totaled 90,591 tons, and in the preceding 31 days imports into the United States totaled 105,456 tons, an increase of 8.8 per cent over July and 44.4 per cent over August, 1940.

Dow Chemical Workers Receive Wage Increase

Midland, Mich., Sept. 16 (AP).—Hourly wage rate increases of 10 cents for 3750 workers covered by the Dow Chemical Company's agreement with the United Mine Workers (C. I. O.) were announced here today.

The increases, combined with conversion of the company's bonus system to a weekly wage basis, will add $1,373,000 annually to Dow's pay roll, the anonouncement said. The new hourly rates were not disclosed.

The Dow-U. M. W. agreement—negotiated after the union won a National Labor Relations election—also includes sole bargaining rights and a dues checkoff for union members.

Brown and Williamson Tax Case Is Settled

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 16 (AP).—Settlement for $750,000 of Brown and Williamson Tobacco Corporation's $5,280,000 claim against the Federal government for refunds on processing taxes was reached today by attorneys.

In addition to the lump sum, the tobacco concern is to receive 6 per cent interest from dates of payments made in 1933 through 1935 before the Smith-Kerr Act was invalidated by the United States Supreme Court in January, 1936.

Kroger Grocery Reports Sales Increase of 22%

Cincinnati, Sept. 16 (AP).—Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. reported today a 22 per cent increase in sales for the ninth four-week period of this year, ended September 6, over that same portion of 1940. Totals were $23,144,883 and $18,979,975. Cumulative sales jumped 15 per cent, from $175,758,140 to $201,429,050.

New U.S. Freight Co. Heads

New York, Sept. 16 (AP).—Directors of United States Freight Co. today elected Morris Forgash president to succeed F. N. Melius, who died recently. C. A. Waltz was elected vice president.

Late Support Comes Into Market; Leaders Gain Fractions to Around Point

New York, Sept. 16.—Mild Late support came into the stock market today and enabled leaders generally to emerge from a rather hesitant session with gains of fractions to around a point.

The list displayed considerable irregularity from the start, but offerings were exceptionally light, and this, brokers said, inspired a little bidding after midday on the theory the market was in a position to rally on the appearance of any worth-while news.

Early indefinite trends were blamed partly on the inclination of many customers to stand aside pending repercussions from the Navy's "shoot-first" order in relation to Atlantic Axis raiders, which went into effect today. There was a tendency to proceed carefully while Congress took final action on the tax bill and other controversial measures having to do with defense and price controls. The war picture remained sketchy and little alteration was noted in the business scene.

Some optimism was credited to rumors in boardrooms that Washington and Tokyo were about to announce an accord on Far Eastern questions, but dispatches from China and Japan failed to bear out this talk.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks ended with a net gain of .1 of a point at 43.6. Of 749 issues traded, 305 were up, 217 down and 227 unchanged. Dealings were slack until the concluding half hour, when several large blocks of low-priced issues pushed transfers to a total of 606,190 shares, against 463,850 yesterday. There was one trade of 45,000 shares of Commonwealth & Southern, unchanged at ⅜.

Stocks edging into new high ground for the year included Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies, common and preferred; Loew's, Savage Arms and American Machine & Metals.

Improved were U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Boeing Douglas Aircraft, Consolidated Aircraft, American Airlines, General Electric, Westinghouse, Anaconda, Kennecott, Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Armour, Wilson & Co. and McKesson & Robbins.

Minor declines were suffered by Bethlehem Steel, American Telephone, New York Central, Texas Corporation, Glenn Martin, Sperry, Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward. Dow Chemical and duPont dropped a point each.

Gainers in a spotty curb were Aluminum Ltd., International Petroleum, New Jersey Zinc and Pennroad. Minus signs were posted for Bell Aircraft, Electric Bond & Share, Gulf Oil and Glen Alden Coal. Turnover here was around 140,000 shares versus 132,000 Monday.

Gas Supplies On East Coast Drop Again

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 16.—The American Petroleum Institute reported today that gasoline supplies on the East Coast declined 447,000 barrels in the week ended September 13 to 22,351,000 barrels. The week before, the decline was 492,000 barrels.

The Nation's total gasoline supply declined 1,016,000 barrels to 80,555,000, including 7,452,000 barrels of aviation gasoline. The week before, the total was 81,571,000 and a year earlier 82,983,000.

Daily average crude oil production increased during the week to a new high mark of 4,033,700 barrels compared with 3,647,400 barrels a year earlier.

Refinery operations were at a rate of 93.3 per cent of capacity, the institute estimated, indicating a daily average run to stills of 4,010,000 barrels of crude compared with 92.9 per cent and 3,995,000 barrels the week before. A year earlier the total was 3,592,000 barrels.

Gasoline production for the week was 13,460,000 barrels, an increase over 13,353,000 barrels of the previous week.

Imports of crude and refined oils totaled 2,029,000 barrels for the week, a daily average of 289,857 barrels, compared with 1,542,000 or a daily average of 220,286 for the previous week.

Daily average receipts in bond, partly for re-export and partly as supplies for ships' bunkers, was reported by the United States Bureau of Mines at 40,800 in the six months ended June 30.

Commodities Depressed by Tax Worries

Hedging and nervous liquidation left New York cotton futures 70 to 85 cents a bale lower at the close. Cottonseed oil lost .06 to .08 of a cent a pound.

Soybeans, which have been setting the pace for Chicago grains, lost 4½ to 5⅝ cents a bushel. Wheat finished ¾ to ⅞ cent a bushel lower, and corn was off ⅝ to 1⅛ cents.

The Associated Press index of 35 spot commodity prices declined to 93.28 per cent of the 1926 average from 93.49 per cent the day before.

Reds Defeat Dodgers, 4-3, In 11 Innings

DODGERS, from Page 32.

McKechnie flagged him as he rounded second but Mike's head was down and the next he knew he was out at third. Mike also missed a hit in the eighth by failing to touch first after beating out a bunt.

A single by Camilli, a fumbled throw by Benny Zientara and another single by Mickey Owen brought Brooklyn a run in the second.

Then the Dodgers scored their lying markers in the ninth mainly because the usually reliable Frank McCormick booted a double-play hopper at first. Pete Reiser opened with a single and Camilli grounded to Frank. He dribbled it like a basketball and both men were safe. Law Riggs and Medwick flied out, but Reiser scored on the latter and Camilli came in on a pinch double by Augie Galan.

Frick Acts to End Stalling for Time

ing to ring in anything new, Frick opened the baseball law book to Rule 24, section 4, which points out that "a forfeited game shall be declared by the umpire in favor of the club not at fault . . . if a team employ tactics palpably designed to delay or shorten the game."

Fans all over the city wondered today how come the Dodgers, in announcing they were accepting World Series ticket applications, were asking $16.75 for strips of reserved seats for their games at Ebbets Field and $20.05 for strips of box pews, when it has always been $16.50 and $19.80 in the past. Larry MacPhail, Brooklyn boss, explained the extra two-bits was for postal registration (15 cents), and mailing (6 cents). Loud Larry didn't mention the other 4 cents, but he must have some use for it. At any rate, the oldest members of Gus Fan's family were unable to remember when the handling and mailing charges for tickets were borne by the faithful.

Rams Turn Back Cardinals, 10-6

Morrow and Johnny Hall, working the ball from their 25 to Cleveland's 45. After an exchange of punts the Cards again had possession on the Rams' 43. A Ray-Mallouf-to-Bill-Dewell pass clicked twice and Hall dashed 24 yards to place the ball on the five. Hall then swept around end to score.

The Cards' final threat started from their 29 at the end of the third period and swept the ball across the midfield on Marshall Goldberg's passing and running. But it ended when Hugh McCullough's pass was taken on the goal line by Drake.

Middle Atlantic P. G. A. Play Set

Bobby Cruickshank, Virginia tournament chairman of the Middle Atlantic P. G. A., notified Secretary Gene Larkin yesterday that the section's championship would be played October 16 in Richmond, either over the James River course of the C. C. of Virginia or the lower course, depending upon conditions.

The purse will be worked out between Cruickshank and Wiffy Cox, president. The Virginia mentor will charge a 50-cent admission to the tournament. Rut Coffey, of Hagerstown, is defending champion.

Tigers Turn On Nats, Win, 4-2; Newsom Stars

Rowe was giving the Nats a horrible time of it, meanwhile. With the help of two double plays he shut the Nats out with four hits in the first seven innings, and had one out in the eighth when Pinch-hitter Buddy Lewis set a rally in motion by beating out a bunt to Higgins.

George Case breathed life into the uprising with a single to left and the faltering Rowe walked Cramer to fill the bases with one out. It didn't take Layne long. He slugged a solid single to right and two runs were home, a runner was on third and Layne was on first base with the tying run.

That's when Newsom arrived on the scene. He got rid of Travis on a pop to Higgins and fanned Vernon and went into the ninth with a two-run lead.

Ortiz opened the ninth by beating out a hit to Perry but Bloodworth obliged Newsom by hitting into a double play. The Nats then wheeled up their pinch hitting pair, Buddy Meyer and Sammy West, and Newsom lost his control to the extent of walking them both. Matters ended happily for big Buck, however, when Case grounded to Higgins.

And the Nats dont have that four-game winning streak any more.

Bard Tells Naval Class To Be Ready

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Sept. 16.—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ralph A. Bard called upon 429 graduates of the Naval Reserve Midshipmen's School on board the U. S. S. Prairie State today to be ready to "fight, and if necessary, die for your country" after he had expressed the opinion that events of the last few days strongly indicate that war may be forced upon this country. He spoke at graduation ceremonies for the ensigns on the training ship moored in the Hudson River at 136th Street.

"I have said before that this country does not want war and has not sought war," Assistant Secretary Bard told the newly commissioned officers who came from 37 States and were graduates of 152 colleges. "But German submarines are coming closer and closer to our shores. Four-engined bombers have already appeared over the waters surrounding our continent and have sunk ships within a few miles of land in this hemisphere."

He said that our determination to maintain the democratic mode of living brings us face to face with possible war. Therefore, it is necessary, he added to develop our armed forces and so equip ourselves for defense that not even the strongest combination of powers may dare, with impunity, to attack us.

After telling the class that the Navy is not only the first line of defense but also the first line of danger, Assistant Secretary Bard expressed confidence that the American Navy, together with a large and competent air force established at strategic bases, will meet any enemy well off shore and keep them off shore, thereby warding from our civilian population the horror of modern warfare.

Assistant Secretary Bard, who presented the diplomas to the ensigns, asked Henry Morgenthau, jr., Secretary of the Treasury, to take part in the ceremony by giving his son, Ensign R. M. Morgenthau, a certificate. Also present was the new naval officer's grandfather, Henry Morgenthau, sr., United States Ambassador to Turkey during the last World War.

Japanese Act To Become Self-Sufficient

By Otto Tolischus
Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Sept. 16.—At a time when Japan's foreign trade with the outside world is virtually at a standstill, the cabinet decided today to reorient that trade so far as it may be possible toward the greater East Asia coprosperity sphere, especially China and Manchukuo, on the basis of an increasing self sufficiency.

According to Lieut. Gen. Teiichi Suzuki, president of the cabinet planning board, Japan expects to maintain her exports to China and Manchukuo at the 1940-41 level which has been the highest since the outbreak of the China incident.

Imports from Manchukuo are reduced but imports from China are to be increased beyond all previous records.

"A plan has been designed to promote elasticity for the combined war-time economies of Japan, China and Manchukuo in order to ensure the highest rate of industrial productivity in the latter two and to firmly establish economies in all three countries on a self sufficient basis," Gen. Suzuki said.

To carry it out, the entire foreign trade structure of Japan, based on the same 6,000 firms engaged in foreign trade including 500 foreign, is to be reorganized. No doubt is left but that many of these firms will have to close.

Rumors of Break with Axis

New York, Sept. 16.—It was rumored on the produce exchange here today that Japan had broken with Germany and Italy. While many traders were skeptical that so drastic a move had been taken, there was a general belief that Japan was moving in the direction of an accord with the United States and away from the Axis.

Another report, circulated on the Commodity Exchange, was that the Japanese high command had formally advised the government that Japan would be unable to win a war with the United States. This received more credence.

William Moffett, Prosecutor, Dies In Charlottesville

Commonwealth Attorney William F. Moffett, of Rappahannock County, Va., died yesterday at the University of Virginia Hospital, Charlottesville.

The 61-year-old prosecutor, whose father and grandfather were his predecessors in office, was stricken Sunday at Washington, Va., and taken to the hospital the following day.

He had served as Commonwealth's attorney for the past 25 years. He was also active in Democratic Party affairs. He was a Mason.

Mr. Moffett's father, the late H. G. Moffett, jr., was county prosecutor for 40 years before him.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Louemma Carter Moffett; a son, William F. Moffet, jr., a student at Washington and Lee University, and a sister, Mrs. William C. Armstrong, of Front Royal, Va.

Burial will be in Washington, Va., at 3 p. m. tomor

Reds Defeat Dodgers, 4-3, In 11 Innings

McKechnie flagged him as he rounded second but Mike's head was down and the next he knew he was out at third. Mike also missed a hit in the eighth by failing to touch first after beating out a bunt.

A single by Camilli, a fumbled throw by Benny Zientara and another single by Mickey Owen brought Brooklyn a run in the second.

Then the Dodgers scored their tying markers in the ninth mainly because the usually reliable Frank McCormick booted a double-play hopper at first. Pete Reiser opened with a single and Camilli grounded to Frank. He dribbled it like a basketball and both men were safe. Law Riggs and Medwick flied out, but Reiser scored on the latter and Camilli came in on a pinch double by Augie Galan.

ing to ring in anything new, Frick opened the baseball law book to Rule 24, section 4, which points out that "a forfeited game shall be declared by the umpire in favor of the club not at fault . . . if a team employ tactics palpably designed to delay or shorten the game."

Fans all over the city wondered today how come the Dodgers, in announcing they were accepting World Series ticket applications, were asking $16.75 for strips of reserved seats for their games at Ebbets Field and $20.05 for strips of box pews, when it has always been $16.50 and $19.80 in the past. Larry MacPhail, Brooklyn boss, explained the extra two-bits was for postal registration (15 cents), and mailing (6 cents). Loud Larry didn't mention the other 4 cents, but he must have some use for it. At any rate, the oldest members of Gus Fan's family were unable to remember when the handling and mailing charges for tickets were borne by the faithful.

Morrow and Johnny Hall, working the ball from their 25 to Cleveland's 45. After an exchange of punts the Cards again had possession on the Rams' 43. A Ray-Mallouf-to-Bill-Dewell pass clicked twice and Hall dashed 24 yards to place the ball on the five. Hall then swept around end to score.

The Cards' final threat started from their 29 at the end of the third period and swept the ball across the midfield on Marshall Goldberg's passing and running. But it ended when Hugh McCullough's pass was taken on the goal line by Drake.

Middle Atlantic P. G. A. Play Set

Bobby Cruickshank, Virginia tournament chairman of the Middle Atlantic P. G. A., notified Secretary Gene Larkin yesterday that the section's championship would be played October 16 in Richmond, either over the James River course of the C. C. of Virginia or the lower course, depending upon conditions.

The purse will be worked out between Cruickshank and Wiffy Cox, president. The Virginia mentor will charge a 50-cent admission to the tournament. Rut Coffey, of Hagerstown, is defending champion.

Rowe was giving the Nats a horrible time of it, meanwhile. With the help of two double plays he shut the Nats out with four hits in the first seven innings, and had one out in the eighth when Pinch-hitter Buddy Lewis set a rally in motion by beating out a bunt to Higgins.

George Case breathed life into the uprising with a single to left and the faltering Rowe walked Cramer to fill the bases with one out. It didn't take Layne long. He slugged a solid single to right and two runs were home, a runner was on third and Layne was on first base with the tying run.

That's when Newsom arrived on the scene. He got rid of Travis on a pop to Higgins and fanned Vernon and went into the ninth with a two-run lead.

Ortiz opened the ninth by beating out a hit to Perry but Bloodworth obliged Newsom by hitting into a double play. The Nats then wheeled up their pinch hitting pair, Buddy Meyer and Sammy West, and Newsom lost his control to the extent of walking them both. Matters ended happily for big Buck, however, when Case grounded to Higgins.

And the Nats dont have that four-game winning streak any more.

Bard Tells Naval Class To Be Ready

New York, Sept. 16.—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ralph A. Bard called upon 429 graduates of the Naval Reserve Midshipmen's School on board the U. S. S. Prairie State today to be ready to "fight, and if necessary, die for your country" after he had expressed the opinion that events of the last few days strongly indicate that war may be forced upon this country. He spoke at graduation ceremonies for the ensigns on the training ship moored in the Hudson River at 136th Street.

"I have said before that this country does not want war and has not sought war," Assistant Secretary Bard told the newly commissioned officers who came from 37 States and were graduates of 152 colleges. "But German submarines are coming closer and closer to our shores. Four-engined bombers have already appeared over the waters surrounding our continent and have sunk ships within a few miles of land in this hemisphere."

He said that our determination to maintain the democratic mode of living brings us face to face with possible war. Therefore, it is necessary, he added to develop our armed forces and so equip ourselves for defense that not even the strongest combination of powers may dare, with impunity, to attack us.

After telling the class that the Navy is not only the first line of defense but also the first line of danger, Assistant Secretary Bard expressed confidence that the American Navy, together with a large and competent air force established at strategic bases, will meet any enemy well off shore and keep them off shore, thereby warding from our civilian population the horror of modern warfare.

Assistant Secretary Bard, who presented the diplomas to the ensigns, asked Henry Morgenthau, jr., Secretary of the Treasury, to take part in the ceremony by giving his son, Ensign R. M. Morgenthau, a certificate. Also present was the new naval officer's grandfather, Henry Morgenthau, sr., United States Ambassador to Turkey during the last World War.

Japanese Act To Become Self-Sufficient

By Otto Tolischus

Copyright by New York Times

Toyko, Sept. 16.—At a time when Japan's foreign trade with the outside world is virtually at a standstill, the cabinet decided today to reorient that trade so far as it may be possible toward the greater East Asia coprosperity sphere, especially China and Manchukuo, on the basis of an increasing self sufficiency.

According to Lieut. Gen. Teiichi Suzuki, president of the cabinet planning board, Japan expects to maintain her exports to China and Manchukuo at the 1940-41 level which has been the highest since the outbreak of the China incident.

Imports from Manchukuo are reduced but imports from China are to be increased beyond all previous records.

"A plan has been designed to promote elasticity for the combined war-time economies of Japan, China and Manchukuo in order to ensure the highest rate of industrial productivity in the latter two and to firmly establish economies in all three countries on a self sufficient basis," Gen. Suzuki said.

To carry it out, the entire foreign trade structure of Japan, based on the same 6,000 firms engaged in foreign trade including 500 foreign, is to be reorganized. No doubt is left but that many of these firms will have to close.

Rumors of Break with Axis

New York, Sept. 16.—It was rumored on the produce exchange here today that Japan had broken with Germany and Italy. While many traders were skeptical that so drastic a move had been taken, there was a general belief that Japan was moving in the direction of an accord with the United States and away from the Axis.

Another report, circulated on the Commodity Exchange, was that the Japanese high command had formally advised the government that Japan would be unable to win a war with the United States. This received more credence.

JOE PALOOKA — There's the Stadium — BY HAM FISHER

IT'S ROUND TWO--PALOOKA HASN'T DONE ANY INFIGHTING OR BODY PUNCHING--HE TRIES TO KEEP DILL OFF WITH A STABBING LEFT JAB--
HUHHHH UHHH HUHHHH UHHHHH HUHHH
DILL LANDED A FIERCE LEFT TO PALOOKA'S HEAD AND A RIGHT TO THE BODY--THE FORMER CHAMP FELL IN CLOSE AND THEY CLINCHED --AND THERE'S THE BELL.
ROUND FOUR--DILL LOOKS VERY FRESH--PALOOKA'S BODY SHOWS SEVERAL BLOTCHES--THE RESULT OF HEAVY BODY BLOWS--JOE FEINTED DILL--BUT IT DIDN'T WORK AND DILL SCORED WITH A LEFT JAB
THERE'S THE STADIUM--HURRY--HURRY--
I AIN'T SO INTRUSTED IN THE PRELIMS--DON'T WORRY.

Listen! with Glynn

This is about Eddie Dowling, the new master of ceremonies for that popular radio show you hear over WJSV every Tuesday night, called, "We, the People."

Now Mr. Dowling appears to be something of an ideal choice for his new role, for he's a man who, by his own admission, has "played all the States from the Gulf to the Canadian watershed; from the sardine canning factories of Maine to the lumber camps of Oregon." And that should mean that he knows us, the folks. And he does.

He's the actor-producer who has won a Pulitzer prize and three successive annual New York Drama Critics Circle awards. The Pulitzer prize was for "Time of Your Life" on which he worked with Mr. Saroyan. That also was cited by the New York drama critics as the best play of the year and Dowling's two previously produced plays, "Shadow and Substance" and "The White Steed," both by Paul Vincent Carroll, ware their choices in the previous years.

Dowling himself has written "The Velvet Lady," "The Sidewalks of New York," "Sally, Irene and Mary" and "Honeymoon Lane." That he's pretty keenly aware of what the public wants is attested by the fact that a few years ago, against the advice of associates, he signed a relatively unknown Englishman to play in Shakespeare's "Richard II," in which even the great Booth had failed. And, as you know, it and Mr. Evans were terrific successes.

Contract Bridge

Here are two bidding problems for beginners to solve:

♠ 87632
♡ 8542
♣ KJ5

The bidding has gone:

North	East	South	West
1♠	2◇	?	—

2. Sitting South, you hold these cards:

♠ QJ7
♡ K97
◇ 865
♣ A864

The bidding has gone:

North	East	South	West
1◇	1♠	?	—

Answers to Quiz

1. Pass, although you have five cards of your partner's suit and the equivalent of one honor trick. It takes 1½ or more honor tricks for a raise after an intervening bid by an opponent.

2. Bid one no trump; you hold two honor tricks, with a stopper in the opponents' spade suit.

Free French Make SyriaIndependent; President Named

Damascus, Syria, Sept. 16 (AP)—The independence of Syria was proclaimed today by the occupying Free French authorities and Sheikh Tajeddine Hassani was named the first president of the republic.

In a letter to the new president, Commanding Gen. Georges Catroux said: "Free France, acting in agreement with her ally, Great Britain, has undertaken to terminate the mandate and grant Syria the status of an independent sovereign state and to guarantee the new state by treaty."

A new cabinet is expected to be formed Tuesday.

The Free French and British won control of Syria and Lebanon last June in a brief campaign from the Vichy French, who had continued to rule these Levant States under the League of Nations mandate.
